the immense expanse of wheat fields. This undoubtedly gave him a conception of the vast amount of tonnage to be moved by river transportation.

Mr. Notson said that while President Roosevelt did not give definite promise of the sealocks on his visit to Bonneville, he said enough to lead everyone to expect his announcement, which came soon after, that the sealocks would be built.

"Building of the locks means moving the seaboard one hundred miles farther inland to The Dalles, and an attendant saving in transportation costs to the people of the interior which will largely mean the difference between success and failure for hundreds of farmers," he said. "Of course power is important, but the demand for it will largely be brought about through the development occasioned by lower transportation costs."

In celebration of the placing of sealocks at Bonneville, Mr. Notson had composed a verse to be sung to the tune of "Marching Through Georgia," which was sung by Dr. R. C. Lawrence, J. O. Turner and John Anglin with the club joining in the chorus. This verse expresses Mr. Notson's feelings on the matter:

WHEN WE OPENED THE RIVER. Bring the good old bugle, boys, We'll sing another song; Sing it as we used to sing it, A half a million strong, Sing it with a spirit, That will help our cause along. While we're opening the River.

CHORUS Hurrah! hurrah! we'll bring the jubilee! Hurrah! hurrah! for the good times there will be. Let us sing the chorus from Asotin to the Sea.

While we're opening the River, A seaport at The Dalles will be, Then surely, surely will, When the sealocks have built In the dam at Bonneville, And the steamships from the sea Come steaming up the hill, When we've opened the River.

CHORUS And the town of Arlington, Once known as Alkali, Will come out with life and drum And float their business high, To greet the boats and barges As they go sailing by, When we've opened the River.

CHORUS Umatilla will wake up, As in the days of yore, When the boats and barges Tie up along the shore, And property will come In quantities galore, When we've opened the River.

CHORUS Once again on Pasco, boys, An eye we'll surely keep; We'll see the wheat along the wharf Piled in a mighty heap, For the water on the river front Will be both still and deep, When we've opened the River.

CHORUS Every farmer in the land Will see a happy smile, When on those mighty rivers There's a steamboat every mile, And in great fleets the barges Adown the rivers file, When we've opened the River.

CHORUS sprinkler which has been in use since and which will be used from now on through the show. The concessions committee has signed up a large number of eating and other concessions, aside from those to be on the carnival midway. The housing committee is lining up all available rooms in town—everything is being looked after to properly entertain what are expected to be the largest crowds ever to come to Rodeo.

FARM CREDIT SET-UP

the Farm Credit administration is not disbursement of government funds, but to provide machinery whereby individual borrowers, who as individuals cannot go to investors, are provided with machinery to organize groups operating soundly so that they will be able to get the funds they require at lowest possible rate with sound business practice. The fundamental principle is the fact that these organizations operate on the cooperative plan.

"This system has proved its soundness in the result of operation of the Federal land banks. I think their record has been one which reflects great credit on the farmers and management. In spite of the fact that they got operating before the 'bust' of 1921, they were able to carry on successfully for twelve years of declining farm prices, and were brought into a precarious position only by the practically complete breakdown of agriculture at the bottom of the depression. We believe this plan is sound and it will gain the support of farmers and those who are interested in agriculture."

Before the FCA brought all federal credit agencies under one coordinated supervision, regional agricultural credit corporations had been set up to perform a temporary emergency lending service to farmers during the period of rural banking distress early in the depression. These corporations were purely government direct to farmers. With the passing of the emergency period and the establishment of local borrower-stockholder PCAs under supervision of the FCA, the old credit corporations will now be liquidated in an orderly way. This was one of the subjects of Governor Myer's visit. He declared, however, that in the conversion from RACC to PCA no farmer willing to "play fair" would be denied credit.

Emergency Seed Loan

Limit Raised to $400

Advances to farmers in both primary and secondary drouth counties for purchasing winter wheat seed, rye, or barley, have been raised to a maximum of $400 out of the emergency crop loan fund supervised by the Farm Credit administration. Increase to the $400 maximum also applies to summer fallowing needs, but in no case may the new loan, together with previous advances this year, exceed a gross of $750 to any one individual borrower. These loans will continue to be made until September 15.

Applications are made through county drouth committees, of which the county agent is usually the secretary. These committees are also handling applications for feed and hay loans in drouth-hit areas where emergency aid is required to help farmers carry through.

CARD OF THANKS. For the kind expressions of sympathy extended us in the bereavement of our baby daughter, we give our heartfelt thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hill.

Feeder Loans Offered At 5 Percent Interest

Farmers and livestock operators who have adequate feed and are qualified to carry through some winter feeding may take advantage of a liberal financing program offered by local production credit associations of the Farm Credit administration.

Large numbers of feeder cattle and sheep are now coming into northwest stockyards from drouth areas. Production credit associations are willing to advance the full purchase price for such animals, and in some instances will also include finances for transporting feeder stock to the borrower's farm or feed lot, announces Otto F. Allinger, secretary of the Production Credit corporation of Spokane, which has general supervision over the northwest's 31 local cooperative credit associations, now extending a complete crop and livestock lending service to farmers.

Borrowers will be permitted to make their own selection of feeders at the yards, after executing the proper papers through the secretary of their local production credit association. The rate of interest is but five per cent at the present time. Ample leeway will be granted on maturity dates so the feeder can complete his program without being crowded out of the market. Application for such feeder loans should be made immediately to the local production credit association secretary-treasurer. Because of reduced feed supplies throughout the middlewest, the outlook for feeding appears better this year than for some time past.

CARD OF THANKS. We wish to thank the many neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown at the time of our bereavement in the death of Mrs. Ada Julia Woodward, and for the many beautiful floral offerings.

THE FAMILY.
