Ol' Swimmin' Hole An Unsafe Place

CONCURRENT with the agitation of Heppner Lions club for a swimming tank comes some timely advice and comment on public swimming places by the Oregon State Board of Health.

Says the Weekly Bulletin: "Swimming is practiced by all races and is an acquired accomplishment of man. It is a healthful and exhiler-ating form of exercise if certain hygienic restrictions are given proper consideration. Swimming, under the right conditions in lakes, outdoor pools and sea beaches, is both healthful and pleasurable. greatest danger is that rivers or lakes may be contaminated by sewage or that the ocean tide may wash in impurities from sewage.

"The prevention of disease and injury by accident as a result of swimming is a public health problem. At this season of the year it becomes a very personal matter to everyone who expects to swim or who has children who will swim. Many natural bathing places such as streams, lakes and ponds are frequently unsatisfactory for public swimming. All surface waters are subject to more or less contamination. A dangerious degree of contamination is more likely to found near the centers of popula-tion where the demand for public bathing places is greatest. Furthermore, natural bathing places usually have a disadvantage from the standpoint of danger of injury and drowning. As a result swim-ming pools are receiving a larger part of the patronage of the swimming public. This is so applicable to the situation in Heppner that it might have been written with our condidion in mind. One gilmpse of Wil-low creek in its present inert stage is sufficient to quell any desire one may have for taking a plunge. Of course there is so little water now that the deepest holes would not af-ford a bath for a small boy, but even if there were more water it would not be safe to swim in the Most parents with children old enough to swim will doubtless join with the Lions in urging the early construction of a swimming pool where young and old alike may joy the invigorating sport. The Lions are undertaking a difficult step in endeavoring to raise funds for the tank by popular subscription but there seems to be no other way of procuring funds and their effort should be met with a cheerful response by every citizen who has the welfare of the youth of the com-munity at heart, to say nothing of civic pride.

Farmers, Investors Become Oregon-Minded.

MIDDLE-WEST and California farmers are becoming Oregonminded, according to a report re-cently issued by the land development department of the Portland chamber of commerce. This opinion is based on a report which covers the first six months of the present year and shows that 3.397 inquiries concerning opportunities for farming and land development were received. Letters and questionnaires were sent to these inquirers and of that number 424 replied, representing a possible capital investment of $1,889,810.

Most of the inquiries were relative to lands in the western part of the state and the Vale-Owyhee district in eastern Oregon. This seems to be a natural tendency, due to the fact, perhaps, that many of the prospective investors are from the drouth-ridden districts of the middle west who are seeking surcease from such conditions in the green clad hills and vales of western Oregon, or who are looking for farming conditions similar to those they are leaving behind with the exception that water in abundance may Oregon has practically every variety of soil and climatic condition found in the several states of the That sound like a broad statement and if you are in doubt, check it over for yourself and see if it is not true. We have our highly productive regions and some that don't come under that class. Yet, little of the state may be rightfully termed waste land. That which is not adapted to profitable farming is worth something as grazing land, and, in this connection, it is pertinent to remark that the plow has destroyed much too valuable grazing land in Oregon as in other western states.

Morrow county, like several of her eastern Oregon neighbors, may not appeal to the average middle westerner or Californian at the present, their dollars grow. Oregon has not expanded in some ines as rapidly as her neighbors, notably California, and it is becoming apparent that no small amount of California capital is seeking investment in this state. The stable form of government and the tendency of business in general to conform to a policy of pay-as-you-go is being eyed by capital in other sections of the country. These facors, coupled with many natural advantages, herald a growth hereto-fore unmatched in this and other northwest states.

Is it struck the Walla Walla valley. necessary to remind one and all of importance of exercising care in the forests, the grain fields, and along the highways where dry grass and weeds await only the careless dropping of a lighted match or cigarette to start a serious blaze? The reason why so many men do not care to work and would rather remain idle is often due to the fact in many instances that they were not trained to work when they were young. Work is a habit with the human race. Naturally man des not care to do hard work.
