CONTINUE EXPORT ASSOCIATION.

BASED on the showing of North Pacific Grain Growers, Inc., it would seem foolish for the federal government not to continue the North Pacific Emergency Export association through the coming cereal year.

Founded by the Agricultural Adjustment administration the export association was intended to assist in marketing the northwest wheat surplus for the last cereal year at more than the foreign price which was much below the domestic level desired to be maintained by the administration.

To date the association has purchased from farmers more than 23 1/2 million bushels of wheat at an average of 22 cents per bushel above what it has been sold in export, according to North Pacific Grain Growers, Inc., netting the farmers about $5,170,000 more for the wheat so handled than it was worth in the export market.

N. P. G. G. claims that the export association is selling wheat in the foreign market at several cents a bushel higher than could be obtained under any other system of selling. When the association was organized the foreign price was 41 to 43 cents a bushel. The association, refusing to sell for several months, forced the price up to 50 1/2 cents at time of the first sale; received an average price of $5455 a bushel for the first 14 or 15 million bushels sold—all prices f. o. b. northwest terminals.

Commercial publications say the export association has been worth $100,000,000 to wheat producers of the United States. N. P. G. G. says it has certainly been worth far more to the Pacific Northwest than the total expenditure of funds from the processing tax.

If what N. P. G. G. says is true, the Agricultural Adjustment administration is to be commended for its work in this regard, and certainly should be encouraged to continue the export association throughout the coming cereal year.

We don't know how often it is supposed to happen, but we hope Easter doesn't fall on April Fools day again very soon. Morrow county experienced more winter that day than it did all winter.

Honorable mention this week goes to Hotel Heppner. Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Tenney, the managers, added much to the appearance of the hotel and of Willow street when they had the boarded windows neatly painted. All blemishes of Heppner's most recent fire have now been neatly erased.

Rural Electric Study Now on CWA Program

Following up the work of the recently completed rural housing survey, President Roosevelt has ordered a survey to be made of the power resources, the transmission and distribution of electrical energy to consumers, and the utilization of electricity in the same areas covered in the housing study.

This project has been assigned to every state to be financed from CWA funds, and in Oregon has been placed in charge of the Oregon Extension service with F. Earl Price, agricultural engineer, as supervisor in charge. Price was instructed to use the same county engineers employed in the housing survey as far as possible, and he has his force organized and started on the task already. The survey is to be completed by May 1.

The purposes of the study as announced from Washington are first to appraise the possibilities of supplying electric service to additional rural customers, and second to obtain accurate information relative to present rural service and its utilization.

In Oregon the survey will be carried on in Clackamas, Josephine, Jackson, Deschutes, Crook, Gilliam and Sherman counties, though a general summary for the state will also be submitted.
