

Local Happenings

M. L. Case made a business trip to the John Day country last week end. Calling to the Glenn Boyer farm, he found that Mr. and Mrs. Boyer had been forced to give up their place, and it had been purchased by another party who was just taking possession. Trouble was in the air, with considerable gunting, due to the purchaser attempting to hold personal effects of the Boyers on a real estate mortgage. Neighbors of the Boyers were truly "up in arms" over the situation. The Boyers, former Heppner residents, have moved on to a homestead adjoining the former place.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ridings arrived in Heppner last Thursday from New York where they had been for the school year. Mr. Ridings as teacher at Seth Low Junior college. Both took graduate work at Columbia university. Mr. Ridings went on to Eugene the end of the week for a visit at his home, while Mrs. Ridings remained here for a more extended visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Clark. They drove both to and from New York and report an enjoyable trip. Mr. Ridings, ex-University of Oregon basketball star, had an especially successful year as coach.

F. W. Turner took his prize race horse, N.R.A. to Vancouver on Saturday and placed her in the hands of a professional trainer. He brings home glowing reports of the trainer's estimate of the horse and feels that she is likely to go places. She is the daughter of Oregon Sunrise and Miss Cantata, fine stock of B. F. Swaggart. Robert V. Turner drove his father's car back to Heppner Monday, Mr. Turner remaining over at The Dalles that day for the state Lions convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel R. Benton and son Dick arrived in Heppner Monday from their home at Fort Benton, Montana, and are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benton. On Sunday Mr. Benton is slated to conduct an all-day meeting at the Lexington Church of Christ. He was formerly pastor of the church here, having gone to the Montana field last winter.

How to Keep Berries From Shriveling Told

Strawberry canning time is at hand again in Oregon, and as many homemakers make plans to put up berries for the coming year one of the questions most often asked is how to keep them from shriveling and rising to the top of the jar. The answer to this, says Miss Lucy Case, extension specialist in nutrition at Oregon State college, is to place the hulled, washed berries in a preserving kettle or other container alternating a layer of berries
