this great democracy turn their thoughts again to those heroes in the Blue and Gray who gave their lives to cement it into an inseparable union of free states.

Originated as a memorial to the Civil war heroes, Memorial Day has come to mean more than that to the people of today. It is a time to nor not only the Civil war heroes, but the heroes who have worn the country's uniform in all wars, as well as those peacetime heroes whether or not they were connected with the military service. Combined with the original memorial idea today is the practice of decorating all graves of the departed. That practice is to be highly commended, and should extend to the place where no graves will remain neglected. It should be the practice of the living to see some good in all who have gone before, and on Memorial Day that good should be reflected in complete and unmarred beauty of the cemeteries.

Defeat Lamented.

OREGON VOTER has the following to say of the defeat of

J. G. Barratt for state senator: J. G. Barratt's defeat for the state senate inflicts a real loss on the state. Barratt was the outstanding new man of the special session-sane, informed, sagacious; had common sense and sense of humor. He was overwhelmed by the force of numbers in the populous counties of Umatilla and Union, swamping his high vote in the ers, which is approximately the county of Morrow also, his opponent number who participated in all the was a popular chap. It isn't often our legislature gets a man who is so exceptional as Barratt. He is the son of the former state high- blanks from the county agent or way commissioner, and is the manager and principal owner of the extensive sheep interests of the Barratts near Heppner.
