STATE CAPITAL NEWS

- Zimmerman?
Capitol Construction
Safe Driving

By A. L. LINDBECK

SALEM.—What of Peter Zimmerman? The plans of the former state senator from Yamhill county in the present campaign have the political prognosticators guessing to say the least.

A rather unusual situation has developed in the democratic race for state treasurer where the Oregon Democrat, official party organ, is openly advocating the nomination of Jack E. Allen of Pendleton as against U. S. Burt of Corvallis.

Young Democrats meeting in Salem this week in their fifth annual state-wide convention went on record with a demand for more of the spoils of office.

Election of C. C. Carlson of Portland as state president of the Young Democratic Clubs was conceded to be a victory for Gosselin who, with his gift for oratory and organization together with his control of patronage in the lower brackets, had the delegates eating out of his hand and easily dominated the convention from start to finish.

Administrators of Oregon's unemployment compensation act were considerably heartened this week by news from New York that the court of appeals—highest tribunal in that state—had upheld the constitutionality of the act, very similar to the Oregon law.

The proposal of Donald Young, Salem capitalist, to build an office building for state departments did not look so attractive as a close-up. No saving would be made in rental charges over those now being paid for quarters in down-town office buildings and Young wants the state to install its own heating system and furnish heat as well as water, light and janitor service, all of which are included in some of the rentals now being paid.

Eleven thousand adults are attending the 739 classes which have been organized as WPA projects under the supervision of the state department of education, according to C. A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction.

Actual construction work on Oregon's new capitol should get under way early in November according to members of the capitol reconstruction commission meeting here this week to complete plans for selection of the architect who will design the new structure.

Selection of the jury which is to pass on the entries in the architectural contest and pick the winner was made by the commission at this meeting, but the personnel of the jury will not be made known until after the close of the contest. The jury will include two members of the capitol commission, one layman not a member of the commission, and two architects of national repute, one from the east and one from the west. More than 200 architects from all sections of the country have announced their intention of competing. All entries must be in the hands of Arthur S. Benson, clerk of the supreme court, by May 21 and the award will be announced on May 29.

The excessive price of lime is preventing its use on Oregon farms agricultural experts declared in a conference here this week. The conference had been called by State Treasurer Holman with a view to encouraging the use of more lime in order to stimulate the state prison lime industry and provide work for more prisoners.

Signing of petitions is a serious matter and not to be taken lightly in the opinion of Attorney General Van Winkle who this week ruled that once a petition is presented to a county court the signers could not have their names removed from the document.

The campaign for safe driving is to be carried into the schools of Oregon. C. A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction, has announced plans for a one-week course in highway safety education to be presented in every senior and junior high school as well as the upper grades of elementary schools during the current school year.

School Days Are Numbered
Only three weeks more of school remain and some realize what that means, but there are others who do not seem to realize the seriousness of incompletes on their report cards.

Quilt Not Yet Won
Because of the fact that enough chances have not been sold, the quilt which was to have been given away at the Open House will not be given until later.

Boys' Sports
A six-man track team will leave here for Condon May 2 here they will participate in the annual track meet. The team will engage in the high jump, broad jump, the one hundred, two hundred twenty, four hundred forty yard dash, and the mile run.

Club News
The "H" club held a meeting on Monday to make plans for the grade school track meet to be held Friday. It is planned to have a green spot and hot dog stand at the field meet.

Grade News
The third grade has two pet polywogs whose names are Mehitabe and Oswald. From now on the students are going to study the life of the frog.

Humor
Flash—anyone wishing to buy purebred buttermilk-fed worms should see Scott McMurdo soon, as he has only a limited supply.

Class News
It is reported that one Charles Cox likes the taste of car inner tubes as was evidenced in the Bingham swimming pool when he bit a hole in a tube.

Open House
The annual Open House day of the Heppner schools was held on Friday, April 24, and proved to be exceptionally attractive and interesting.

Class News
Each of the eight grammar grades displayed a wide variety of class and individual projects. Many of the art displays were extremely colorful and of delicate workmanship.

youngsters. The second grade had a very neat display of story booklets, arithmetic booklets, picture studies and flower posters.

The fourth grade was unique in its display of a large home-made doll house representing an old-fashioned Dutch home with many appropriate posters of Dutch life to form the background and surroundings.

The sixth grade was attractively decorated by some beautiful flower posters and free hand drawings. The class project was preparation of a health display in the form of numerous posters.

The seventh grade was buried under the many art displays of outdoor scenes, health cards and drawings, arithmetic booklets, hygiene booklets, and sample business and friendly letters.

The eighth grade had some very interesting project work concerning civil government, besides having the room decorated by attractive posters and booklets.

The high school exhibits, consisting of individual projects, were nearly all of very high quality. The Farm Problems class exhibit of an old fashioned model T Ford engine proved to be a very typical example, with its frequent breakdowns and convulsions. From seven to eight o'clock the exhibits were open to inspection. At eight o'clock in order to attend the program, everyone went to the gymnasium.

A welcome speech by Mr. Bloom. The first grade presented three nursery rhyme skits—Simple Simon, Little Bo-Peep, and Little Miss Muffet. The Home Economics class gave a fashion show, modeling dresses which they had made.

Dora Bailey gave three readings, Mia Carlotta and Between Two Loves by Daly and The Fool's Prayer by Sill.

Ernest Clarke gave another reading, The Man with the Hoe, by Edwin Markham. The Heppner school band, under direction of Harold Buhman played two numbers, Washington Post March by Sousa and Urbana Overture by Roberts.

The fourth grade danced the minuet and then the grade school boys and girls gave a demonstration of games to complete the program.

After the program everyone returned to the school house to review the exhibits and partake of the tea and cookies that were served to all by the Home Economics class.

Home Ec Delegates to Pendleton
Last Saturday, April 25, four pupils of the Heppner Home Economics department and their instructor went to Pendleton to the district Home Economics club meeting.

Some of the guest-speakers were Dean Ava E. Milam, dean of Home Economics in Oregon State college; Miss Bertha Kohlhagen, supervisor of Vocational Home Economics for Oregon; Mrs. Birdie Robison, Home Making representative, Oregon State Board of Vocational Education; Miss Florence Suret, president of Association of American University Women.

The schools represented at the meeting were Baker, Wallula, Milton, Enterprise, Weston, Ontario, Pendleton and Heppner.
