Official Paper for Morrow County

The Way to Lower Taxes.

COOD for thought is given in Auditor Ham's report this week on the cost of operating the county schools. Especially is this the case because a heavy percentage of the taxpayer's dollar goes to support this educational structure.

Attention is not called to the taxpaver's burden because of any belief that full value is not now received for every dollar expended, but instead to call attention to the fact that there is opportunity to get equal value at less cost.

That opportunity lies in adoption of the county unit school system. Since the new county unit law was passed by the 1933 legislature, there has been no general agitation to bring Morrow county under the law, but if there is to be any tangible progress in cutting the cost of education the people of this county should not delay consideration of the matter. Only through consolidation is there hope for re-Auditor Ham's report shows the daily per pupil cost of education in Heppner high school to be $.4951 while the same cost in the Hardman school is $2.174. The Heppner daily attendance was 117.22 pupils, while at Hardman the daily attendance was 4.826 pupils. These are the minimum and maximum costs for high schools of the county, but the fact that the lowest per pupil cost was in the largest high school while the highest per pupil cost was in the smallest indicates that operation in larger units is the most economical course.

No attempt to discourage the fine public spirit of the people of the Hardman community in main-taining a high school is intended in the suggestion that high school pupils of that community could be educated in Heppner, either by transportation or residence, at much less cost to the taxpayers of that district. The improvement of the portation feasible. At the same time, Hardman pupils would have found Mr. Hadley improved but road in recent years makes transthe benefits of larger curricula, of larger teaching staff, of physical training facilities, and of many other facilities impossible for the smaller school to maintain.

What is true between Union of Howard Bates' birthday. Guests included Mr. Hadley improved but not yet able to come home.

A seven o'clock dinner was enjoyed last Wednesday evening at the home of Ralph Wasmer, given in honor of Howard Bates' birthday. Guests included Mr. Hadley improved but not yet able to come home.

What is true between Hardman and Heppner is also true between and Heppner is also true between other closely lying communities where duplication of facilities ex-where duplication of facilities ex-kunze and Mary, and Bill Harringconsolidation of class rooms would permit better teaching and better facilities at lower per pupil cost, given at the nome of miss because few if any classes in the Messenger last Wednesday. facilities at lower per pupil cost, smaller high schools now exceed, or in case of consolidation would the maximum number which may be handled by a single

There is no bugaboo about school consolidation under the county unit law. The agitation is not being made by this newspaper because believes Heppner would benefit. That Heppner is in position to be favored is not denied, but the fact remains that the educational bill can only be effectively reduced by this course.

Objection has been voiced to aphaving little school tax would be forced to share the debt burden of heavily encumbered districts. is not true. Existing debts at time of adoption of the law must be paid by the people of the district in which the debt was created. However, after adoption of the law, all the property of the county would be subject to the same millage rate for costs thereafter, as the county would be organized as a single school district. Two hundred property holders of the county may cause the matter of adoption or rejection of the law to be placed on the ballot. This should be done before the general election next year.

Gracious Hospitality.

JOHN DAY, you were a gracious host. The manner in which you entertained the Morrow county delegation Tuesday evening will not soon be forgotten. Your sponsorship of a derby race for the coming Rodeo through gift of $100 is deeply appreciated. You have shown yourself to be a loyal neighbor and true friend. The friendship which you have engendered among our people shall be lasting. Your entertainment was a true expression of gracious hospitality. Gracious Hospitality.

tween peoples of the two counties. At one time Heppner was the chief trading center for Grant county people. Friendships established then were lasting. Heppner still is the principal livestock outlet for the interior country, which has helped to maintain contacts.

In recent years the counties have been brought still closer together through more improved roads. It is now an easy three-hour drive from Heppner to John Day. It is appropriate that strong bonds of friendship should exist, for in meeting the problems of the future each section can be of material help to the other

As has been told in these columns before, so far as Heppner ever hold-ing the important place as a trading center for Grant county people that it once did there is no hope. With reference to the trade that used to be, it might be appropriate to quote the old maid's lament on the passing of her only opportunity
