

Red Cross Wars on Carelessness In Home or While at Work on Farm

THE American Red Cross is throwing the weight of its entire organization behind a continuing campaign to combat the negligence and lack of knowledge in the home and on the farm which last year claimed nearly 40,000 lives and injured millions.

According to safety experts most accidents can be prevented. Every Red Cross Chapter and Branch will play a part in this large-scale humanitarian operation, and have mobilized to meet the challenge flung by negligence, according to Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Red Cross chairman.

Through an intensive educational program, the Red Cross will seek to explode the fallacy that the home is safe. Common and uncommon hazards will be pointed out; individual families will be shown how these hazards may be eliminated and instruction will be given in the avoidance of unsafe habits and practices apt to cause accidents.

Preparations have been made to inspect more than 30,000,000 homes, the inspection to be conducted by home dwellers themselves. Through the cooperation of educational groups, the school child will take a specially prepared inspection form into the home and survey it for hazards with the help of parent or relative.

Accidents in the homes of America kill more than 80 persons an hour each day, and run up a medical, nursing and insurance bill exceeding $1,000 per minute. Farm work accidents last year took more than 4,000 lives and maimed many permanently.

Accident prevention is a natural outgrowth of Red Cross instruction in first aid, a service initiated 25 years ago and responsible annually for saving many lives and preventing minor accidents from having major consequences.

Higher Education Worth Told by New Chancellor

University of Oregon, Eugene, October 22.—Oregon's higher educational institutions represent an actual resource worth $100,000,000, from which the state is actually benefitting every year to the extent of at least $5,000,000, it was declared here Saturday night by Dr. Frederick M. Hunter, chancellor of higher education, speaking before hundreds of "Oregon Dads" and their sons and daughters, at the ninth annual "Dad's Day" banquet held in John Straub Memorial hall. Dr. Hunter took as his topic, "Education as a Resource."

Dr. Hunter arrived at his figures, which he declared are conservative, by citing a recent survey which showed that college trained men during the past few years have earned 100 percent more than those who have not had this training. "If we estimate that the 20,000 alumni of the university and state college alone earn but $25 more per month as a result of their higher education, this is a sum of $5,000,000 per year," the chancellor pointed out. "This would represent a five percent return on a resource endowment of $100,000,000, which can be termed the actual worth of the institutions to the people of the state, since it brings in this return in actual wealth in the form of increased earning power."

The actual worth of higher education as a resource would even be much greater if it were possible to place an estimate on the great value of research and the results this field brings, Dr. Hunter declared. He cited the invaluable benefit to the world of the discovery of a cure of anemia, made at the medical school, and the various discoveries made by the state college that have aided in increasing crop yields and in controlling crop pests.

Support for the higher education system of the state, on the grounds that it is worth all its costs and more, was asked by Chancellor

Hunter. An enthusiastic response was accorded his address.

The big banquet was the climax to what a record number of fathers declared to be the best "Dad's Day" since the Oregon Dads were organized nine years ago. During the afternoon the fathers had their own rooting section at the Oregon-Idaho football game, and they displayed as much vigor and pep as did the students themselves.

At the annual mass meeting the "Oregon Dads" re-elected Earle Wellington, Portland, president, and again chose Merle R. Chessman, Astoria, for vice-president, Walter M. Cook of Portland, secretary, and Earle M. Pallett, Eugene, executive secretary. Three new members were elected to the executive committee, as follows: Joseph R. Riesch, Roy O. Burnett and Loyal H. McCarthy, all of Portland.

Other members of the executive committee who will continue in office are Ralph S. Hamilton, Rev. John W. Beard, Ralph Morrison, C. W. Morden, W. M. Davis, Willard Bond, all of Portland, and Carl Haberlach, Tillamook.

The university is all set for the most progressive year in the history of the institution, the fathers were told by Dr. C. Valentine Boyer, president of the university. He described the extra-curricular activities of students, which is a phase of university life of utmost importance, he declared. Through these students develop leadership initiative and other qualities. In these faculty members act as counselors and advisers, and let the students themselves supply the leadership, he pointed out.

The new library, which will be ready for occupancy next fall, was described by the fathers by M. H. Douglass, librarian. Greetings were also brought to the session by Mrs. Hazel Schwering, dean of women; Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel, and Virgil D. Earl, dean of men.

"KEEP YOUR CREDIT GOOD"

"Don't Be a Credit Cast-away!"

CREDIT is more than a matter of money. It is a matter of character. Good credit is a progressive asset. Poor credit is a progressive handicap. What is more forlorn than the man without credit—the man who has been trusted by his fellows and has flunked that trust?

By the same reasoning, what is more beneficial than good credit? The man with good credit looks to the future unafraid. Opportunities are his. Credit, his advantage. The man alert to his own interest—pays up and keeps his credit good!
