Official Paper for Morrow County MEMBER OREGON STATE ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

Harry Verner Gates.

THE name of H. V. Gates will stand indelibly linked with the history of progress in Heppner. The Grand Army veteran who was called to the Beyond this week and who spent his closing years as chief of the Grand Army of the Republic in Oregon, pioneered Heppner's electric and water utilities as president of the old Heppner Light & Water company and his business acumen accounted for their successful operation until the company's holdings were purchased by the Pacific Power Light company and the city of Heppner.

His vision and initiative brought to Heppner, along with other towns where he established like enterprises, the best electric and water facilities the city could afford. The early steam-powered, coal-burning plant, feasible in its time but expensive of operation, made the business of Mr. Gates' company not a little hazardous. The services were hardly comparable to those of the hydro-electric and gravity flow systems which have replaced the old steam turbine dynamos and deep well pumps, but they served the city quite adequately in their day and their memory stands as a monument to Mr. Gates' enterprise.

The business venture which this man of vision launched in Heppner was typical of the adventurous spirit which impelled him to enlist in the Union army at the age of 15—thus enabling him to vote for Lincoln for president before reaching the age of majority—to engage in the later Indian wars, and still later to become chief engineer of the Oregon Railroad and Navigation company, and while in the latter position to design the first gasoline motor cars used in the company's passenger service.

Before dissolution of the old Heppner Light & Water company, Mr. Gates had visioned a gravity flow water system for the city, bringing water from the mountains, and also a hydro-electric plant to be run in connection with it. While the water system has been realized, Heppner's own hydro-electric plant is still in the future, mayhap to be realized at some later date as a further tribute to this man of vision. Eighty-nine years of activity such as marked the life of Mr. Gates would over-burden a lesser human dynamo. Physically, as well as mentally large, this man's power-house stood the burden well unto the last. Only a few short months ago he made his last visit to this city, marked by recollections of endearing moments of the past, in line with business interests in which he was still active.

Harry Verner Gates will be remembered among the state's early builders. He has reached a well earned rest.

Time to Act.

NOW is no time to let the cudgel get cold if hopes of the Inland Empire for early completion of Umatilla Rapids dam and development of transportation on the upper Columbia river are to be realized. With a sympathetic administration at Washington and favorable reports from the army engineers, reports say that the stage is set for obtaining these developments, but it is necessary for the tributary territory to show a lively interest.

The vehicle for expressing the desires of the Inland Empire has been set up in the form of Inland Empire Waterways association of which Judge C. L. Sweek, former leading Heppner citizen and respected friend, is president. But that vehicle can only function insofar as it has financial as well as moral support. In the early days of its organization the waterways association was maintained through voluntary membership fees which were inadequate to accomplish its aims. The call for memberships in Morrow county was practically unanswered, and the support here has been practically nil. This year the association's program calls for direct appropriations from the courts of the various counties tributary to the upper river in Oregon, Washington and Idaho. Several counties have already responded with the amount asked. Morrow county has been asked for $500.

The expenditure of this amount of money would seem advisable, indeed, if the benefits of the river program can be realized. Even a slight reduction in transportation costs would repay the investment many times over in a single year. The matter should have the earnest consideration of the budget committee when it meets next week.

A considerable amount of money at the command of the association is necessary now in the preparation of a brief containing a thorough economic survey of the Inland Empire to show exact facts and figures on the amount of potential tonnage available for river transportation. Estimates leave no doubt of the impressiveness of the figures, but the government is not content to rely simply on estimates. It must know there is no provision for such a survey being made at government cost. The government has already steeled the cost of surveying the river and of making plans for dams and other development work, and the sooner justification for such expenditure is shown, the sooner the development will be realized.

As It Rains.

OF TEN has it been said that one can't order weather to suit everybody. That's probably true, but the old adage lost a bit of its effectiveness this week when it started to rain. If there was anyone who objected we haven't heard of him. The rain may have been a damper on bird hunting. It probably caused the birds to stick closer to the brush and nullified to an extent the odor of the birds which commonly leads the keen-nosed dogs to their haunts. At least many hunters have said the hunting has been hampered. But, more likely than not, the rain has abated such a philosophy as was expressed by one farmer this week. Just getting established on a farm which had been allowed to run down considerably in the days of the depression, he was hopeful that the upturn had come which would permit him to make one of the show places of Morrow county. He didn't care about making a million dollars, said he had never wanted a million dollars except for the purpose of helping somebody out of the hole.

And so the rain has fallen on fertile soil. Good crops of grain as well as good crops of resolutions may be expected.

HARDMAN

By LUCILLE FARRENS The people of the community surprised the teachers of the school with a reception and dinner last Friday afternoon. The pupils of the upper grade room were having a short program in honor of Columbus day which the visitors were invited to attend and which was well received.

Mrs. Chester Salling motored over from Prairie City last Thursday and is spending a while cleaning her house, fixing her fences and otherwise improving her home here as well as enjoying a visit with old time friends and relatives. Osel Inskip is visiting at the home of his parents this week. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Duvall of Portland spent a few days at the home of Mrs. Duvall's son, Blaine Chapel.

Mr. and Mrs. Orin McDaniel were visiting relatives here last week from their home at Lonerock. The board of directors of Dist. 40 met at the school house last Saturday and reconsidered the matter of repairing the school building. It was decided to open the work for bids to be opened at the school on October 22, 1935, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, disregarding the previous decision of giving the contract to T. D. Babb of Heppner.

Mrs. Clara Kirk was visiting friends here last Friday. Heppner visitors last Monday were Mr. and Mrs. Max Buschke and Dick Steers and sons Gus and Bunny. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hams spent last Sunday in the mountains where Mr. Hams is making the family's winter wood.

Billy Leathers spent last Monday visiting friends here from Portland. Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Chapel, Chas. Johnson and Herman Nelson were Heppner shoppers last Saturday. The young people of the community organized Christian Endeavor last Sunday evening. Officers elected were, president, Pat Bleakman; vice-president, Roland Farrans; secretary, Lucille Farrans; treasurer, Richard Robison; social chairman, Dolly Farrans; assistants, Delia Bleakman and Richard Robison. It was decided the social committee plan a party for the near future.

IRRIGON

MRS. W. C. ISOM. John Swearingin and Don Rutledge who returned from their hunting trip the first of the week were among the fortunate hunters, each bringing back a deer. Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Farrell, parents of Mrs. Nora Wilson, have moved into the small house near their daughter's for an indefinite stay.

A fine baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith Monday morning last week. Mrs. Lois Land of Gresham visited her mother, Mrs. Wilson, last week. Mrs. Gordon, sister of Mrs. Wilson, who has been visiting here returned to her home the last of the week. Rev. Homer Farrans held special services at the Pentecostal church Thursday night.

Mrs. B. P. Rand and two sons were guests of Mrs. James Warner Sunday.
