SECURITY IS ISSUE

SAYS D. S. C. HEAD

President Peavy Views Country's Condition Before Lions.

PEOPLE MUST THINK

Revolution Depicted; Goodman Bids Adieu; Barlow New Secretary of Commercial Club.

People of the United States cannot escape the problem of providing security for the unemployed and aged, whether that security be the Townsend plan or the porchhouse, President G. W. Peavy of Oregon State college, declared in an address before the Lions club at its Monday noon luncheon.

"We are going through a revolution today, and whether that revolution be bloodless or not depends upon the broadmindedness of our people and their ability to keep a middle of the road course," he said in prefaceing a discussion of conditions leading up to the "present disaster," and a statement of some of the problems to be solved before economic and social stability are reached. Provision of security he gave as one of the problems, asserting that history has taught us that people can be oppressed only to a certain point and then they can stand it no longer.

The problem of security cannot be escaped because changing conditions have forced the issue. Arrival of the machine age in the last few decades has brought more unemployment while producing 30 per cent more materials than consumption demands. New frontiers for invasion no longer exist, and possibilities of market expansion have been narrowed through high tariff walls. Interdependence of the people has become more pronounced. We must now learn to live within our limits, becoming more cooperative, and more mindful of our neighbor, he said.

The problem demands widespread thought because the social engineer has failed to keep pace with the scientist, the technologist and the power engineer in the new era.

Disclaiming any sympathy for Huey Long, President Peavy declared that people should not take him lightly. With 15,000,000 people in the land seeking social security, the "Kingfish" has a ready audience. He already has a large following through the middle west from Louisiana north, and when he made the statement in Iowa this week that he held that state in the palm of his hand there was enough of truth to give the situation serious aspect, the speaker declared. But credence was not given the idea that this country was ready for a Mussolini, a Hitler, or a Stalin, such as Huey Long seeks to be.

President Peavy is not a large man. But his keen eyes, firmly set though kindly wreathed mouth; his protuberant forehead crowned with thinned snowy hair, and his heavy, vibrant voice reflected professional wisdom. His straight-from-the-shoulder manner of speaking and well managed humor denoted human understanding. All of which was reflected in the tenseness of his audience.

He dropped into the role of teacher as he explained causes and effects, defining the roles of scientist, technologist and power engineer. His deduction that need for special training a proportion of our people for public service, now deficient in higher educational curricula, paralleled well his earlier explanation of the state higher education set-up (he termed it a greater University of Oregon) aimed to provide more rounded educational facilities.

Contrary to general public opinion, the higher educational institutions are working in complete harmony under the new order, he declared, while paying tribute to President Boyer of the university as a fine, well-educated gentleman, for whom he holds the greatest respect and admiration.

Dean T. Godman, retiring commercial club secretary, bade adieu to the club, expressing regret on leaving the many friends made here in his many years of labor. He leaves tomorrow for Salem to take up his new duties as assistant in the accounting department, office of secretary of state. Chas. W. Barlow was elected to succeed him as S. E. Notson presided over a short session of the commercial club.

Lucy E. Rodgers, county school superintendent, made a short announcement of the May celebration by schools of the county in Heppner tomorrow, and C. J. D. Bauman, club president, named Henry Aiken, Earl Eskelson and F. B. Nickerson as a committee to cooperate in staging a free luncheon for visiting pupils, parents and teachers tomorrow evening.

Other guests included Judge C. L. Sweek and C. W. Smith, both former club presidents; Miss Evelyn Humphreys, president of Business and Professional Women club; James Conley, Portland attorney; J. F. Walsh, Portland lumberman, and Walter Blackburn, new proprietor of the Ford garage. Billy Schwarz and Joe Gordan pleased with saxophone duet numbers, accompanied by Miss Marjorie Parker, C. J. D. Bauman, S. E. Notson and

Home Improvement Aid

Worthy of Investigation

L. Van Marter and Ralph Jackson attended a meeting in Walla Walla Tuesday evening held for the purpose of explaining the Federal Housing act. Hardware and implement dealers of Oregon and Washington, banking officials, federal officials and representatives of Oregon and Washington agricultural colleges were present. From the meeting the following county men received information which led them to believe that this county should investigate possibilities of the plan.

So far in the two states more than $5,000,000 has been expended and more than a million men given employment under the set-up. The act makes money available for any home improvements to benefit living and health conditions. It was brought out that about 74 per cent of the farm homes have outside toilets, and about half of them have no running water in the house. Statistics were quoted showing that in homes without running water birth mortality rates are four times as high as those with running water. Loans are available to provide modern toilet and water facilities.

Pierce Reports Headway on Watershed Project

That no additional laws are needed to permit the national forest to take over the Willow creek watershed, and that money for the purpose is probably available, was conveyed to J. L. Gault, receiver for First National Bank of Heppner, in a letter from Rep. Walter M. Pierce this morning.

Mr. Pierce wrote that he had taken the matter up with E. A. Sherman, associate forester, U. S. D. A., and together they had come to this conclusion. Mr. Sherman had just received the various memorials and petitions from Morrow county and appeared to be much impressed, the letter stated.

LEXINGTON

By BEULAH NICHOLS

Mrs. Emma Breshears, postmistress of this city, has received an official invitation to attend the celebration of the 500th anniversary of the settlement of the state of Connecticut, which will be held there this summer. The history of the colony, including the two outstanding events of its early days—the adoption of "The Fundamental Orders" in 1639, which really marked the beginning of constitutional government in this country, and the successful hiding of the charter by Charles the Second when the demand for its surrender was made in 1687—is replete with interesting and dramatic incidents.

The spirit pervading all of the celebration is that of democracy and freedom—ideals for which Connecticut has stood fourscore years since her pioneer days. From April to the end of September, more than one hundred cities and towns will stage enthusiastic celebrations, reunions, home-visiting days, and the like.

Connecticut is the spiritual mother of many states beyond the confines of the original thirteen colonies. From her came pioneer stock that crossed the Alleghenies to spread civilization in the wilderness. From Ohio the descendants of her first settlers passed on to the Pacific coast. Thus was established a conquest of ideals, if not of territory.

Miss Eula McMillan, bride-elect, was honored at a miscellaneous shower on Saturday afternoon when Mrs. Golda Leathers, Mrs. Lester White and Miss Juanita Leathers were hostesses at Mrs. Leathers' home. Forty-four guests were present and twenty-eight others sent gifts. Delicious refreshments of chicken salad, wafers and coffee were served at the close of a pleasant afternoon.

The Lexington Home Economics club will meet on Thursday afternoon, May 9, at the home of Mrs. Alta Cutsforth.

A small fire broke out in the shop at the Shelby Graves ranch Tuesday morning. An alarm was turned in and the local fire fighting equipment was rushed to the scene but the blaze had already been extinguished when it arrived. Very little damage was done.

Edith Tucker who is attending the Eastern Oregon Normal school in La Grande spent a few days of this week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Tucker.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Devine are spending the week in Portland. A dance is being given at the hall Saturday night for the benefit of the senior class of the high school. Gladys Graves spent the week end at her home in Boardman.

Wilbur Tucker is a visitor in Portland this week.

The regular meeting of Lexington Scout Troop No. 62 was called to order at 7:30 Tuesday evening by Scoutmaster Gillis. The business meeting lasted fifteen minutes and in that time it was decided that each scout should bring a nickel to scout meeting every time to defray expenses of the troop. It was decided that the scout troop should have a booth at a 4th of July celebration if the celebration was close enough to allow it. Tests were passed by three scouts. Kenneth Jackson

Joe Belanger were elected delegates to the state Lions convention at The Dalles, June 1-2-3.

THIRD CAMPAIGN ON TO SELL OREGON

Buying Public Urged to Test State's Products Week of May 3 to 11.

STORES COOPERATE

Advertising Manager Cites Widespread Benefits; Enlarged Industries Provide More Payrolls.

Over two hundred salesmen, representatives of the various manufacturing and producing industries of Oregon, responded to the call of the Oregon Manufacturers association for a kick-off meeting to the third state-wide campaign of "Let's Sell Oregon to Ourselves" which starts tomorrow, and which has the whole-hearted cooperation of the business men of Heppner. Local business houses are featuring Oregon products in their windows and shoppers are urged to "Buy—Test—Try Oregon Products."

Will R. Lewis, Oregon Mutual Life Insurance company, presided as chairman, introducing as his opening speaker, Mac Wilkins, in charge of the advertising campaign.

"When we talk about Oregon industries, we talk about generalities," said Mac Wilkins. "Oregon does not appreciate those things which are her own. Often I have heard the question, what is the matter with us. What is the matter with Oregon? The answer is that we have everything. Our fields, our streams, and our rugged mountains are filled to abundance with the finest on this earth. It is only a matter of our selling Oregon to ourselves. Here is one place where we can get together. We can sell the state to all of the state. The only thing that is wrong is that we do not appreciate what we have."

"Another trouble is that we did not see the value of advertising. In our last two campaigns we found that as we expanded our advertising, so we expanded in gross business. The first campaign reached 72 papers. The second included over 100 newspapers of the state, and as we increased our budget, just so much did the manufacturer increase his business."

"Our third campaign, May 3 to 11, will be even greater. One hundred and ten newspapers, radio stations, schools, women's clubs, chambers of commerce, and civic clubs are all lined up and ready to start work."

"Bill Gates, down in Medford, features Oregon products every week. He has made a success of it. For example, he increased his monthly sales of Golden West coffee from 1500 pounds to over 7000 pounds. We want the cooperation of every salesman in the state to help other dealers to do a job like this. It means payrolls to Oregon, and payrolls mean business to every merchant. Everyone hopes to get results. These results can only be obtained by cooperation. The better showing we make in our campaigns, the greater the business for the manufacturers, the producers, the farmers, the employees—to all; and the greater the opportunity for employment for every citizen."

Law for Farmer-Hauling Gives Load Restrictions

With wood hauling season just starting many farmer-truckers may be interested in knowing their rights under the truck and bus act passed at the last legislature. In this regard a resume from the secretary of state's office reads:

"Under subdivision (d) the infrequent transportation by one farmer for another was formerly restricted to trucks of one and one-half tons or less capacity. This restriction has been removed so that one farmer or orchardist may transport for another farmer or orchardist in his immediate neighborhood the products of the farm or orchard in any quantity but not to exceed five trips in any one month or twenty-five trips in any one year. In addition, any farmer or orchardist may transport any of such products or commodities not exceeding 700 pounds in weight at any one time. However, if this particular service is rendered the person will be required, upon request of any state police officer, to sign a statement disclosing the points of origin and destination, weight of load, compensation received, if any, consignee with address, and such other information as may be required."

BROTHER DIES.

CLEAN-UP SATURDAY.

In reporting the city clean-up day last week, the date was inadvertently given as May 5. It was not the intention of Mayor Smead to set the day for Sunday, as May 5 happens to be. The official clean-up day was intended for Saturday, May 4, and the trucks will call on Monday (next), May 6, to haul away all garbage trash and what-not placed at street curbs in proper containers.

SCHOOL OPERETTA TO BE GIVEN SOON

"An Old Spanish Custom" Replete With Dances, Jokes, Songs in Many Nationalities.

Imagine a beautiful Spanish garden of roses, wisteria, shrubs, trees and hundreds of other kinds of plant life. Such is the scene that greets you when you first enter the banquet hall of Don Jose's casa in southern California, as seen in "An Old Spanish Custom," high school operetta to be presented soon.

This is the home of the first Don Reivera, who had sailed two centuries ago from Spain to the wilderness to make his new home. Now it seems that through the villainy of his lawyer, Don Jose, last scion of the first old family is about to lose the rancho.

It is then that he, Don Jose, takes on the life of a very silly, almost insane person. The part of Don Jose is played by Bill Cochell.

There are more than a dozen parts to the operetta. It is impossible to mention everything. There are dances, songs, jokes, and dozens of things to create humor.

The operetta is not only Spanish but represents other countries as well. When you see the graceful Chinese dances you are almost sure you're in China; then suddenly you see an Irish jig and hear the brogue of Pat and Maggie and you are certain that you are in Ireland, then suddenly the scenes change and you are in Spain again. The seniors and senioritas are gaily dancing and enjoying the lovely "California Night."

BAD THIRD INNING MARS GOOD GAME

Heppner Loses to Fossil, 8-1, Tho Earned Run Score 1-0.

ROBERTSON IN BOX

Old Team Mate Works Good in Spite of Sore Arm; Wheeler Lads Come Here Sunday.

Heppner 1 at Fossil 8, Arlington 17 at Ione 7, Condon 14 at Blacklock 0.

Where the Teams Play Next Sunday.
Fossil at Heppner, Ione at Arlington, Blacklock at Condon.

Except for a diabolical third inning when a flock of Heppner bobbles allowed five unearned Fossil scores, the game at Fossil last Sunday was plenty interesting. Analysis of the score sheet shows that the Wheeler county lads made one earned run to none for the locals, though the actual tally was 8-1.

Robertson, who got his early baseball training in Heppner, blew into town Saturday from Toledo and was prevailed upon to start the chucking. He did a nice job withal, allowing but eight scattered hits, not costly had the support been airtight. Unfortunately he took one of Kelsay's hot ones on the pitching arm when at bat in the second inning, and though it hurt plenty he toughed it out until the seventh when he was relieved by Thomson. Kelsay worked in fine form throughout for Fossil, allowing but four scattered hits while striking out nine batters and walking but one.

At the very start Evans made things look rosy for Heppner when he stepped up as lead-off and clouted a three-bagger. He was caught at home attempting to score standing up, as R. Massey grounded out to first and A. Massey fouled out to catcher.

Heppner's lone score came in the third. Ferguson led off with a single. Evans singled next up. Ferguson was caught at home attempting to score standing up, as R. Massey arrived at first on first baseman's error. Evans then scored on A. Massey's fielder's choice as Catcher Fisk dropped the ball. Thomson flied out to second baseman, and Hayes went out pitcher to first to end it.

After the third inning, only three Heppner batsmen faced Kelsay each inning, except for the eighth, when Gilman made it four by laying out a single.

A hit and three errors gave Fossil a run in the second inning. Then they scored five in the third on one single, a base on balls, a hit batsman and several bobbles. Their earned run came in the fifth on a triple by George and Schomp's single. One more was annexed in the seventh on a single by George and errors.

The locals are planning retaliation when the Fossil boys come here next Sunday for a return engagement.

FARMER VOTES TO BE CAST BY MAY 25

County Meetings Set to Explain New Program of Wheat Control.

ASK OPINION OF ALL

Anyone Eligible to Sign Contract May Ballot; Result Expected to Have Far-Reaching Effect.

Arrangements for holding the national wheat program referendum in Morrow county have been made by the allotment committee, which is seeking to get an expression from every present contract signer between now and May 25, says County Agent Joe Belanger.

A series of community meetings have been arranged to serve the double purpose of explaining the wheat situation and to take the vote. The schedule for this county follows: Alpine district, May 4, 8:00 p. m., schoolhouse; Lexington and North Heppner districts, May 8, 2:00 p. m.; Eight Mile and South Heppner districts, May 9, 2:00 p. m.; Rhea Creek Grange hall; Morgan and Ione districts, May 10, 2:00 p. m., Ione Legion hall.

Not only will former contract signers be allowed to vote in this nation-wide poll, but any other wheat grower who can show that he is eligible to sign a new contract may cast a ballot. Many Oregon counties, including Morrow, will follow a plan for taking the vote worked out by extension officials with representatives of the AAA who held a conference on the referendum in Walla Walla recently.

The original plan called for all of the vote to be taken on May 25 at actual polling places arranged by the county wheat control associations. Arrangements have been made in Oregon, however, so that any who attend the community meetings, which are to be held prior to May 15, may cast their ballots there. As a complete list of contract signers is available, those who have not voted by that time will have ballots mailed to them, which must be returned by May 25 in order to be counted. Landlords residing out of the state are being mailed ballots immediately.

The wheat section wants an informed vote, a fair and secret ballot free from coercion, and adequate numbers. Dr. Edward Bell of Washington, D. C. informed state officials while he was in the west. In view of the questions raised concerning AAA programs, such a vote is expected to have a far-reaching effect upon the future of agricultural cooperation between growers and the government.

Wheat control associations are now operating in 1758 counties, maintaining a check on 75 per cent of the nation's production. The single question is being asked, "Do you favor continuing a wheat production adjustment program to follow the present one which expires with the 1935 crop year?"
