at the time of the Civil war, and as a girl she saw soldiers of both armies commandeer supplies from their farm, saw her own brothers go to fight "bushwhackers," and heard her father read the Emancipation Proclamation to their negroes. Though told that they were free, their negroes remained. When Jesse James operated in their terri-tory, she saw the famous outlaw water his horse at their watering trough. Many interesting stories of these experiences were later told by Mrs. Smead whose civic activ-ities included work with the Wom-ens Relief corps, W. C. T. WELL TEST SHOWS ADEQUATE SUPPLY

Hope Given That Water May be Had Without Need of Pumping.

PUMP RAISES LEVEL

Discontinuing Use of Creek at Early Date Hoped For; Council Combats Fire Hazards.

When the siphon was turned on from the lower well this morning the water in both wells dropped. That in the first well dropped to a level, of 4 feet, and in the second, or well in which the siphon is located, to 9 feet, Watermaster Rasmus reported this noon.

Hope of the city again being sup-plied with water from its artesian wells, and that without the necessity state manager of Occidental Life of pumping, was revealed in a test of the first artesian well completed yesterday. This morning the water was within eight inches of the top in the first well, and water was family home was in disputed terri-tory near the Mason and Dixon line at the time of the Civil war, and as mined.

Creek water has been turned into the line for the last week while the test was being made.

The well was first surged by A. M. Edwards, Lexington well driller, af-ter which the water stood within 6% feet of the surface. A turbine pump was then installed by L. L. Shan-non of Walla Walla, and the water pumped into an open weir. Pumping was started at the rate of 250 gallons a minute, which lowered the water to 28 feet from the surface. The flow was then increased to be-tween 400 and 450 gallons a minute, and the level in the well dropped to 40 feet where it remained for some 20 hours during pumping process. After running for 261/2 hours, the pump was lifted shortly after noon yesterday, and by 5 o'clock in the evening the water stood at eight inches from the top, and it remained at that point this morning.

Shannon told the council last night the well was one of the best he had ever worked in. Mayor and councilmen were pleased to learn that the wells would still amply sup-ply the city's needs. It was said 350 gallons a minute would take care of the peak load. But they are going to attempt to get the water without pumping in order to escape the increased overhead cost which pumping would entail. Additional action to this end was taken by ordering development of Alden Blankenship, U. of W. football letterman, was elected this week to fill the vacancy as coach and physical education instructor spring, at its present flow, will fill the the possibility of augmenting the supply from this source.
