

Flour Export Extended; Many Work Sheets Filed

Extension of the export subsidy on wheat flour from Pacific north-west states for one year has been approved by Secretary Wallace, giving promise of the removal of more than 2 1/2 million bushels of wheat from Oregon, Washington and Idaho by this device. The subsidy applies only to exports of flour to the Philippines.

This program was launched last March, and by the time it expired by limitation of time June 30, there had been 190,206 barrels exported by means of this aid. As it takes about 4 1/2 bushels of wheat for one barrel of flour, this was equivalent to approximately 875,000 bushels of wheat. The new program is limited to 575,300 barrels, or a movement essentially in proportion to that attained in the past four months.

Oregon State College.—Appointment of Howard Maple as freshman coach, with Wally Palmberg as his assistant in charge of basketball next year, completes the assignment of duties in the new intercollegiate athletic setup for the coming year.

Maple is a graduate of Oregon State and was selected on several all-American teams following the sensational victory in 1928 of Oregon State over the un-defeated New York university team. In addition he piloted Oregon State as quarterback in two successive victories over Oregon in his sophomore and junior years.

In addition to his football experience, Maple was varsity catcher in baseball and later went to the American league to play with Washington. For the past several years he has been assistant coach at Willamette university. He will be in charge of all freshman sports but will have Wally Palmberg, coast conference all-star forward for the Oregonians this season, to handle freshman basketball.

Decision was made by the board to start spring football training in January hereafter in order to avoid conflict with spring sports such as track and baseball. This will require Maple's services during the basketball season.

Members of the athletic board were enthusiastic over the sports prospects with the completion of the separate organization. The complete personnel as now arranged is as follows:

Carl Lodell, director and manager of intercollegiate sports; George Scott, alumni secretary, to serve part time as assistant manager; Lon Stiner, head football coach; Jim Dixon and Hal Moe, assistant football coaches; A. T. "Eats" Gil, basketball and baseball coach; Grant Swan, track coach; Howard Maple, head freshman coach; Wally Palmberg, assistant freshman coach; R. O. Coleman, golf; Jack Hewitt, swimming; Dr. G. T. Simms, tennis. All of the minor sports coaches and part of the major coaches give only part time to their specific coaching duties.

The entire cost will continue to be met from student fee-tickets and other gate receipts.

OSC Guidance Meet Successful. Corvallis.—Success of a recent vocational guidance conference held at Oregon State college during the first week of the summer session has brought a decision to make this an annual event here, says Carl W. Salsor, assistant dean of the school of education.

Dr. H. D. Kitson of Columbia university, New York, was leader of the conference which drew as high as 150 persons to some of the sessions. Dr. Kitson believes that all school systems of the future, even though small, will have available the services of vocational guidance and other specialists now known to be so important to the best educational development of children.

Probable Third Party Candidates

WASHINGTON... Above, left, is Congressman William Lemke, non-partisan of North Dakota, co-author of the Frazier-Lemke Farm Mortgage bill, said to be the likely candidate to get the Third Party presidential nomination by the combined Father Coughlin and Dr. Townsend forces in an August convention at Cleveland. Right, is Thomas O. O'Brien of Boston, lawyer, candidate for vice president.

Third Farm Labor Survey Report Made, OSC, WPA

The third in a series of research reports dealing with Oregon farm labor problems has just been issued by the agricultural experiment station at O. S. C. in cooperation with federal relief projects.

The preliminary report just published is a result of detailed study of the records of the past two seasons in the Gresham district. It is estimated that approximately 7,000 pickers are annually employed during the strawberry and raspberry seasons and that most of those are residents of the metropolitan area surrounding Portland.

In the seasons studied, more than 90 per cent of the resident labor was from within a 30-mile radius of the city of Portland and well over half of the total labor came from that area. For the 1935 raspberry season, out-of-state pickers represented 32.4 per cent of the total pickers employed though more than one-fifth of these out-of-state pickers came from Washington.

Tests conducted at the Oregon experiment station, electric fence was found entirely practical for dairy cows even when a smooth wire was used, but a smooth wire was not effective for pigs unless it happens to touch the animal's nose or ear. Branton believes that one heavily barbed wire, well insulated would have been effective with hogs, sheep or goats which have considerable natural protection from the electric current.

Use of electric fence is strung on insulators. Wood posts will not conduct the current from the wire when dry but during rainy weather they are likely to destroy its effectiveness.
