PETTY VANDALISM.

A STRANGER coming to Heppner, should he step into the lobby of the postoffice, might form the opinion that the city is predominantly moron. At least there is a decided lack of culture evidenced in the numerous scrawlings, scribbles and caricatures on the walls, the like of which are found only in unmentionable places.

The obscene markings are known to be the work of minors. It is reported that the vandalism is accomplished in the late evenings when the minors are supposed to be at home. Resurrection of the curfew law has been suggested as a means of correction.

Curfew, and the strong arm of the law might afford protection. It is doubtful if they do any correcting. There is but one way to cure any trouble and that is to go to the source. Vandalism is the result largely, except in cases where the child is absolutely mentally deficient, of improper training.

City authorities and citizens of the community generally have a responsibility, yes. The authorities are expected to protect public, as well as private property, and to bring offenders to justice. The citizens have a duty in providing adequate channels for properly directing the talents and exuberance of youth.

Petty vandalism is the early earmark of criminality. It should not be allowed to go unnoticed. Respect for property and obedience of law are principles which need to be stressed in the making of good citizens. The principles are based on sound reason and should be impressed upon the youth in a reasonable manner.

Unreasonable chastisement leads only to resentment, malice, and in the extreme, to hate.

ANOTHER MILESTONE. DATED from the time of issuance of the Heppner Gazette, earliest established of the consolidated papers now known as the Gazette Times, this newspaper is 51 years old today. It is just another milestone, meaningless perhaps, in that no special observance is being made of the occasion, but nevertheless worthy of note.

It makes little difference that somewhere in the uncertain past the volumes were thrown off in their numbering, inadvertently, mayhap through slip-up of the makeup man, so that actually the birthdate is March 30. The Gazette was established March 30, 1883, by one J. A. Stine. There is now no way to keep the numbering sequence in order, except to observe the anniversary with this issue.

Editors of the past have come and gone. Some names still stand out vividly on the canvas of the past: J. W. Redington, Otis and A. W. Patterson, Henry Rasmus, and Fred Warnock of the Gazette; E. M. Shutt and E. R. Hicks of the Times; Thomas Nelson of the Record; E. G. Harlan and S. A. Pattison of the Herald. The present management took over the Gazette in 1910, and consolidated it with the Times in 1912.

There shall be no attempt here to recite history. Suffice, that constantly through the past 51 years the Heppner papers chronicled the happenings of the day religiously as the time and talents of the editors permitted. Militantly, at times, but ever consistently have the newspapers worked for progress in the community, according to the dictates of their consciences. Journalism standards have been raised through the years, a clearer code of ethics established, and better equipment has appeared with which to enhance the presentation of the news, the advertising messages and the opinions of the editors. Newspapering, at one time of questionable value, has become established as a legitimate business, filling a need in the economic world.

Just as a birthday thought, may the chronicles unfolded throughout the new year be of continued growth, progress and happiness within the field of the Gazette Times.

OUR BLUE MONDAY.

Somebody shot White Kitty. She didn't really belong to anyone in particular. We all loved her. She was the neighborhood cat. She came to us last fall, a thin, slab-sided, appealing kitten, winning the hearts of all of us with her affectionate, trusting ways. We all fed her and made over her, and she repaid us all, not only by keeping our woodsheds and houses free of mice and rats, but with her affection. She loved us all and we loved her.

Today she was found stretched out with a bullet hole in her side. She had crept home to die. Her wounded side had been chewed in her agony. Today there is no White Kitty to rub around our ankles as we hang up our clothes. We will miss her peeping through the kitchen window as she sits on the lowest limb of the tree just outside. A little boy will wait in vain for White Kitty to come and play with him. We are all blue today—some one shot White Kitty.—Contributed.

HARDMAN

By LUCILLE FARRENS. The members of the local Odd Fellows and Rebekahs orders enjoyed an oyster feed and social hour during the regular meeting of the Odd Fellows lodge last Saturday evening. Several out-of-town members were able to be present and an enjoyable time is reported.

The grade and high schools took advantage of the fine spring afternoon last Wednesday and hiked in a body to Rock creek where a picnic lunch was enjoyed. The pleasurable day was marred somewhat by the minor injuries Nona Inskip, fifth grade pupil, received by falling on the rocks and receiving cuts and bruises about the face. Nona was brought back to her home and the wounds were dressed. She is now completely recovered.
