

Spirit of Christmas May be Reflected In Decorations

Lions Set Mass Meeting; Green's Feed Store Gets Prize.

Looking to promotion of the yuletide spirit in Heppner, the Lions club voted at its Monday luncheon to sponsor a community meeting at the council chambers tomorrow evening to talk plans for decorating the city.

One or maybe two large Christmas trees to be placed at intersections on Main street were in prospect with councilmen unofficially favoring such action, it was announced. Also, P. P. & L. was said to have offered free lighting for them. Action by Lions was taken on the proposal that a united effort be made to have all business houses join in adding to the Christmas show.

Suggestions were offered of prizes to be given for the best decorated store and a general community treat, details of which it was thought best to work out at a general community meeting if enough interest is taken to make them possible.

An important meeting on development of the Columbia river was announced by S. E. Notson to be held at The Dalles Dec. 15, when Col. T. M. Robins, divisional army engineer, will conduct a hearing on proposed dams. Among those to be considered is the proposed 550 foot dam at Celilo, which Mr. Notson said would drown out every town above it on the river as far as Pasco and part of Pasco. Whether the next dam on the river will be constructed below Umatilla rapids will be determined largely by the success of getting barges past the present rapids at the mouth of the John Day river, he said.

Success of the Eastern Oregon Wheat league meeting last week end was reported by President Ray P. Kinne, and Monday evening Joe Belanger reported results of the Lions window-decorating contest. Green's Feed store was awarded first place and the $5 prize by the committee of outside judge who reported competition as very close. They did not give any honorable mention, but named as participating were Central Market, Gordon's, Elkhorn restaurant, E. G. Noble, Humphreys Drug Co., F. W. Turner, Wilson's, Ferguson Motor Co., P. P. & L., Heppner Bakery and Safeway store.
