Give Good Service.

CONDUCT of the business of School District No. 1 for the last year has been in the hands of three substantial taxpayers, and their generous attitude toward education is worthy of recognition. Mr. Bar-ratt and Mr. Wightman are the largest holders of farm land within the district, and both pay heavily into its tax coffers. They, probably more than anyone within the district, are vitally interested in keeping school costs at a minimum, and they have worked consistently to that end. Yet, they have grasped the necessity of keeping the schools going, and of giving children of the district a maximum of education at a minimum of expense. They have moved slowly where curtailment of expense meant lowering of standards. Their task has not been easy. But it was performed thoroughly intelligently and without friction. Such a type of high-minded service, sacrificing self-interest to the best interests of all, if carried out in all departments of government, would relieve the odium which too often attaches to holding of public office.

It Can be Done.

MANY scars in the hearts of Heppner residents caused by the flood disaster of 1903 are not yet healed, and those who have such scars will receive joyfully the news that a recurrence of such a catastrophe can be averted.

Retention by dams of such a volume of water as visited Heppner on Sunday, June 14, 1903, is not only possible but wholly feasible, says Rhea Luper, a boy 15 years old liv-ing on Rhea creek when the memorable flood visited this city, now a graduate engineer. His advice has resulted in the county court and the Lions club taking action to lay the matter before the army engineers. May we expect immediate favorable action.

The 1903 flood is but one of several which has visited Heppner and other sections of the county since the advent of the white man. On May 29 last year, no small taste of the havoc which cloudbursts may do was experienced. Cloudbursts are a constant threat this time of General Trucking year. They come without warning and leave destruction in their wake.

Damming of major watercourses of the county, especially Willow, Hinton and Rhea creeks, would not only go a long way toward assuring flood protection, but would also help conserve flood waters for irrigation. They would probably help more than any other measure to restore this section to its former productiveness.

There is cause for rejoicing already in the coming of the government's soil conservation service whose program includes measures which should materially aid in flood control. It is proposed to make plow furrows at intervals on the steeper hillsides to prevent rapid run-off of water. Such practice should not only help retain mois-ture on the rangeland to help restore vegetation and thus prevent washing of the soil, but it should also retard the water from cloudbursts and make a flood of any magnitude unlikely.

Comfort is received from knowing that floods can be controlled in this section. And a sigh of relief will be taken when it is accomplished
