Today, Memorial Day, we are honoring those who gave their lives for this country. They represented this country against the attacks of the enemy. We owe them a debt which we cannot pay. The least we can do is pay our respects to them.

Jesus Christ gave His life for the world. He represented this world against the attacks of Satan. That was something that no one else was qualified to do. We can never pay in full our debt to Him. May we not do less than remember Him in the perpetual memorial service around the Lord's Table.

STUDENTS SHUN STRIKE PLEA. Corvallis-Oregon State college students took no part in the so-called international "student strike against war" in which the promoters called upon all college students to walk out of classes at 11 o'clock April 12.

The plan was denounced by the OSC daily paper as an ineffective emotional demonstration and called upon state college students, not unmindful of present war threats, to "resort to a higher type of move" to achieve the ends of peace.

An Oregon State student won first place in the state peace oratorical contest this year arguing for universal conscription of materials and labor as well as men as a war preventive.

Now Able to Eat Anything Says Traveling Salesman

From C. E. Jeffries, traveling salesman, Neosho, Mo., comes the following letter: "I suffered all last year from stomach trouble and tried many well-known preparations. I felt very grateful to Mr. Wilson at Neosho for recommending Williams S. L. K. Formula to me. The relief this medicine has given me has been wonderful. I no longer have gassy pains and sour stomach, and whereas I formerly lived on a liquid diet, I now enjoy a wide selection of foods denied me before."

Your druggist is your friend. Ask him about Williams S. L. K. Formula. You, too, should feel grateful for this wonderful doctor's prescription for stomach, liver and kidney disorders. Williams S. L. K. Formula is sold and recommended by Patterson & Son Drug Store, and they will refund the purchase price if you are not satisfied with the results after a trial.

Emergency Education. Senators Retain Seats. Work Protection. By A. L. LINDBECK

Salem—More than 12,500 adults and 500 children of pre-school age have been enrolled in the emergency education classes and nursery schools conducted throughout Oregon during the past year, according to C. A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction.

The program has given employment to more than 500 teachers of adult classes and 32 teachers and 16 part time cooks in connection with the nursery schools conducted as a part of the emergency education program.

The program was financed entirely through federal relief funds, $15,500 a month being allocated to Oregon for this purpose.

Adult classes were conducted in every county of the state but the nursery schools which were in the nature of an experiment and demonstration were established in only 14 counties, with three of the nurseries operating in Portland. Children enrolled in the nursery schools ranged from two to four years of age and came entirely from families on relief rolls.

The adult education program offered instruction in Americanization or literacy, vocational subjects, vocational rehabilitation and general adult education. More than 7000 adults were enrolled in the general education classes. Vocational education courses attracted more than 3300 adults while more than 1000 foreign born adults took advantage of the Americanization classes to improve their chances for naturalization. Seventy-nine physically handicapped persons were placed in position to earn their own livelihood.

April gasoline sales slumped more than 500,000 gallons below the record for April, 1934. Incidentally gasoline taxes collected by the state were down $26,885 for the month as compared with the same month a year ago.

At that, however, sales for the year to April 30 are 144,000 gallons ahead of the 1934 record, retail sales for the first four months of this year totalling 49,129,779.

Any man who wants to work is going to be given the full protection of the state General Martin declared in ordering out state police to disperse mobs gathered at the Stimson mill in Washington county this week.

Had the police found the situation too hot to handle the governor was prepared to order the national guard to the scene of action.

Neither H. L. Corbett of Multnomah county nor Dean Walker of Polk county lost their seats in the state senate when they were elected and appointed to other public positions, Attorney General Van Winkle has ruled.

The Port of Portland commission of which Corbett is a member being a municipal body does not come within the purview of the constitutional inhibition which applies only to state offices, the attorney general held, while Senator Walker was said to have escaped the effect of the constitutional barrier when he failed to formally accept appointment to the state library board.

Although Walker received his appointment last January and attended a meeting of the library board on March 28 he never filed his oath of office and on May 10 after his status as a legislator had been questioned decided that he did not want to serve on the board and so notified the governor.

In the same opinion the attorney general held that Representatives John Cooter and Henry Seamon were no longer eligible to serve on the emergency board since they had forfeited their legislative seats when they accepted other public appointments. This leaves only five members on the board, a bare statutory majority necessary for the approval of a deficiency appropriation. Neither can the vacancies on the board be filled except during a legislative session, the attorney general declared.

Profits from the sale of hard liquor in Oregon are running slightly above $100,000 a month according to the report of the Oregon Liquor Control commission. Gross sales for the first three months of 1935 totalled $1,674,227 with profits amounting to $374,544.

Razing the walls of the old capitol building still awaits permission from the courts. Most of the debris has now been cleaned out of the building and hauled away. J. C. Leary, in charge of wrecking operations, plans to blast the walls down if it is finally decided that it is not practical to use them in a new building.

Plans for a new building at the state hospital to cost approximately $100,000 have been approved by the board of control and construction operations will get under way at once. The building, which will accommodate 200 additional patients was authorized by the last legislature.

The new Oregon road maps now being distributed by the highway department are by far the most attractive ever issued. Seventy-five thousand copies of the map have been printed for free distribution.

The controversy over the governor's salary has been revived. Ed Jory, Marion county taxpayer, has filed suit in the circuit court attacking the constitutionality of the statutory salary of $7500 a year. He contends that the governor is entitled only to the $1500 provided by the constitution makers.

Under the terms of a new legislative act employers who fail to pay an employee promptly upon the termination of his services either thru resignation or dismissal is subject to a penalty up to an additional 30 day pay, according to C. H. Gram, state labor commissioner. In event of a dispute over wages due the employee the employer is required to pay the amount he concedes to be due at once leaving the disputed balance for settlement by the courts or otherwise.

Hopes for a $4,200,000 gift from the federal government to finance construction of the Bonneville section of the upper Columbia river highway faded this week with receipt of a telegram by J. M. Devers, attorney for the highway commission, from Senator McNary stating that the FWA would limit its grant to 30 percent of the total need. That means the highway commission will have to put up the other 70 percent of the money probably through sale of more bonds if even this much federal aid is to be forthcoming. The highway commission had proposed that it would pay off the entire Coast bridge debt at once if the PWA would give the state an equal amount for the Bonneville project.

State Treasurer Holman wants the state to generate its own electricity for lighting the buildings in the capitol group as well as the institutions in the vicinity of Salem. He believes that it can be done in connection with the heating plant with a sizeable saving in the annual "juice" bill.
