On With the Band.

THE rim rocks of the John Day I rang a responsive welcome to the music of the Heppner school band at the Grant county fair last Friday and Saturday. Grant county folk entertanied the band royally and in other ways showed deep appreciation of the band's fine work.

In turn band members and director reflected credit upon the name of our fair city. Hours of devoted practice and sacrifice were denoted in the snap and precision of playing and marching-hours. the intensity of which is probably little appreciated outside of the organization and those closely connected with its personnel. Harold Buhman, the director, made possible the fine showing both at the Rodeo and at John Day by leaving his summer school work two weeks early and putting the band through two practices daily. Intensive practice was begun two weeks before school started, and without promise of financial reward. Director and bandsters were impelled only by pride in their organization and loyalty to the city.

What matter it if our band is not the best band in the world. Surely, we would like to have it so. But is there not satisfaction enough in knowing that we have a mighty fine band, a loyal band, and probably the best band Heppner ever had? Is there not satisfaction in knowing that our band is appreciated afar, helping to carry the name of Heppner into neighboring communities in a friendly, welcome

A fine tribute to the organization was received this week from the Pendleton Round-Up in the form of a five dollar check, a spontaneous gift engendered only through ap-preciation of high Round-Up officials who heard the band at John

Such is the reflection of the warm place the band has claimed in the hearts of others. We of Heppner have been called upon at times to give the band a little lift, but for the few dollars expended there has been received bounteous returns. The band is one of the greatest assets of our city, worthy of all the support we can possibly give it. On with the band!

A Good Mission.

A FRIEND of the Gazette Times in Berkeley, Cal., recently sent a copy of the paper to a socialworker friend in London. The Lon-don man wrote that he liked the paper's appearance, thought it was cleanly written and "elegant" in appearance, but could not understand the freedom from comment on class social problems.

Thinking that the paper might be enlightening to a friend of his who had left a $4000 a year job in London to become a communist worker in Russia, the London man sent it on to the friend in Russia. There is no particular point in the fact that the paper happened to be the Gazette Times. Had the London man received any typical rural American weekly newspaper he would probably have been impelled to make the same comment, for rural America is definitely not concerned with class social problems. If the social worker in Russia gains that impression from the issue of the Gazette Times he receives, the paper will have accomplished a good mission.

In rural America the farmer is lord of his own domain and master of his own castle. Despite much idle ranting to the contrary, serfdom does not exist in rural Ameri-There is no regimentation, no government interference with home There are, in fact, no class social problems in rural America.

Such a situation is probably difficult for social workers in foreign cities to understand. They look at rural America through mis-focused optics of sensational American dailies, of the rantings of radical agitators, and of pleadings of political opportunists, and so fail to

If social workers would add the typical American rural weekly newspaper to their classroom textbooks, and depend less upon the high-sounding theories of averred social philosophers they probably would come to the conclusion that the average human being is of par intelligence and quite capable of taking care of himself if given the opportunity. All that is really needed is to see that everyone follows the basic rules of fair play.

Instead of rehearsing again these rell-worn testimonies, let us close this series with a single dramatic story, a story so old that surely many readers will find it entirely

It starts with George III of England, in the year 1768. In that year Royal Society of London appealed to the King to send a royal expedition to the South Seas to observe a transit of Venus across the disk of the sun, which event was to occur in 1769. A bark of three hundred and seventy tons was accordingly sent out, and the island cho sen was for a time called King George's Island, but later it became and at present is known by its native name of Otaheite, or, in its abbreviated form, Tahiti. It is there the modern writers go to get local color for their South Sea stories.

"Bladder Troubles"

A friend in Oklahoma requested this letter.

These ailments are so named by ignorant laymen and unprincipled urine that is "smoky" in color or quacks—as if all bladder troubles even red, leads to the conclusion were exactly alike!

They may vary from the most is always a symptom of danger. trifling irritation to the most pon-derous, incurable and malignant growth. Formerly, most bladder irritations were supposed to be caused by "uric acid." Great numbers of urates were found in many such

The first symptom of "bladder trouble" is frequency and burning on voiding urine. This symptom calls for immediate relief and in the elderly patient should occasion a search for stone in the bladder or urinary calculi which is distinctly a trouble of surgical importance. Distribution . weak spot I read in a California paper the other day that several tons of lemons had been dumped into the Pacific ocean in order to keep the price of lemons up. I have known of similar incidents on the Atlantic Coast-whole cargoes of bananas and carloads of other foods dumped into the bay. It seems to me that the greatest weakness in our social-economic structure is our system of distribution. There is no such thing as over-production so long as any-body's wants remain unsatisfied. I would like to see statesmen and economists giving more thought to the problem of getting the things people want into the hands of those who want them, than to making artificial attempts to increase the profits of producers.

England . . . not so slow

I was greatly struck by a state-ment published recently by Harry Selfridge, the former Chicago mer-chant who moved to London and now operates the largest store in the world. Mr. Selfridge said that the improvement in the system of distribution of commodities in England has resulted in adding to the payrolls of British retailers more people than had been thrown out of employment by the industrial de-

We are inclined to think that we are a good deal smarter in all business affairs than the English. While It is true that it took a Yankee merchant to show them the way, the quickness with which the British mercants seized upon the basic idea of low prices and quick turnover through stimulative advertising suggests that John Bull isn't as slow on the uptake as many of us in America have imagined.

Mr. Selfridge's theory that the time to advertise most is not when business is good but when it is bad seems to me an entirely sound one.

Backyards fertile I get very tired of hearing people say there are no more opportunities left for the adventurous and enterprising youth of America. There are more and bigger oppor-tunities than our fathers and Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Pope, and will

She has never traveled more than to get around and see the world. If she could only do that, she ought, she could write stories.

A friend suggested to her that people were people and very much alike in their emotions and reac-tions anywhere in the world. Why didn't she try writing stories about the people and scenes with which was familiar? My friend adopted the suggestion and began to write simple little fiction stories based upon incidents in the daily life of the people she knew. It took her a long time to master the technique of writing, but now, at sixty past, she is still earning $10,000 a year with her pen. She found gold in her own backvard!

Wages . . . then and now ne of my New England neighbors found recently in an old trunk in the barn loft were some interesting records showing the wages paid a hundred and eleven years ago to rural workers on the highways. Here are the figures:

For a man per day to the last day of July, 83 cents; from the last day of July to the last day of September, 67 cents; from the last ay of September to the close of the year, 50 cents; for a team and four cattle and a cart to the last day of July, 74 cents; from the last day of July to the last day of September, 75 cents; from the last day of September to the close of the year, 56 cents; for a plough, 25 cents per day through the year.

Those rates per day were pretty close to the rates now paid per Of course, they don't mean much unless they could be com-pared with the cost of commodities at the same time, but they are interesting as indicating how the scale of the ordinary man's earnings has gone up since 1824.

- Special Session By A. L. LINDBECK

Salem.-While to all outward apspread of the English language; in pearances the fight for the House its inspiration of philanthropies, for speakership seems to have resolved as Lecky said in his "History of itself into a duel between William European Morals," it has "covered Graham and Howard Latourette, the globe with countless institutions both of Multnomah county, there of mercy, absolutely unknown to the pagan world." Volumes have acres who predict that neither of acres who predict that neither of these contenders will wield the gavel 44,360 persons during the month of Both Graham and Latourette are avowed candidates for the Speakership and both claim the advantage in the number of names already on the dotted line. Both, however, labor under the distinct disadvantage of geographical location which was used to such good advantage in centering support of House members on John Cooter prior to the opening of the last regular session.

There is a time honored gentle men's agreement in effect in Oregon political circles which decrees that when the presiding officer of one legislative branch is from Multnomah county the other gavelwielder shall come from some outstate county. With H. L. Corbett of Portland presiding over the senate the selection of either Graham or Latourette for the Speakership will give Multnomah county a monopoly on these legislative honors which is contrary to all precedent

In spite of rumors to the effect that Jack Caufield of Tillamook county plans to throw his support to Latourette, the Tillamook legis lator is still regarded as decidedly in the running with a decided advantage over either of the Multnomah county candidates if he decides to press his claim to the speakership.

Moore Hamilton of Medford and O. Henry Oleen of Columbia county have also let it be known that they are still in the Speakership race and refuse to concede any advantage to the Multnomah county candidates. Governor Martin has let it be pled with an evil-smelling odor, especially if the patient be over 40 years of age, should send the sufferer to a capable physician. Fresh will content himself with calling the session and presenting his rec ommendations regarding the new state house and its location, leaving the fate of his program to the tender mercies of the lawmakers without resort to any attempt to influence them in their stand.

The opinion of Attorney General Van Winkle limiting the location of the new state house to the original limits of the cty of Salem has not iampened the ardor of Governor Martin in his sponsorship of a hilltop site. traffic accident situation in Oregon is shown by reports compiled by Secretary of State Snell. While the number of accidents is keeping pace with the 1934 record the number of fatalities for the first eight months of this year is only 160 compared to 201 for the same period in 1934. Twenty persons were killed in traffic accidents on Oregon highways during August compared to 30 for the same month a year ago.

Recreation programs carried on in 30 Oregon communities during the past summer provided employment to 420 persons on relief rolls, according to C. A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction. Reports compiled by Howard show that the programs attracted an average weekly attendance of 44,360 persons during the month of August. Twenty-seven thousand dollars in federal relief funds were expended in paying salaries of men and women employed in supervising the programs.
