School Bill Dead. The Session's End. Redistricting Out.

SALEM.—The administration's county unit school bill is dead, defeated by a single vote in the senate when it came up for final passage on Friday afternoon.

The governor, on the other hand, charged the Grange lobby with defeat of the bill and in a statement issued just prior to the final vote on the measure expressed his resentment of the activities of the Grange delegation who, he said, should be at home plowing their fields instead of at the capitol sticking their bills into affairs which were no concern of theirs.

The Best-Allen junior college bill passed the senate this week after having been previously defeated. Around the capitol lobbies it was openly rumored that Senator Best had reversed himself on the county unit school bill in exchange for enough votes to put his own bill across.

Redistricting of the state for legislative purposes seems to be "out" until after another census is taken. Attorney General Van Winkle has ruled that the legislature exhausted its powers in this direction by its redistricting acts of 1931 and 1933, the one changing a number of representative districts and the other creating a separate district of Tillamook and Lincoln counties which up to this time have been teamed in with Washington and Yamhill counties.

Passage of the Thomas bill prohibiting the taking or paying of money for petition peddling is expected to have a decidedly deterrent effect on the business of promoting initiative measures particularly since the profit motif has been entirely removed. The measure represents one of the major reforms of the present session. Free bridges on the Coast highway have been made contingent upon a gift of $4,200,000 by the Public Works administration for construction of the Troutdale-Cascade locks section of the upper Columbia river highway.

Election of county school superintendents hereafter will be on a non-partisan basis, providing the governor signs the bill which has already passed the House and Senate.

It now looks as though unemployment relief and old age pensions would be financed through a direct appropriation which, of course, will increase the general fund deficit. It would, however, avoid any new taxes to which the governor is opposed although several measures are still percolating around including a tax on amusements and another on luxuries.
