Official Paper for Morrow County

MISUNDERSTANDING. There appears to be considerable misunderstanding in regard to the the United States to vote in this Article 2. Section 4, of the Constitution of Oregon reads as follows: "For the purpose of voting, no person shall be deemed to have gained, or lost a residence, by reason of his presence, or absence while employed in the service of the United States, or of this state nor while engaged in the navigation of the waters of this state, or of the United States, or of the high seas; nor while a student of any seminary of learning; nor while kept at any almhouse, or other asylum, at public expense; nor while confined in any public prison."

Some persons have construed this section to absolutely bar members of the Civilian Conservation Corps from the right to vote, but the writer advised the county clerk that such was not necessarily true; but since the attorney general has rendered a written opinion on the oint at the request of Hon. George Codding, the writer was not free to write an opinion on the point. However, the writer took the position if a person in the service of the United States had in good faith come an inhabitant of the State of Oregon with the intention of establishing a permanent residence in this state, prior to May 4, 1936, and was a citizen of the United States and over the age of twentyone years, he had a right to vote at the ensuing election. The attorney general's opinion confirmed this opinion of the writer. If, however, the intention, in good faith, to become a permanent resident of this state had not been formed prior to May 4, 1936, and accompanied by physically entering the state or being in the state at that time, then the person desiring to vote could not legally register or vote.

The supreme court of this state held in the case of Wood vs. Fitz-gerald that an employee of the United States may acquire a residence at the location of his employment by taking appropriate steps for es-tablishing his domicile at such place. The question as to whether such person has taken appropriate steps to so establish his domicile or legal residence, in good faith, is subject to inquiry. And if there is any reason to doubt that such person has, in good faith, so established his domicile, it is the duty of the members of the election board, under their oath, to subject the person offering to vote to appropriate questions to determine whether in fact such person is qualified to vote.

It has come to the attention of the writer that some persons have been contending that employees of the United States have the right to vote the national ticket even if the have not estbalished a bona fide residence in this state six months prior to the election. This is ab-solutely erroneous. The right to vote is wholly determined by the state law. The only thing the gen-eral government has ever done, which affects the right to vote is the enactment of the 15th amendment to the constitution, which provides that a state may not deny or abridge the right of citizens of the United States to vote on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude. If a person has the of servitude. If a person has the right to vote for presidential elect-ors, he has a right to vote for all other officers. If he does not have a right to participate in the election of state officers he has no right to vote for presidential electors.

So, if any such person has reg-istered, thinking he had a right to vote the so-called national ticket, the election board should not permit him to vote. He should have applied to his own state election officials for an absent voter's bal-lot. No one can be qualified to vote in two different states; hence, any voter who is qualified to vote an absent voter's ballot in another state, is not qualled to vote in this
