Huxley—He Did Not Know!

Altogether the languages and dialects in which the Bible, either in the hands of the people number whole or in substantial part, is in about five hundred, with a billion possible readers.
How difficult this rendering of the Scriptures into strange tongues has been may be illustrated by some of the odd printings in our language. We have the "breeches" Bible, in which the aprons of Adam and Eve are thus translated; the "treacle" Bible in which "Is there no balm in Gilead?" is translated "Is there no treacle, (or molasses) in Gilead?"; the "bug" Bible, with an in-felicitous rendering of "creeping things," and the "wicked" Bible, with the important word "not" omitted from the seventh commandment. It, with the finest scholarship and the utmost care, such infelicities have occurred in our own tongue, imagine the obstacles to a clear understanding of the gospel message in heathen tribes.
The man who invented the term "agnostic" was Thomas H. Huxley, the scientist. He did not deny, he merely did not profess to know. As in the early Christian centuries there were certain sects that professed knowledge and called themselves "Gnostics," he, admitting ignorance, called himself an "Agnostic." He was a member of the London school board, and the question was raised concerning the use of the Bible in the schools. It was generally supposed he would oppose it. In "The Contemporary Review" for December, 1871, he said:
"I have always been strongly in favor of secular education, in the sense of education without theology, but I must confess I have been no less seriously perplexed to know by what practical measures the religious feeling, which is the essential basis of conduct, was to be kept up in the present utterly chaotic state of opinion on these matters without the use of the Bible.

"Take the Bible as a whole, make the severest deductions which fair criticism can dictate for shortcomings and positive errors, as a sensible lay teacher would do if left to himself, all that is not desirable for children to occupy themselves with, and there still remains in this old literature a vast residuum of moral beauty and grandeur. And then consider the great historical fact, that for three centuries this book has been woven into the life of all that is best and noblest in English history; that it has become the national epic of Britain, and is familiar to noble and simple from John 'o Groat's House to Land's End, as Dante and Tasso were once to the Italians; that it is written in the noblest and purest English, and abounds in exquisite beauties of a merely literary form.
"By the study of what other book could children be so much humanized, and made to feel that each figure in that vast historical procession file, like themselves, but a momentary space in the interval between two eternities, and earn the blessings or the curses of all times, according to its efforts to do good and hate evil, even as they also are earning their payment for their work?"

THE FAMILY DOCTOR
By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

The Poison-Victim
I hope you may never be confronted with a poison emergency as I have many times been, the case of accidental (or suicidal) poisoning of a human being. It is one of the most serious moments of life when an unconscious and prostrate body is found demanding immediate effort.
Quick and accurate thinking is demanded and action with it. Have some one summon the doctor. Don't waste time looking for evidence. Be quick to try to preserve life and look for evidence afterward. If the patient's lips are burned with carbolic acid, pour in heavy solutions of alkalies—soda or epsom salts—or, diluted alcohol if it is at hand. Do it plentifully and be sure it is enough. Let the doctor be the judge as to an emetic when he arrives.
If the patient is in convulsions with violent contractions of the limbs and neck-muscles it indicates strychnine poisoning. Pour
