Let's Quit Killing

Oregon's careless toll—deaths, injuries and property damages arising out of automobile accidents—continued to mount during October, according to final reports this week from the Oregon State Motor association, one of the sponsors of the statewide "Let's Quit Killing" safety campaign.

For the first ten months of this year there have been 16,786 accidents, as compared to 15,653 for the same period last year; 4,002 persons injured this year and 3,343 in 1933; 251 persons killed in 1934 and 199 in the same period of last year. Accident death records for January to October, inclusive, this year, have already exceeded by two fatalities the record for the whole twelve months of 1933, it was pointed out, indicating that a new all-time high record for motor car killings will be set before the end of 1934.

Comparative records for Morrow county, for October, 1933 and 1934, are as follows:

Last year, 4 accidents, 3 injuries, no fatalities.

This year, 4 accidents, 3 injuries no fatalities.

As a constructive step in reducing highway hazards, sponsors of the "Let's Quit Killing" drive are this week calling upon all garage and service station attendants in the state to make a special check of the lights of every car they service, to determine if both headlights are operating. A concerted movement of this kind, it is believed, in conjunction with the plan advanced last week of establishing a custom of motorists' blinking their own lights when meeting a "one-eyed" auto, will aid in removing this menace from the highways. In many cases, safety officials believe, drivers of cars with only one light are unaware of this condition, and will correct it if notified.

These suggestions were made in line with the current two-week period of the safety drive, which is directed against defective equipment of all kinds.

German Boys Will Read Oregon Writer's Tales

University of Oregon, Eugene, Nov. 27.—Hitler youth in Germany may soon become familiar with pioneer and present day life in Oregon, as well as many features of this state, it was announced here by Dr. F. G. G. Schmidt, head of the department of German at the University of Oregon. Dr. Schmidt has just completed a translation of "Marooned on Crater Lake," by Alfred Powers, dean of the General Extension division.

The stories, which include adventures of the Old Oregon Trail, Skyline Trail, Umpqua Trail and others, will first be published in various boys' magazines in Germany, it is stated. They will then be issued in book form by a Leipzig publishing house.

"Marooned on Crater Lake," since its publication in 1931, has acquired a reputation as a classic because of its style and ingenious plots. It is on the school library of several states, and a former Japanese student of the university is working on a translation of the book into his language. One of the stories, "The Vanquished Riders" is also being dramatized for presentation over radio station KOAC soon.
