RURAL CLUB MEETS.

A meeting of the Morrow County Rural Teachers' club was held last Saturday, March 7th, at the Golden West school on Rhea creek, with Mrs. Heiny acting as hostess. During the business meeting there were discussions regarding the date of the next meeting. It was decided to meet Saturday, April 18, at Hardman.

A program committee was appointed consisting of Mrs. Clara and Miss Glavey. Transportation was left in the hands of Mrs. Heiny and Mrs. Kelly. A teachers' picnic for May was discussed. It was also suggested that each teacher bring some exhibit at the next meeting.

After the business meeting a potluck dinner was served. A program was then given by Mrs. Heiny's pupils which consisted of a harmonica quartette and a little playlet.

After this two splendid talks were given by Cecil Musgrave on "Teaching of Phonetics" and by Margaret Glavey on "Deficiencies in Paragraph Meaning." These were followed by general discussions on remedial reading.

Mrs. Rodgers gave a very helpful talk on "The Testing Program" and gave the names of a list of books obtained from the state library.

There was a small attendance at this meeting which is much to be regretted for these meetings are not only helpful and instructive but are also most enjoyable. They also give the teachers an opportunity to become better acquainted with one another and to talk over their various school problems.

It is hoped that more teachers will attend the next meeting.—Contributed.

SPRING GARDEN TIPS

By A. G. B. BOUQUET, O. S. C.

Italian or green sprouting Broccoli has been a popular vegetable in European countries for many years but has only recently become popular in the United States. The foreign population in this country consumes large quantities but its use is widening as its value becomes known. Since the best times of the year for broccoli are early summer and fall, sowings of seed are made in early spring and again in May for transplanting in the summer to have a fall crop. The variety most widely grown is the Early Green Calabrese.

Three common methods of growing onions are by planting seed directly in the garden, as is the case with the greater part of Oregon's commercial crop, by transplanting plants in the spring, as is done in growing Bermudas, and by planting onion sets, which is frequently done for green onions but seldom used in growing a crop of dry onions. Small sets make the best dry onions for often the larger size sets (above 3-4 inches in diameter) go to seed. Green onion plants as in the second method sometimes make "seeders" instead of large bulbs if they are checked in growth after being field set.

Emerald Gem, one of the earliest and sweetest home garden muskmelons for a short season, is small and globular but flattened at the ends. It is slightly ribbed, not heavily netted and has orange flesh that is very sweet and luscious. Jenny Lind, another useful melon for a small early type, has green instead of salmon flesh and is of fine quality.

The green globe artichoke grows especially well under conditions typical of the sea coast as is evidenced by the large acreage near the ocean in California. Suckers taken from established plants of good type will make good plants later on. This is the usual method of propagating the crop, as the plants do not come uniform and true from seed. These are being grown successfully on a limited scale in several parts of Oregon.

OSC Army Being Repaired

Corvallis.—Reconstruction of offices and balcony in the college armory damaged by fire in February, is now underway with as much student labor as possible being used. Final estimates turned in to the board of control showed the damage to be slightly in excess of $16,000. Money for the repair work comes from the state restoration fund to which all institutions contribute annually. In the rebuilding work some improvements will be made to give added protection to stores, arms and ammunition.

State Supplies More Students

Corvallis.—Final examinations for the winter term at OSC started this week and will end Wednesday, March 18. A brief spring vacation will continue until the opening of the spring term Monday, March 23. A report on geographical distribution of this year's students just made shows that the increase of 22 per cent in number over last year is almost entirely the result of more students enrolling from this state. The number of out-of-state and foreign students is only 10 more this year than last, while the cumulative total registration of regular students for this year is 3373 compared with 2788 a year ago. The total for the winter term is 3131.
