the dance steps as the large gentleman moved his shoulders in time to the music. Lions quartet, Joe Belanger, F. W. Turner, Dr. R. C. Lawrence and Blaine E. Isom, dressed as waiters with long mustaches, amused with their songs. The trio of Heppner unit, American Legion auxiliary, Mrs. E. L. Morton, Mrs. R. B. Ferguson and Miss Juanita Leathers, accompanied by Mrs. J. O. Turner, sang two numbers. Lexington grange prepared and served the meal. No visiting dignitaries were overlooked in the introductions and after-dinner humor was liberally supplied.

Convention sessions proper were opened each morning with numbers by Heppner school band, last year's class B state champions, directed by Harold Buhman. Solos by Mrs. E. L. Morton accompanied by Mrs. J. O. Turner opened the Friday afternoon session, and tap dance by Jacqueline Tetz and Mary Lou Ferguson accompanied by Mrs. Alden Blankenship opened the Saturday afternoon session. C. B. Cox, mayor-elect, welcomed growers, and Chas. Nish, vice-president, responded, at the opening.

Principal speaker was Dr. E. J. Bell, assistant chief of western area AAA, who Friday afternoon explained the world wheat situation and told some of the things which may be expected from the 1937 crop adjustment program. Other speakers included L. E. Williams, assistant cashier U. S. National bank of Portland in charge of foreign exchange; H. G. Avery, Union county agent; D. E. Richards, superintendent Union experiment station; W. S. Nelson, secretary The Dalles chamber of commerce; Rin Kennedy, Pacific Northwest Grain Growers assn.; Wm. A. Schoenfeld, dean and director of agriculture, O. S. C.; S. T. White, state department of agriculture; D. E. Stephens, superintendent Moro experiment station.

E. Harvey Miller, president, in his opening address told forcibly aims and purposes of the league, and outlined some of the conditions facing the wheat industry that needed the league's attention. Charles W. Smith, secretary, gave a comprehensive report of the league's activities for the last year. A record total membership for its nine years of existence, more than 800, was shown.

Paid memberships at this year's conference exceeded those received at any previous conference, totaling 175.
