

PREPARATIONS MADE BY MANY HUNTERS

Opening of Deer Season Sunday Favored by Light Showers.

OUTSIDERS TO COME

Famous Haunts of Mule Tails to be Invaded by Many; License Demand Good Near Zero Hour.

Light showers and increased humidity followed by cooler weather this week erased lines of anxiety from countenances of local hunters, and in place came smiles of expectancy, for doubt had been removed that there would be any hitch in the opening of the deer season next Sunday. Saturday and Sunday will see a general exodus of the male—and mayhap much of the female—population to gain a vantage point in the timbered Blue mountain hinterland as the sun peeps over the horizon into the domain of the famous mule tails on opening morning.

General reports from the domain indicate that the pride of the Blues fared well through the winter, their number increased over previous years, and though in no less elusiveness mood will provide opportunity for many fine bags.

The last several days has seen large demand for licenses at the clerk's office. Already red hats are being taken from last winter's moth balls, hunting cars are being tuned up, rifles sighted, and camp equipment augmented and put in repair.

Such are preparations of local nimrods, who will by no means have the Heppner territory to themselves. Already there is promise of the caravan of red-shirted and red-hatted visitors from outside exceeding the large and ever increasing numbers of previous years, for the local hunting grounds are among the most popular in the state and each year their popularity becomes more widespread as hunters from afar return home to tell their friends of their good fortune, or of the big fellow that just got away.

Little change appears in the hunting regulations this year. Each hunter is permitted to kill one mule tail deer with horns. Hunting is permitted only between sun-up and sun-down. Sub-machine guns and cannon are barred. Fire permits are necessary for building campfires anywhere in the forest, which may be obtained from any forest officer. And every car going into the forest is required to carry an axe, shovel and bucket, and to strictly observe all forest fire regulations.

TELLS OF WILD HORSE.

Charlie Wilcox came in from Ellis ranger station Tuesday to get his hunting license preparatory to the opening of the deer season. He is forest guard at the Ellis station, and in making the rounds this summer he several times came across a wild horse. The animal is as wild as any deer, Charlie said. He is a large, cream colored horse, weighing around 1600 or 1700 pounds, and so far as Charlie could determine bore no marks or brands. Charlie came across the wild mustang one day when he was riding along horseback, and the animal tore along the mountain above him, stopping once to snort vehemently at molestation of the preserves.

MRS. BROSNAN ENJOYS TRIP.

Mrs. John Brosnan returned home last week after a months' vacation in California and Arizona. In August Mrs. Brosnan joined Mr. and Mrs. Paul Correll and family of Tucson in San Francisco. From there the party traveled an extended tour of the two states. Mrs. Brosnan was especially pleased with the trip, having had the opportunity of a visit with her sister, Mrs. Correll, whom she had not seen for fourteen years.

Get Quick Action

RECENTLY a person dropped into the Gazette Times office, desiring to purchase a used washing machine. A Want Ad was inserted. In the mail the next morning after the paper was issued that person received two letters offering to satisfy his wants. Before noon he had closed a deal. The cost of his little ad was 30 cents.

Another person advertised recently for the purchase of city residence property. Inside of two days eight answers had been received.

And still another person advertised some rams for sale. They were taken inside a few days and the Want Ad ordered discontinued after the first insertion.

If you have a want, you, too, will find a little Want Ad a worthy messenger. The cost is trivial compared with the results.

New Rex Wheat Showing Great Yields on Farms

Outstanding success of the new Rex wheat bred at the Sherman county experiment station at Moro has been reported from every section of eastern Oregon and Washington where plot and field trials have been made this year, reports D. E. Stephens, superintendent of the station.

In this the first year when extensive field plantings have been possible, yields of 58, 61 and even 70 bushels to the acre have been reported by farmers, while in plot trials at both the Pendleton and Moro stations Rex out-yielded every other variety this season.

So striking has the new wheat proved to be under widely varying conditions that all available seed has been bought up already for sowing this fall, including 3000 bushels from Union county alone. J. A. Gaskill of Imbler harvested the largest acreage this year, his field averaging 58 bushels to the acre of fine 62-pound wheat. Rex Roulet of the same county reported an average of 61 bushels on about 24 acres. From Waitburg in Washington came reports of a phenomenal yield of 70 bushels to the acre.

Rex wheat is the result of a cross between White Odessa and Hard Federation wheats made at the Moro station about 1921. It takes at least seven years after a cross is made to get a new hybrid in pure form. Since then the cross has been tested out first in row and then in plot trials along with hundreds of other crosses constantly being made.

When Rex appeared to have unusual merit it was distributed to county agents for further testing under varying conditions in all Columbia basin counties, and finally was released to growers for field trials.

Rex appears to answer the demand for an early maturing winter hardy wheat of the yield and other qualities of Federation which is a spring wheat even though frequently sowed in the fall on the chance of its escaping a heavy freeze. In addition it is unusually smut resistant, ranking about with Albit in this respect. It has short stiff straw and is non-shattering in character. If it continues as well as is now indicated Rex may become, as its name indicates, the "king" of soft white wheats.

Charles Notson Reports Red Army Threat, China

Writing from Titao, Kansu province, in Indo-China, where he and Mrs. Notson were attending a missionary conference, under date of August 27, Charles Notson reported that a Red army invasion in the southern part of the province had caused missionaries to leave Minchow and Lanchow in that vicinity, and that he and Mrs. Notson might receive orders to leave at any time. In the letter received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Notson, this week Charles stated he expected to go back to Hochow, about 50 miles from Titao, where he has been located for the last several months.

The Red army presents a real threat, he said, though reports had been received that a national army was being sent into the section and other reports were current that the Moslems were drilling to the north. The Moslems are enemies of the Reds and good fighters, not easily aroused, but determined once they get started. Charles wrote that he had met some of the Moslems who are large in stature, many six feet and a half tall. They wear long robes and flowing beards, giving them the appearance of patriarchs right out of the old testament. It is among these people that some of the missionary work is being carried on.

Big Story Breaks With Large Smell, Prineville

(Central Oregonian, Prineville)
A couple of weeks ago a local attorney called your correspondent to one side. There's a story about to break around here, he chuckled, and when it breaks it's going to be good. It seems he had sighted a civet cat peering out of a basement window of the Cornett building, late one evening.

Monday morning the story broke in a big way in the vicinity of the Prineville Cash market. Leonard Schwarz, manager of the market, noticed something had been prowling in the butcher shop. Little dreaming of the consequence, he set a trap for the prowler. Monday morning he got results.

YOUNG LEGISLATOR HERE.

Millard D. Rodman, representative from Crook and Jefferson counties, had the distinction of being the youngest legislator at Salem during the last legislative session. He is now in Heppner with the Soil Conservation service, though he has a wheat ranch of his own in Jefferson county. He and Senator J. G. Barratt, appointed to fill the unexpired term of Senator Jack Allen and who will be among the youngest members of the upper house when the special session meets shortly to consider building the new capitol, met in the postoffice lobby the other morning and exchanged notes on the situation. Rodman's legislative status is not affected by his present government position as he is working under a scholarship. He was noncommittal on the matter of selection of a speaker for the coming session.

LEXINGTON

By BEULAH B. NICHOLS.

Lexington grange met Saturday night and although the attendance wasn't large an interesting meeting was held. Bert Johnson spoke on the Bonneville project. S. J. Devine, master of the Morrow County Pomona grange, announced that the next Pomona meeting will be Saturday, October 5, at Boardman and that Representative Walter M. Pierce will be present and will talk on the Townsend old age pension plan.

At the next regular meeting of Lexington grange on October 12 a mock trial will be held. We are told that Harvey Miller is the defendant in the case but we have not been advised just what charges are being preferred against him. More information concerning this will be given later.

The Lexington juvenile grange met Saturday night also and held a very interesting meeting. The juvenile grange, for children between 5 and 14, with its wholesome standards and high moral ideals, starts youth on the right trail. All the way through the ceremonies of grange rituals there is a continuous development of the mental and moral life. The fundamentals of good citizenship, love for country and flag, respect for law, reverence for sacred things, loyalty to home and home community and respect for the rights of others, are fundamentals in the code of the organization.

The grange has been of incalculable value to the children of America. Here boys and girls have taken part in programs and in meetings with their parents, and have learned to do by doing. The benefits which the children receive from the juvenile grange are many, but among the most important is training in leadership. By conducting their meetings in a businesslike and parliamentary way, and by early taking part in the discussions, the children are being well trained for careers of usefulness later.

The youngsters in the granges are taking hold of the work in wonderful fashion and if their elders don't watch out, the boys and girls will show them how granges should really be conducted.

About twenty members were present at the meeting of the Lexington Home Economics club Thursday afternoon. After the business meeting each one told of her summer vacation, some of which were very interesting. Refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served by the hostesses, Mrs. R. B. Rice and Mrs. Orville Cusforth. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Laura Scott with Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Nancy McWaters as hostesses.

Among Lexington people who attended the Pendleton Round-Up were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dinges and son Danny, Miss Shirlee Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Campbell, Willard Newton and Ralph Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. George McMillan came up from their home at Cherryville the last of the week to attend the funeral of Mr. McMillan's brother-in-law, George Broadley.

Fred Pinter of Salem spent the week end with relatives in this community.

T. W. Cutsforth is visiting at the home of his son, Orville.

Miss Edith Tucker spent the week end in Portland.

W. E. Broadley of San Fernando, Cal., was here Saturday for the funeral of his brother, George Broadley.

Isaac Ennes Who Installed City Water System, Visits

Back in Heppner this week for the first time since leaving here in 1900, Isaac Ennes, engineer in charge of construction of Heppner's original water system, saw few familiar landmarks of the old town and missed many of the old time leading citizens with whom he had been well acquainted. Mr. Ennes now resides with Mrs. Ennes on a small farm a few miles from Hoquiam, Wash. Two daughters, one married, reside in Seattle and two sons live in Hoquiam.

Mr. Ennes first came to Heppner in 1892, having previously helped construct the water plant at Hillsboro in company with W. E. Pruyn who came to Heppner a short time before. He recalled that a man by the name of Kleckner drilled the first well for the city, which he helped work over for the old Heppner Power and Light company. On leaving Heppner, Mr. Ennes was associated with Frank Gilliam, Heppner pioneer, in constructing a telephone line into Burns, having charge of the work as engineer both between Canyon City and Burns and between Baker and Burns.

On the present trip, Mr. Ennes is traveling alone. His purpose is to look up old-time friends and visit some of the haunts of earlier days. Before returning home he expected to go on to John Day, probably taking in part of the fair this week end, then on through Canyon City to Burns over the route of the old telephone line.

He had not heard of the passing of Frank Gilliam, whom he had hoped to see, nor of J. V. Gates, president of the old Heppner Power and Light company, for whom he used to work.

Many Plan to Attend
Grant County Fair
"Are you going to John Day?" Next to discussion of plans for the annual deer hunt, that is the topic most current in Heppner, and in most instances the question brings the response, "I am." If present prospects materialize there will be a large representation of Heppner people at John Day this week end for the Grant County fair. Transportation of the band is responsible for many making the trip, as it has been retained to play on Friday and Saturday, and present plans call for taking the members over in private automobiles. Harold Buhman, director, announced yesterday that only one more car was needed to accomplish this. Local people are grateful for the $100 purse contributed by John Day business men for running of the Grant County derby at the Rodeo; but that is not the only reason for attending. Grant county always has a mighty good show, and announcements this year say it will be better than ever.

ATTEND WEDDING.

Patterson, Miss Mary Patterson, Harold Evans, Jasper Crawford, of Heppner, and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gorgor of Ione.

Miss Delpha Merritt returned last week from a visit with Miss Mary Cunha at Lena.

Mrs. Adolph Majeske and daughter returned home Saturday from Warsaw, Wisconsin, where they spent three weeks visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. McMillan came up from their home at Corvallis to attend the funeral of Geo. Broadley Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Roy Leonard of Odessa, Wash., was also here for the funeral.

The Lexington grange is giving a dance at the hall Saturday night. Supper will be served by the Home Economics club.

BLOOM COMMENDS COUNTY UNIT PLAN

Uniform Tax and Better
Administration Seen
as Virtues

PROBLEM IS STUDIED

Superintendent Gives Views Before
Lions Based on Master's Thesis;
Entertainment Enjoyed.

Edward F. Bloom, city school superintendent, urged adoption of the county unit system for Morrow county schools in a discourse before the Lions Monday luncheon, citing equalization of the tax load and more efficient and economical administration as the two accomplishments to be hoped for in such adoption. His talk was based on an exhaustive study of the subject made this summer and incorporated in the thesis for his master's degree received from University of Washington.

Mr. Bloom said the present district system of school operation is a relic of "horse and buggy days." Conceived first in early colonial days in Massachusetts, it served admirably when communities were isolated with much unsettled country in between, but now since all the country has been settled and practically all of it included in school districts laid out without particular thought of the service to be rendered, the overlapping of purposes and duplication of facilities calls for a restricting on a more businesslike basis.

The county unit plan provides that an entire county be incorporated in a single school district, with a single board administering the school business of the entire county. A uniform tax for operation would be levied over the entire county, though all existing indebtedness at the time the law becomes operative would be paid only by the people of the districts in which the indebtedness was incurred, such indebtedness to be paid off in 15 years time.

It was shown how at present in Oregon nearly the entire cost of school operation is borne by the local school district, a small amount only being received from the state irreducible school fund and from the two mill elementary school tax levied uniformly over the county; and the wide discrepancy in the amount of special school tax among the various districts of the county was pointed out.

He set out a type case for the county which might be followed under the unit system establishing an estimated uniform tax of 8 1/2 mills for operation of all the schools. Some of the savings cited were salaries now paid clerks of the various district boards; reduction in the number of teachers; consolidation of facilities, and elimination of much duplicated expense (fuel, supplies, etc.), as well as lower prices which may be obtained thru quantity buying.

Mr. Bloom said that 100 petitioners could have the matter of adoption or rejection of the county unit plan placed on the ballot, or that it could be placed on the ballot by order of the county court.

Alden Blankenship, physical education director of the schools, was introduced as a club guest and expressed the hope of producing a good football team, work on which has already started. Nick Leathers, Hardman pioneer, was well received in two vocal numbers, and Miss Jennie Swendig pleased with two cornet solos accompanied by Mrs. J. O. Turner, club accompanist.

MARRIED IN VANCOUVER.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Turner of this city to Mr. James Valentine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Valentine, was an event of Sept. 10, at Vancouver, Wash., according to an announcement received by friends and relatives. Both are popular Morrow county young folks who have the well wishes of a host of friends.

FREE KNITTING SCHOOL.

Morrow County Woolgrowers auxiliary is continuing the free knitting school, held Monday afternoons from 2 to 5 at the library, and anyone interested is invited to attend. Beginners should bring needles. The only qualification is that knitted articles be made of wool.

O. M. WHITTINGTON WEDS.

Announcement received by Heppner friends this week brought news of the marriage of Oscar M. Whittington, former Morrow county resident, and Marie Shamhart at Klamath Falls on Thursday, Sept. 12. They will be at home at Bend after October 1.

HAD PROMINENT PLACE.

Miss Colleen Kilkenny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kilkenny, was among feted persons at the Round-Up last week end, serving as one of the attendants to the junior queen.

Mr. and Mrs. Algott Lundell were in the city yesterday from the Gooseberry district, reporting the wheat seeding in full sway in that vicinity.
