LAW TRENDS CITED BEFORE LIONS CLUB

J. O. Turner Reports Bar and Institute Conference at Eugene.

THEORIES OPPOSED

Lawyers Do Not Swallow All That Professors Say; John Day Caravan Backed; Guests Speak

Some trends in law enforcement and administration of justice as in-dicated in the joint meeting of the Oregon Bar association and the Pa-val, similar to that last year, is excific Coast Institute of Law and Ad-ministration of Justice, were cited before the Lions club Monday lun-Copy for the county teachers' dicheon by J. O. Turner, local attor-ney, who attended the meeting, held at Eugene the end of last week.

Noted educators in law and so cial sciences from many leading universities of the country were speakers on the program, bringing conference the leading thoughts in their fields. Among the guest speakers was Karl N. Llew-ellyn, professor of law at Columbia university, New York City, who spoke on "The Constitution as an meed of revision of the constitution to meet the changed conditions existing today, was not swallowed in entirety, Mr. Turner said. Oregon lawyers on the discussion panel took lively exception to some of his contentions. Legal minds of this state also were loath to accept another. also were loath to accept another theory advanced by one of the speakers that a recodification of lights and Mrs. Lester White; publication distribution of lights and Mrs. Lester White; publication of lights and Mrs. Lester White; publ the laws by leading legal minds of the country should be made and ters. Instances were cited where newspapers wielded political influobtain confessions or statements from criminals before trials, thus interfering with the wheels of justice. It was also cited that in such cases as that of Dillinger, the printing of every move of the criminal retarded law enforcement by advising the criminal as well as the public of the moves being made by officers and thus assiting him in evading arrest.

Laurence Winter, high school principal and head of the physical education department, was introuced to the club by Supt. E. F. Bloom. As a newcomer to Heppner this year, Mr. Winter expressed appreciation of the warm reception given him and Mrs. Winter to the community and cited what he believed to be fair prospects for a good grid team this fall. He said he was largely influenced in coming to Heppner by the good reputation of the local physical education department, which, he said ranks along with the larger high schools

The club voted to aid the formation of a caravan to visit the Grant County fair at John Day on Heppner day, Saturday, Sept. 22, and Jasper Crawford was named to represent the club in helping to organize such a caravan, being sponsored by the Rodeo association.

G. W. Perrow of Spokane, and Francis Wade, assistant attorney general of Oregon, in the city on business before circuit court, were introduced as guests and gave a few words of greeting. Ellis Thomson and Miss Margaret Notson assisted with the musical program, Mr Thomson singing two soles and Miss Notson leading a light musi-cal stunt, with Mrs. J. O. Turner accompanying.
