20th 4-H Club School at O.S.C. to Break Records

The twentieth annual 4-H club summer school to be held on the Oregon State college campus June 11 to 23 will be the largest ever held in Oregon, with an enrollment at least 20 per cent greater than last year, judging from advance registration reports received at the state club office at Corvallis. For the first time in history every county in the state will be represented.

A number of new features for both boys and girls have been added this year to the already comprehensive program of instruction and recreation for the two-weeks period. These include a course in plant propagation, a practical course in welding as applied to farm machinery, seed cleaning and testing, home-made electric brooders, clothing moths, their life history and control, judging and management of horses, dollar dinners, new methods of vegetable cookery, a glimpse of the activities in the home management houses, and a class in games.

A more extensive recreational program for the afternoons than ever before is being planned, according to H. C. Seymour, state club leader, giving everyone an opportunity to participate in his or her favorite sport. The general assemblies at 1 o'clock each day will be held as usual, with prominent citizens of the state as speakers, and parties, movies, smokeless smokers, and other entertainments to be staged in the evenings. The assembly programs will be broadcast over KOAC, and at some time during their stay on the campus each county delegation will put on a program over that station.

The girls will be housed at Waldor hall again this year, and the boys at the men's dormitory. Any 4-H club boy or girl of 12 years or older who has his or her club project in good shape is eligible to attend. Hundreds of members will attend on scholarships won for outstanding club achievement, others are being sent as delegates of their clubs, and still others have saved their own money to pay the $12 cost of the two weeks session. All railroads and bus lines are offering the boys and girls special rates of 1 cent a mile for the round trip.

Drouth Effects Reviewed By OSC Extension Service

Rainfall so far in 1934 is the lowest ever recorded in some of the central and north central states and drouth has become serious for grain crops, hay, pastures, and dairy production, according to a review of the agricultural situation just released by the Oregon State college extension service.

Precipitation from January 1 to May 1 was the lowest ever recorded by the weather bureau in the Dakotas, Minnesota, and Illinois; second lowest ever recorded for Indiana, Missouri and Ohio; third lowest for Kansas; fourth lowest for Iowa and Nebraska, and fifth lowest for Montana, says the report.

Except in the northwest, hay crops have had a poor start and the condition on May 1 for the country as a whole was substantially lower than on the same date in any of the past 50 years, according to the circular.

Carryover of hay in Oregon is above average, but in the dairy sections of the north central states holdover stocks are less than half of a year ago. The situation in several of these north central states is acute.

Pastures are the poorest in 50 years and with practically no hay in some sections, cows are being maintained on straw and such feeds as are supplied by relief agencies. This situation has already affected the production of milk adversely, says the circular, so that production per cow averaged nearly 2 pounds per day less than on the corresponding date of the last 5 years.

In commenting on the fruit situation, the circular says prospects are for fair production of fruits in the northwest, which should find a better outlet owing to the reduction in the eastern crop and anticipated improvement in purchasing power of the public.

The pea crop of Oregon may be somewhat less than last year but the apple crop in excess of the light output of 1933. The Pacific Coast dried prune crop is expected to be less than normal. Carryover of 1933 crop prunes is also less than normal.

O.S.C. STUDENT WINS AWARD. For the third time in the eight years it has been granted, the national prize for the best technical paper submitted by students from the 113 college branches of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers has been won by an O. S. C. student. Tom Wagner of Portland has just been awarded the first prize of $100 for his paper dealing with a new method of measuring current and power in communication circuits. In the regional competition Oregon State students have taken first place for the six consecutive years that awards were made in the northwest states.

CALL FOR WARRANT. Warrant No. 209 of School District No. 5, Morrow County, Oregon, will be paid on presentation to the district clerk. ECHO PALMATEER, Clerk, Morgan, Oregon.
