Official Paper for Morrow County

Political Foibles.

DEMOCRATIC newspapers tell us that the United States is on the way to an unparalleled era of prosperity. Townsend tells us that the New Deal has failed; that there is as much or more unemployment in the country today than when the New Deal took effect.

On the eve of any presidential campaign there is much clamor. The "ins" want to stay in and the "outs" want to get in. Into what? There is only one answer—into control of the money bag.

Politics is like that. That noble institution which Webster defines as the science of government has assumed the odium of tainted money. A politician is looked upon as one who gives little yet takes much.

Whether or not the New Deal was justified in bringing the national debt to the highest point outside of wartime; and whether or not its bringing government paternalism to the highest all-time peak in American history was warranted, is a matter for time to decide.

Dr. Townsend's observations were made in and around Los Angeles where a large amount of unemployment exists. Other diagnosticians have attributed much unemployment in that region to the large number of retired people living there who, becoming disoriented by living in idleness for a while sought work at little or no wage in order to keep their time occupied.

But whether we base our hope for future security upon the New Deal, upon "Share the Wealth," or upon the "Townsend Plan," we must face one inevitable issue: Where is the money to come from?

That question is attempted to be answered by advocates of many political foibles, but how many of them tell the truth? They quote figures running into the billions, trillions and even quadrillions of dollars to indicate the wealth of the country, the transactions on the stock market, or the amount of money which is being or could be circulated.

U. O. TO TRAIN SOCIAL WORKERS IN PORTLAND

Workers for the many social agencies that are becoming more and more important, will be trained in the new graduate division of social work training of the University of Oregon, established this fall in Portland.

to be maintained, developed and enjoyed someone must produce it; someone with initiative must yet cross unknown frontiers of science; someone with judgment must yet go deeper into the social problems of humanity to see if, truly, the needs, desires and ambitions of all human beings are equal—to say nothing of the contributions.

The advocates of these political foibles dodge the one and only issue at stake in the spending of O. P. M. (other people's money)—that issue is whether or not the individual shall be permitted to keep the profits of his own labor or whether those profits shall go to some kind of government body to be expended by the politicians.

In the days of government dole many a farm and many a business without profits sufficient to pay taxes considered "folding up" because of the brighter prospect for the month received and thus stimulate business to a point where all unemployed folk would be provided work and poverty would never be any more.

His prescription called for a $200-a-month pension from the government as an amount sufficient to permit them to continue their usual habits of living, then considered it would be a very good thing to give all folk over the age of sixty a like amount, compel them to spend it in the month received and thus stimulate business to a point where all unemployed folk would be provided work and poverty would never be any more.

The criminal record clause he believed would discourage crime. The retirement from active business clause he argued would provide jobs for younger folk who might be unemployed.

on security and jobs. There must at all times be wisdom—wisdom such as is gained through living many years and learning the hard lessons of life.

The next big event in Morrow county is the deer hunting season which opens Sunday. Some rain and the advent of cooler weather with higher humidity has lessened the fire hazard, but hunters should go prepared with axe, shovel and bucket to see that camp fires are properly doused.

Heppner proudly sends its band to John Day this week end, with thanks to the good people over that way for the invitation.

Most everyone who could get away took in the Round-Up—a grand show and a credit to the hustling spirit of Pendletonians.

"Bill" Hanley crossed the Great Divide "feelin' fine." Few more colorful figures ever graced the great plains of Oregon. It was fitting that his last day on earth was memorialized by the great cowboy show at Pendleton.
