Homecoming Expected to Bring Biggest O.S.C. Jam

Corvallis.—Corvallis is expecting one of its largest crowds in history for this year's homecoming celebration, Saturday, November 21, when Oregon and O. S. C. play their annual state championship battle on Bell field. This will be the first game in Corvallis since before the depression as the contest was transferred to Portland for several years.
Homecoming events will start Thursday night with an inter-fraternity sing, and will continue Friday when the upperclass students will spend considerable time getting the campus decorated, while freshmen build their annual bonfire. One new building, a dozen new tennis courts and many other campus improvements are being featured as attractions for old graduates returning.

Report on Willamette River Survey Issued

That sulphite liquor waste discharged from the four paper mills now in operation along the Willamette river places an oxygen demand on the river equal to that from a population of some 489,000 persons is pointed out in a report of the technical sub-committee working under the board appointed by Governor Meier three years ago to make a specific study and report on factors contributing to river pollution.
The findings of the committee are contained in an engineering experiment station bulletin just published at Oregon State college, entitled, "Industrial and Domestic Wastes of the Willamette Valley," by G. W. Gleason, acting head of the chemical engineering department, and F. Merryfield, assistant professor of civil engineering.

The fact that the available oxygen in the Willamette river decreases rapidly from Salem to Portland at low water seasons, and that in general the conditions of the river during these periods are critical from the standpoint of fish life and undesirable from the pollution standpoint was established by the sanitary survey conducted by the engineering experiment station at O. S. C. during the summers of 1929 and 1930. The chief purpose of the survey just completed was to study the wastes discharged into the river from the pulp and paper mills and other industrial plants, to determine their biochemical oxygen demand, investigate possible methods of treatment, and to make recommendations.

The committee points out that in making the survey it had the hearty cooperation of the paper industry, which recognizes the problem and would welcome a successful and economically practicable solution. No present method of treating waste sulphite liquor has been shown to be generally feasible from an economic standpoint, the report shows, although a number of processes are in successful operation under certain conditions. One of these, that of ponding and aerating sulphite wastes before discharging into the river, was recommended by the committee as worthy of trial under commercial conditions in Oregon. Experimental operation was suggested at the Lebanon plant of the Crown Willamette Paper company, where a suitable small pond is already in use and where the experiment could be conducted at nominal expense.

ISSUE FINE EDITION.
A specially attractive souvenir edition of the "Sagebrush Chronicle," publication of Camp Heppner 2343 CCC, was issued last week in celebration of the camp's first anniversary. An attractively drawn cover on blue stock marked the edition. It was reproduced throughout by mimeograph. Dedication to Capt. W. R. Reynolds, camp commandant.

FETED AT PARTY.
Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Gemmill, who are leaving Tuesday to make their home at Salem, were remembered with a surprise farewell party at their home Sunday evening tendered by American Legion and auxiliary members. Many members of each organization joined in the housewarming, and presented the Gemmells with a memory gift.

EXAMINER HERE 27TH.
C. M. Bentley, examiner of operators and chauffeurs from the office of Earl W. Snell, secretary of state, will be at the courthouse in Heppner, Saturday, Nov. 27, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. All those wishing permits or licenses to drive cars should get in touch with Mr. Bentley at that time.

PHOTOGRAPHERS VISIT.
Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Hall, Bend photographers, served the local public for several days this week with a temporary studio set up in the corner space of the new Peters building. They expected to finish their work here today.

"We do not mean to be ungrateful but we are forgetful."
Ten men received help from Christ. One returned thanks. We are constantly asking of God. How often do we thank Him?

Religion without thanksgiving is like a song without music. God could get along without our gratitude. But we cannot get along without offering it. You can thank God for your blessings. Can you also thank Him for your trials? Often they are conveyors of your greatest benefit. We should never approach God without thanking Him for something.

We should never live a day without expressing our thankfulness to God by doing something for others. Thankfulness which does not find expression in giving becomes mere lip-worship.

At the morning service the pastor will have a special thanksgiving message. Selected music by the choir. The evening service will be one of praise and thanksgiving.

Wheat Grass Shows Up on Range
Lakeview.—Twenty acres of range land on the Walt Leehmann ranch at Salt creek in Lake county, broadcast to crested wheat grass seed three years ago, this year showed a fair stand of strong, substantial crested wheat grass plants among the bronzo grass, sage brush and lupines, says County Agent Vic Johnson. The area was inspected recently by W. O. Harriman, supervisor of the Fremont national forest, and Melvin Burke, range examiner.

CARD OF THANKS.
We wish to extend our sincere thanks to all the kind friends and neighbors for their help and expressions of sympathy in the time of our bereavement. We sincerely appreciate the floral tribute though some arrived too late for the services.

STATE CAPITAL NEWS.

SALEM.—The Oregon returns in the recent battle of the ballots were not without their usual quota of surprises, not the least of which was the astounding plurality amassed by President Roosevelt. While this state had been pretty generally conceded to the Democratic candidate not even his most rabid partisans had anticipated the landslide which swept every county in the state—including rock-ribbed Republican Benton—into the Roosevelt column. Republicans who had conceded a Roosevelt victory in the state had grudgingly estimated his margin of victory at 15,000 to 20,000. Democrats, on the other hand, had claimed the state for their candidate by anywhere from 40,000 to 75,000, a few of the more wild-eyed partisans boosting the margin to as high as 100,000. The voters gave him a plurality of more than 143,000.

Only a little less surprising than the huge total rolled up by Roosevelt was the strength displayed by Willis Mahoney, democratic candidate for United States senator, who, carried along on the crest of the democratic landslide and with substantial aid from his Townsendite admirers came within 6000 votes of unseating the veteran Chas. L. McNary, republican floor leader in the senate, and generally accounted for easy victor in the race for re-election.

Alfred Dobson, democrat, who was expected to give the veteran I. H. Van Winkle a hard race for the attorney generalship did so, coming within 11,000 of winning.

One of the most unexplainable results of the election was the big vote polled by the old age pension amendment which came within 3500 votes of carrying and which, had it been approved, would have completely disrupted the state's old age pension set-up, drying up the state and county old age pension funds and leaving nothing with which to match federal aid to the aged.

SALEM.—Oregon school districts clipped an aggregate of $2,229,521 off their debt load in the past two years, a survey by State Treasurer Rufus Holman reveals. The school debt load—bond and warrants—which totalled $19,945,781 on July 1, 1934, had been reduced to $17,646,349 on July 1 of this year.

Twenty-five of the state's 36 counties reported progress in the reduction of their school debts during the biennium ranging from a low of $449 in the case of Union County to $1,655,236 for Multnomah county. Eleven counties, on the other hand, show increased debt loads at the end of the two year period. Of this latter class Marion leads with an increase of $556,538 in its school indebtedness, largely accounted for by new bond issues to finance new school buildings in the Salem district.

Lincoln county with only $8800 of bond and warrant debt is shown to have the lightest school debt load with Jefferson's $22,692 ranking second and Gilliam's $47,449.05, third.
