The July study meeting of the Women's Topic club was held at the home of Mrs. M. E. Cotter Saturday afternoon. "Birds" was the subject for study. Miss Emma Maynard read a very clever paper which she had prepared, on "The Anatomy of Birds." Mrs. Roy Lueallen told of the help given by birds in conserving the forests by destroying worms, etc., and also described the "dress" and habits of some birds found in the northwest. Mrs. M. E. Cotter continued the program with other notes on bird life. Mrs. Ture Peterson gave two readings and for a short time of entertainment the guests worked out their fortunes in numerology. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Cotter, Miss Maynard, Mrs. Lueallen and Mrs. H. D. McCurdy. It was announced that the social meeting would be held on Friday afternoon, July 23, at the home of Mrs. Lueallen. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harris returned Saturday from a vacation trip which took them to Seaside, then south on the coast highway to Newport. Driving inland they visited nieces of Mr. Harris at Corvallis and King's valley. A stop was made at Albany to visit Mr. and Mrs. Loren Hale in their new home. Mr. and Mrs. H. D. McCurdy were business visitors in Condon Saturday. They went on to Fossil and brought Mrs. Ray Beezley back with them for a visit with relatives. Last Friday evening a short program was presented at the Congregational church by the pupils of the daily Bible school and their teachers to give an idea of the work which they had been doing the previous two weeks. The hit of the evening was a dramatization of the story of Moses in the wilderness by the pre-primaries division. Following the program those present viewed the handwork of the students on display in the dining room and were served with punch and wafers by the youngsters. Although the daily Bible school closed with this program supervised play each week day morning will be carried on at the school grounds for the rest of the summer if sufficient interest is shown in the project. Hours will be 9:30 to 10 a. m. for younger children and 10 to 10:45 for the older children. C. W. Swanson, Mrs. Frank Lundell and son Billy were Pendleton visitors Monday. Harold Mason went to Portland Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Blake and Mrs. S. E. Moore visited in Heppner on Sunday. A number of farmers have started harvest operations but harvest will not be in full swing until next week Leo Gorgor was the first to put new wheat in the warehouse here. So far samples of grain that have been brought in are of very good quality and yields of from three to nine sacks have been reported. Miss Maxine McCurdy returned on Tuesday from a two weeks' vacation at Rockaway. Olive Pettesy is visiting with her aunt, Mrs. Frank Engelman, and with other relatives. J. O. Wortendyke of Bowser, B. C., with his daughters, Miss Evelyn and Mrs. Frank Hill, and her son were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Lindsey. Mr. Wortendyke is an uncle of Mrs. Lindsey whom she had not seen since coming west as a young girl. Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Grabbill had a family reunion at their home last Sunday when all of their children with their families were with them. Heavy Demand for Seed Of Crested Wheat Grass

An exceptional demand for crested wheat grass seed to be used in connection with the agricultural conservation program, together with the largest Oregon crop of this seed yet produced is reported by E. R. Jackman, extension agronomist at O. S. C., who has recently checked on the situation both in this state and nationally. Planting crested wheat grass on summer fallow is one of the main ways by which farmers in the Columbia basin will cooperate in the soil conserving program. Early indications were that there would be a large available crop of this seed nationally, but recent drought conditions have changed the situation so that fore-handed growers are losing no time in obtaining their required seed, Jackman says. Many growers are pooling their orders through arrangements made with county agent offices or otherwise, and already some 50,000 pounds of old seed carried over from last year, or this year's seed contracted for fall delivery, have been arranged for. The Oregon crop of seed this year promises to be especially good with around 100,000 pounds now in sight, judging from reports from various eastern Oregon counties. This grass, an introduction into the state by the state college, continues to show the greatest promise of all dry land grasses for grazing purposes in the dry land sections.

FIRE DESTROYS PASTURE.

A grass fire starting on the S. M. Morgan place in the Black Horse section Sunday afternoon got out of control and raced through ten acres of the Morgan pasture, across the McNamer pasture and into the J. G. Barratt pasture before it was halted. Morgan was working in his summer fallow when he discovered a small patch of grass burning and he seized a green sage brush and started to check it. The fire began to spread rapidly about that time and before he realized it the blaze was racing across his field in the direction of the McNamer pasture. Several men from town rushed to the scene of the fire and had it about extinguished when a contingent of CCC boys arrived.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON The latest sad story in figures is making Washington faces both happy and gloom. The happy are those who seek a cure for the squanderist epidemic. The gloom are those who wish that statements on the government's financial condition did not have to be made every year.

The happy now hope that the financial statements will make the 126,000,000 American people see where they are heading. The gloom fear that is what will happen.

The gloom were happy too for a time. That was when newspapers emphasized only that the government debt was $33,779,000,000; that expenditures for the last year were $38,800,000,000; that the deficit for the year was $4,764,000,000. Their happiness was based upon the fact that billions are almost beyond human comprehension, and that they mean nothing to the average man.

But that happiness was short-lived. First, the Associated Press calculated that the figures showed that out of each $1 spent by the federal government last year, 54 cents was borrowed. In other words that Uncle Sam went in debt to the tune of 54 cents out of each dollar he spent because his taxes were bringing in only 46 cents.

That was followed by other calculations making the picture more depressing. It was figured, for instance, that the $4,764,000,000 deficit meant an increase of $38 in the debt on each man, woman, and child in the country, or an increase of $152 on each average family of four.

Next, the $33,779,000,000 debt was translated into similar figures, showing that Uncle Sam's total debt amounted to $269 for each person, or $1,076 for the average family. And that the total cost of running the federal government last year was $70.48 per person, or $282 per family.

The worst of it, from the standpoint of the cover-uppers, was that Washington correspondence then began to emphasize the tax angle, pointing out that the only way Uncle Sam could pay his debt was by taking $1,076 in taxes from every family in the land.

These compilations made the new

$800,000,000 tax bill look insignificant. That bill was put forward as necessary to keep the federal government in sound financial condition. It meant additional taxes averaging $28 per year on each family. But what good is it, some correspondents asked, to levy new taxes of $28 on each family when the total debt averages $152 per family? Because despite the new taxes, each fact at the end of another year like the last one.

J. R. McCarl, comptroller general of the United States for fifteen years, won the title "Watchdog of the Treasury" when he was in that job. Now that he is out, folks in Washington are calling him a model of restraint.

True, when his term expired, he made caustic remarks about the mushroom growth of bureaucratic agencies, and about extravagance in personalities although he had ample reason.

Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, for example, did not like the microscopic intensity with which McCarl scrutinized work-relief expenses. So one day he loaded two trucks with barrels filled with vouchers, sent them to McCarl, and asked their approval in 48 hours.

McCarl's staff worked overtime and, to Hopkins' surprise, finished the job in 48 hours. And McCarl has not yet said anything publicly about that or many other similar episodes.

McCarl is slated to aid Senator Byrd of Virginia in a study to be presented to the next congress designed to curb useless government bureaus and duplications of activity. In other words, to put government on a business basis.

NEW BUILDINGS SUGGESTED.

Added impetus was given to the new state building program this week when Governor Martin referred to the state planning board the problem presented by the need for an additional office building and a library building. While the probable cost of these buildings has been estimated at $1,000,000 and $500,000 respectively this is one of the features of the program which the planning board is expected to develop in its study of the state's needs. New buildings will also necessitate the purchase of additional land and in this connection Governor Martin will present to the next legislature the suggestion advanced by the capitol architects that the state acquire the four residential blocks immediately north of the capitol site, two on either side of Summer street. The governor, however, has declared that he will not recommend either the buildings or more land but will content himself with presenting the need of both to the lawmakers together with such suggestions as the planning board might work out.

The Union Missionary society will meet in the parlors of the Methodist church Friday, July 24, at 2:30 p. m. A good program is being arranged. A special offering will be taken for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Notson, missionaries in China.
