Drouth Comes Again.

MORROW county farmers, hit by short crops and low prices the last few years, may congratulate themselves when they view conditions now existing in the middle west. Already $250,000,000 worth of crops are estimated to have been destroyed by drouth in that section and the end is not yet if rains do not hurry, say daily press reports. The situation has become so critical with farmers in some sections that they have abandoned their homes, and many erstwhile selfsustaining farmers have been forced to enlist in WPA work.

The drouth situation has already been reflected in rising wheat prices and increased prices for other foodstuffs; and ironical as it may seem this section which last year had al-most a complete wheat crop failure due to drouth, seems to position this year to benefit from similar misfortune of others.

Again Mother Nature emphasizes the total inability of man to produce on a scale of planned econ-

Unemployment, like Mark Twain said of the weather, is something Washington has talked about a great deal for the last seven years, but does little about. Actually we have known as little about this subject as we did about the weather until 25 years ago. How many really are unemployed, are they "white collar" or so-called wage-earners, are they skilled or unskilled workers? All of these questions the dochas not bothered to answer while he continued to prescribe for the patient.
