Oregon estates contribute an average of more than $500,000 to the support of state government thru inheritance taxes which aggregated $7,350,326.79 in the past 14 years. A report just compiled by State Treasurer Holman shows that in the boom year of 1929 inheritance tax collections totalled $1,000,311.69 and the year following exceeded $970,000. In spite of depreciated value of stocks, bonds and real estate constituting the bulk of most estates, inheritance tax collections during the past three years have averaged $491,000 a year.

(Oregon Democrat)

THIS is an editorial addressed to the citizens of Eastern Oregon: to the wheat growers, the cattlemen and sheepmen, the homesteaders, the miners, the men of commerce and the men who toil in the nelds. For the past two years you have been represented in congress by a man who has more practical knowledge of felowship with you, unquestioned sincerty and a greater ability to help your vast district than any man who has served you in Washington, D. C., in many years. Walter M. Pierce has grown up with the Eastern Oregon country. He knows its resources, its potentialities and its needs. And he knows you, the pioneers, the homebuilders, the Empire builders if you please, east of the Cascades. With you he has worked and prospered. With you he has toiled and gone broke. In good times and bad times he has been with you, one of you, and giving all of his talents and his energies to the battle to improve your conditions and bring about the full development of your

You elected him to conress when you voted for the New Deal. Walter M. Pierce has done his part and more in bringing a New Deal. His wise counsels in Washington have been invited and applauded by administration heads. His knowledge and abilities have received full appreciation. He holds the high regard of President Roosevelt, not only for his 100 per cent co-operation in the chief executive's program, but for his intense devotion to Democratic principles and for his sound and vigorous representation of the people of his district. Congressman Pierce's deep understanding of the money question and the farm question have been of particular value to the administration. His rugged patriotism, both to nation and to the Eastern Oregon empire will bring lasting and unmeasurable benefits to his colleagues and constituents.

You who live and work east of the mountains have true and able representation in Washington now. In Walter M. Pierce you have a congressman who has proven himself. Keep that representation by returning him to congress in November.
