

Local Happenings

A number of Masons, members of Heppner Lodge No. 69, were in Pendleton on Saturday afternoon and evening to attend the gathering of members of the fraternity from the eastern Oregon district. Some 311 members of the order, representing 83 different lodges of the jurisdiction of eastern Oregon and eastern Washington and from many states from Maine to Alaska, also from Scotland, were present. Going from Heppner were Frank S. Parker, Harry Tamblin, Robert Wightman, Vawter Parker, C. J. D. Bauman, Gay M. Anderson, Walter Blair, Gemmill, Marvin Wightman, J. O. Turner, Spencer Crawford and Vawter Crawford. Ladies accompanying their husbands were Mesdames Gemmill, Anderson, V. Crawford and S. Crawford.

A pleasant affair of Friday evening was the dinner served by the women's class of the Christian Sunday school to the boys of Vawter Crawford's class. These two classes had been in a contest for a number of weeks, based on attendance, and the boys won and were treated to a fine chicken supper. Parents of the boys were invited to attend, and plates were laid for about 40. It was a very pleasing event to the boys, and say, didn't the chicken and fixins' just disappear in a most marvelous fashion. The ladies received the rousing good will of the boys and their teacher for the splendid treat.

A well written editorial can be a complete entertainment program or it can be a source of knowledge. It is the duty of any editorial staff to furnish its readers with opinions and to offer explanations of important questions on topics which might be puzzling to the public in general. But all editorials are not explanations and opinions. Editorials that are entertaining are usually written about commonplace occurrences which the public unwittingly think they know all about. They are, nevertheless, well pleased when a clever editor prints a column of interesting, yet undiscussed, subject matter concerning a place or thing, which heretofore had never been thought of as material suitable to furnish ideas and inspirations for an editorial column.

Lectures to Class

Mr. Morton, manager of the Heppner bank, gave an interesting talk to the American History class last Tuesday. His lecture was given as a supplement to a study of the World War. Mr. Morton saw action in the two big drives of the war, one in the Argonne Forest, the St. Meheil; and the other in Belgium, called the Turnip Drive because of the extensive fields of turnips on the battle field. He was able to tell much about the actual fighting. Mr. Morton did not dwell long on the actual killing of men or the incidents of battle because of the memories that sort of discussion brings back to him. During his talk he traced the course of his campaigns for the class on a map.

He also had many pictures of the places he visited in Europe. Thru Mr. Morton's talk, the American History class gained much information about the war that is not printed in textbooks.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

Dairymen Await Decision On Surplus Control Plan

Agricultural adjustment officials back in Washington, D. C., to review the results of 15 regional meetings dealing with the proposed dairy surplus control plan have before them the almost unanimous endorsement of the basic principles of the plan by representatives of the Pacific Northwest industry as expressed in the Portland conference. The meeting was presided over by William A. Schoenfeld, dean of agriculture at Oregon State college.

Organized opposition to the production control plan, reported to have been active in some of the regional meetings, was not evident at the Portland conference, though there was some opposition, principally from a few who felt that the whole economic system needs a radical overhauling. On final vote limited to actual producing dairymen or their representatives, the vote to favor the plan of production control was in the ratio of six to one.

What the decision will be as to the liquid is fast returning to the use of public laxatives. People have learned that the right dose of a properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It gently helps the average person's bowels back to regularity.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store, ready for use. Member N. R. A.

putting the plan into effect will not be announced until officials complete the examination of the reports from all of the 15 meetings. Federal officials at the Portland meeting were not at all certain that any plan would be launched, as they said the AAA has no desire to force a plan upon the industry or to launch one if the industry is seriously divided in support of it.

Chief modifications of the proposed plan asked by Oregon, Washington and Idaho producers would first lengthen the base period from two to three years in arriving at a dairyman's average production, would use other than processing tax funds to finance the disease control features of the plan, and would strengthen the requirements for a compensatory tax on oleomargarine. The conference also passed a separate resolution addressed directly to the president asking his support for the proposed excise tax on imported vegetable oils.

A number of producers speaking in favor of the proposed plan of reduction in sales of from 10 to 20 per cent, pointed out that there might be some defects in the plan and it might be more difficult to operate than with some other commodities, but that with more cows than ever before, the industry is confronted with a crisis in the form of probable price collapse to unheard-of lows for dairy products unless some form of control is inaugurated quickly.

The effect on general cattle prices of limited purchases of surplus meat on a terminal market has been convincingly shown by a study of the result of government purchases of cattle at North Portland during January and February of this year. The study was made by B. W. Rodenwold, assistant professor of animal husbandry at Oregon State college.

Accurate market figures from original records were studied first for an eight-year period and then for the period in question. After allowing for all normal seasonal fluctuations it was concluded that the government purchases of some 800 beef carcasses for $25,000 had raised the general market level enough to bring an excess return of at least $130,000 to producers of Oregon and Washington during the two-month period. Changes in the Portland price affect this whole area, it was shown. Oregon livestock associations have contended successfully to have relief purchases made in the area where they are to be used.
