Official Paper for Morrow County

The Secretary's Visit.

FOLKS of the inland Empire had more than a passive interest in the only appearance made by Secretary Wallace in this section since he became secretary of agriculture in the Roosevelt cabinet. Since inauguration of the triple-A program, activities of the secretary's office have closely touched the lives of our people, and the trip to Walla Walla was motivated for many by a desire to see their chief.

We wot they were not disappointed. Large (verging on the raw-boned Lincoln type, though not gangling), the secretary presented a healthy sun-tan appearance. He did not orate, but spoke convincingly in farmer-to-farmer fashion. His appearance engendered confidence.

He spoke slowly, at times deliberating his words carefully; his auditors tense to catch each succeeding word. Sarcasm was employed when reference was made to newspapers, to the tariff and to the late administration. A sense of humor served to relax his audience on one of the several occasions when the amplifying system squawked.

The secretary talked as though sure of his ground. He presented himself as the farmer's champion, as he talked glibly of "farmers' enemies" though these enemies were left in mysterious unnameability. A general would prove more effective by pointing out the enemy his army should attack. The vagueness left a doubt as to the fearlessness which typifies an heroic leader.

The secretary made reference to his own early journalistic training. He edited a farm magazine started by his grandfather. Is it to be believed that the professional ethics which he learned vaulted no higher teaching than that of berating an enemy?

An oft repeated adage of newspaperdom says, "No evil can withstand the sunlight of truth." Mr. Wallace would have been more convincing had he pointed out in what respects the old system had fallen down, and in what respect the New Deal has bettered conditions. There are those who believe the country would have advanced farther without governmental interference with and manipulation of either business or agriculture.

This newspaper has had no quarrel with the secretary's program as it affected this section. We have conscientiously tried to do our bit to bring it to successful fruition. We respect the secretary's sincerity and credit him with having the welfare of the dirt farmer at heart.

HARDMAN

By LUCILLE FARRENS

George Kirk, a resident of this community for the past thirty years or more, following the trade of blacksmithing most of the time, passed away at the Heppner hospital last Sunday evening, July 21, at the age of 65 years, following an illness of about two years' duration, suffering from a disease caused by enlargement of the spleen. While Mr. Kirk has been in poor health all this time he took to his bed in recent weeks and was cared for by his wife and daughter, Mrs. Clair Ashbaugh, at the latter's Heppner home.

Mr. Kirk was married to Miss Clara Matteson of Heppner in 1898. To this union two daughters were born, namely Mrs. Clair Ashbaugh, Heppner, and Mrs. James Hama, Hardman, who with the widow survive. There are also six grandchildren, Darrell, Vester and Lavern Hama and Lois, Loei and Garnet Ashbaugh. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the Christian church in Heppner and interment was at the cemetery there. Kindly thoughts of sympathy are extended to the family by Hardman in this hour of bereavement.

Mrs. Robert Allott of Heppner is spending a while with her daughter and children, Mrs. Robert Burnside, Melba and Bobby Dean.

Miss Zetta Bleakman is working for Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Adams.

Mrs. Archie Barnard spent from Friday until Monday with her father, B. F. DeVore from her home at The Dalles. Miss Loy, who motored her mother up from The Dalles, returned the same day, taking Miss Dolly Farrens home with her. Miss Dolly spent the time with Miss Loy while Mrs. Barnard was here.

Mrs. Bernard Bleakman reports a pleasant visit from an uncle from Bellingham, Wn., one day last week.

Mrs. Raymond McDonald visited Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Musgrave at the Parkers Mill ranch last week for a few days.

Haying is under way on Hardman farms and nearby ranches.

Mrs. Anna Byland has moved to Heppner, having spent the winter in Hardman for the past ten years or so. She will be missed by Hardman friends.

J. C. Walker has been enjoying trips to Rhea creek each day of the week, the result of a job offered him by the state counting the cars which pass the bridge each day.

Mr. Walker, who is a crippled man does not often get away from home and thinks it great sport, he says. Mrs. Blaine Chapel motors Mr. Walker to the bridge each day.

Daniel have employment at Ant Hill and Red Hill respectively as look-out men.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wright are at their Hardman ranch overseeing the haying which is in progress there.

Most of the men have been fighting fire this week. One fire was at Wall creek and one at Camas prairie. The latter was set by lightning.

Owens Leathers herded sheep a few days last week on Arbuckle mountain for Harvey Harshman. When he returned Carey Hastings took the job.

Farm Price Level Drops But Income to Advance

Farm prices took a drop of four points from mid-May to mid-June on the national price level index just received by the Oregon State college extension service from Washington, D. C. This official data, showing a drop from 108 to 104, confirms the recent estimate made by the extension economist.

Total farm income in June 1935, however, is expected to exceed June last year as the general farm price index in June 1934 was 85 against 104 this year, and AAA rental and benefit payments are expected to be somewhat greater for June 1935 than in June 1934.

The index of prices paid by farmers stood at 127 at mid-June, the same as in March, making the index of the purchasing power of farm products 122 per cent of what it was in March.

Wheat prices, moving toward a new crop basis, lost over 10 cents a bushel during the month, reaching a level nearly 2 cents under June 1934, while butterfat prices declined nearly 4 cents to a level about 1.5 cents over June 1934.

"The farm price situation in the country as a whole suggests a June farm price level for Oregon of about 65 per cent of the 1926-1930 average, compared with 58 in June 1934 and 96 as the 'parity' level," says L. R. Briehaupt, college extension economist.

"On this basis, the average purchasing power of farm products in Oregon appears to be scarcely 70 per cent of 'parity,' compared with 82 for the nation as a whole.

"On the other hand, Oregon farmers have had a more nearly normal volume of produce to market during the past year than farmers had in many states. Owing to more favorable growing conditions over the country, farm production and income is expected to approach normal more generally than last year.

"If growing conditions are about normal during the remainder of the season, and allowing for a normal carryover of certain products at the end of the season, the total supply of food for domestic use in 1935 is expected to be approximately one per cent greater than the 1929-1934 average, compared with nearly 8 per cent shortage in 1933 and 4 per cent shortage in 1934, according to information from the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The supply of meats, poultry, and eggs will be a little short, but most other food groups will be above the average, according to present prospects.

FORMER RESIDENT HONORED

Frank L. Christenson, former Ione druggist, was recently honored by election to presidency of the Idaho board of pharmacy. Mr. Christenson is now proprietor of the Idaho pharmacy at Lewiston. Besides his election as president he was named delegate to represent the state board at the meeting of the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy to be held in Portland, August 4 to 10. An item from a Lewiston newspaper states Mr. Christenson went to Pocatello to assist with examination of 17 pharmacy graduates of the southern branch of the University of Idaho. He is a representative from Nez Perce county in the Idaho legislature, and paid tribute to the Idaho school of pharmacy as being eighth ranking school in the United States. It has 135 students, with graduates in demand all over the United States. Culls came last year for these students than were graduates, and all of this year's crop are already spoken for. While in the south Mr. Christenson visited Rurit, Burley, Boise and Twin Falls, and reported "Southern Idaho seems in better condition this year than for several years, and crops are good."

Another shift of residences occurred this week when the Dr. Richard C. Lawrence family moved to the Dick Wells house in south Heppner, and the John Anglin family moved into the Daisy Shively house formerly occupied by the Lawrences.
