Attending the funeral of the late Mrs. J. W. Becket in Portland last Thursday were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Becket, Charles Becket and family, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Anderson, Mrs. Daisy Shively, Harold Becket, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Driskell, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Becket had been in Portland with Mr. Becket's parents for three weeks. Six grandsons of Mrs. Becket were pallbearers. Services were held from Holman & Lutz chapel with Rev. W. O. Miller, pioneer minister of eastern Oregon, officiating.

Mrs. W. C. Hayes and Miss Maxine Weston, a friend from Portland, visited the first of the week at the home of Mrs. Hayes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Nickerson. They left today, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Nickerson, Miss Weston returning to her home at Portland, and Mrs. Hayes going to McMinnville to join her husband who is with the U. S. Geodetic survey, and Mr. and Mrs. Nickerson to enjoy a vacation at the coast and on the Rogue river.

Arthur W. Dykstra of Halsey, Ressie G. Dykstra and wife of Corvallis and Ed Dykstra of Sheridan were week-end visitors in Heppner. They were looking after the interests of the estate of their father, the late Geo. W. Dykstra, of which A. W. Dykstra is the executor. These people report a very dry season in the Willamette valley and production averages have been materially reduced over former years.

Good living right now with increasing profits as you become acquainted with customers and business. We finance responsible persons. Experience not necessary. Apply by letter to McConnon and Company, Dept. WBP765, Winona, Minnesota.

Jas. T. Ayers of Pine City, who has been absent from home since the 5th of July, under the care of a physician at Clarkston, Wash., was able to return home this week. He was under treatment for the removal of a growth on one of his feet and has gotten rid of the trouble, so we are informed by his daughter, Mrs. Burl Coxen of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ridings are guests at the home of Mrs. Ridings' parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Clark, during Rodeo, coming up from Eugene. Immediately after the Rodeo they will leave for New York where Mr. Ridings will teach in junior college while each take work at Columbia university.

Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Ferguson and their grandson, Jimmy Ferguson, departed on Saturday for their home at Gold Beach, after spending a few weeks in Heppner. Mrs. Ferguson, who recently visited a sister at Willits, California, was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Chas. Ritchie, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Winters and baby daughter arrived at Heppner Monday evening from Eugene and have been busy since getting located for the opening of school. Mr. Winters will be on the faculty of the Heppner school for the coming year.

A. L. Ayers of Portland is spending a day or two at Heppner while looking after some business matters. His visits up this way are somewhat few and far between these later years, but he is just the same old Al as of yore.

Noah Clark, Eight Mile wheat-raiser, was looking after some matters of business in this city Saturday. He is now "batching it" while Mrs. Clark is on a visit east with the relatives in Illinois.

W. H. French of Blue Mountain farm on the Heppner-Spray road south of Hardman was a business visitor in town yesterday.

Lawrence Redding of Eight Mile was doing business in the metropolis of Morrow county Saturday. He has finished with the wheat harvest and while the yield was somewhat under normal seasons, he is not complaining.

Oregon Farm Situation Changed by Big Drouth

Farm outlook information covering current and prospective production and marketing situation for poultry products, dairy products, lambs and wool, beef cattle, hogs, fall-sown grain, and clover seed has just been prepared by economists in the O. S. C. extension service. Commodity notes on hay, feed grains, flaxseed, beans, hops, potatoes, apples, prunes, walnuts and filberts are included.

"Of outstanding importance to Oregon farmers at this time is the tremendous drop in national hay and feed grain production, coupled with short pastures and range and other feeds," say the economists. "This will undoubtedly result in a greater slaughter of cattle and calves, and other adjustments in livestock, than at any time for decades."

A marked reduction in hog production and a smaller lamb crop in 1935 is certain to occur, says the circular, copies of which may be obtained from county agricultural agents. Except for higher costs, at least until new feed is available in 1935, the poultry outlook would be quite favorable and the dairy outlook somewhat better than for several years. Feed supplies will be very low this winter, but no general shortage of human food is expected. The clover seed crop is very poor this year and carryover stocks are smaller than usual, the report points out. Prices are advancing, especially for good quantity seed of which the supply is expected to be especially light.

Production of feed grains in the whole country will be only about 65 per cent of average, and of hay about 68 per cent. Market prospects for fall-sown feed grain which can be harvested in 1935 are good as stocks of feed grain are expected to be low by that time.

Index figures of farm price levels show a sharp upward trend during recent weeks, although yet generally far below parity. The general average of farm prices must still rise about 50 per cent to reach parity, according to the indexes given in the circular. Some of this disparity between prices received and prices paid by farmers may be wiped out by next year owing to short crops this year.

AAA WHEAT CHIEF VISITS. George E. Farrell, chief of the wheat section of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, was scheduled to visit Oregon August 30 to confer with officials at Oregon State college and others connected with the operation of the wheat control plan in this state. The wheat plan has been much the most important among the AAA projects as far as Oregon farmers are concerned, and has been handled in an expeditious manner satisfactory to nearly all connected with it, say wheat men and extension service officials in this state.

Noted Legal Authorities Coming for Law Session

Eugene, Ore.—A record attendance at the Oregon State Bar association, which this year will meet jointly, September 6, 7, and 8, with the Pacific Coast Institute of Law on the campus of the University of Oregon, is assured, according to information received here from Ralph H. King, president of the bar association. Mr. King, with Wayne L. Morse, dean of the school of law here, is making up the program of the session, which will not only draw lawyers and others interested from all parts of Oregon, but from the entire country as well.

The session is certain to be unusually interesting, and may even be featured by some warm debates. It was declared by Dean Morse. One of the "headliners" of the institute will be Karl N. Lywellyn, internationally famous for his liberal views on constitutional and other phases of law. He has already clashed with some of the keenest legal minds in the country and, according to Dean Morse, is ready anytime to "tangle" with his more conservative colleagues.

The field of criminology, one that is drawing an increasing number of outstanding lawyers, will receive considerable attention. Newman F. Baker, professor of law at Northwestern University and managing director of the Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology, will head sessions in this topic.

Other outstanding national authorities on law who will take part include M. R. Kirkwood, dean of the school of law at Stanford University and president of the American Association of Law Schools; Dr. E. A. Gilmore, president of the State University of Iowa and dean of the school of law there, and Albert J. Harno, dean of the law school at the University of Illinois. A wide variety of social and recreational events will be arranged by the members of the state bar, and the most interesting as well as enjoyable state session ever held by this group is anticipated.

50 Minerals Described In OSC Mining Leaflet

Anyone in Oregon with a bent for hunting or collecting minerals may obtain free a simple aid to the identification of those to be found in Oregon. Such a guide has just been compiled by J. H. Batcheller, secretary of the Oregon State Mining board and professor of mining engineering at Oregon State college. The mimeograph leaflet lists a simple set of equipment for use in identifying minerals, gives easily followed directions for their use and include a key for determination of minerals. Description is included for 53 minerals, 50 of which may be found in various parts of Oregon. Several others, such as chromite, hematite and manganese oxides are included, as it would be greatly to the advantage of the state if these should be found, says Professor Batcheller.

The leaflet is free on request, except for six cents required for postage, inasmuch as no funds have been provided for the mining board for this purpose. Several federal mining publications are also available from Pro-essor Batcheller's office, one of which deals with small scale placer mining methods. It includes maps showing placer mining districts in western states and gives detailed instructions for building simple placer mining equipment. Another circular discusses the legendary white metal and its so-called ore.
