

Woolgrowers Have Good Convention At Ontario

J. G. Barratt Re-elected President; Act on Problems.

(Eastern Oregon Observer)

The 4th annual convention of the Oregon Wool Growers drew to a close late Wednesday afternoon (last week) in Ontario after what officials of the association claimed as one of the most successful meetings ever held by the group.

As final business of the meeting, J. G. Barratt of Heppner was re-elected president and Herman Oliver of John Day, president of the Oregon Cattleman's association, was named vice-president. Barratt was unopposed while Oliver won a five-way race nosing out John V. Withers of Paisley by three votes. Other candidates were Ernest Johnson of Wallowa, Mac Hoke of Pendleton and David Jones of Suntext.

Although wintry weather cut an expected attendance of 500 wool growers to less than 300 actually here the meetings lacked no enthusiasm. Prominent officials of the National Wool Growers association included R. C. Rich, Burley, Ida, president, who addressed the group Tuesday afternoon on the problems of the sheep industry. F. R. Marshall, Salt Lake City, secretary, talked on the national lamb marketing campaign Wednesday afternoon. Marshall was slated for an earlier appearance on the program but was late arriving.

Main discussions and addresses of the convention centered on the Taylor Grazing act, the present slump in the lamb market, its cause and possible remedies, and other problems pertaining to the wool industry.

Committee reports on wild life and predatory animals, transportation, marketing and promotion and resolutions and organizations took up most of the afternoon meeting.

Resolutions caused considerable debate when presented on the floor, the most lively argument of the entire convention being inspired by a resolution on the Petingill bill pertaining to the 4th clause of the transportation act. In transit from committee recommendation to motion on the floor before the general assembly the exact intention of the recommending committee was reversed and several hot arguments resulted from the tangle. The problem was finally solved by taking no action on the recommendation, allowing the same policy as has been in effect for the past several years to stand.

Our new Hymnals have arrived and will be used next Sunday. In the morning we will install them into service. In the evening a dedicatory service will take place and the hymnals will be formally dedicated and blessed to the use of the church. A service of song by the congregation and special numbers by the choir will mark this dedication. The intermediate class of boys who were largely responsible for earning the money for the purchase of the books will have a special part in the service. The new hymnal is a great book. The Methodist Episcopal Church, the Protestant Methodist Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church South all collaborated in the compilation of the new hymnal. It is hymnal, psalter and prayer book combined and arranged for private and public devotion. Come and join with us in getting acquainted with our new books.

Important Bills Lacking at Salem

By A. L. LINDBECK
(State Capital News Bureau)

Salem.—There is a noticeable dearth of important legislation before the session now in its second week. Except for the need to finance state activities already established no proposals have yet appeared in either legislative body which would justify a long drawn out session.

Such bills as have been thrown into the legislative hopper are for the most part of very minor importance. There are several that will attract their share of attention before committees and on the floor—if they ever get that far—but nothing that can be said to be of vital importance to the welfare of the state. For instance there is Senator Lessard's proposal to repeal the milk control act, and Senator Carey's proposal to repeal the criminal syndicalism act and a proposal on the part of Senator Stringer to put a stop to the further expansion of branch banking, all of which will precipitate a lot of debate pro and con.

Then over in the House there is a bill by Hyde, Eckersley, Bull, Monroe, Oleen, Senator Ross and others to relieve the automobile drivers of the necessity of punting up a dollar every two years for a new driving permit which will receive the support of a lot of motorists and the opposition of the highway department and good roads enthusiasts. And another group of representatives have joined in an attempt to restore the "good time" credit practice at the penitentiary which was upset when Governor Martin refused to permit the release of Earl Fehl, former county judge of Jackson county.

This dearth of bills, however, does not mean that the famine is to continue. There are lots of ideas afloat, many of which will materialize in time into tangible form. Representative Bull, for instance, has served notice that he proposes to reduce the age for participation in old age pensions to 65 years. If he does it will be only after the hardest kind of a fight for there is plenty of opposition to any liberalization of the pension program at this time and even if such a measure did pass the legislature it would have to run the gauntlet of the executive veto unless Governor Martin can be shown where the extra $3,000,000 to finance such a program is to come from.

BEAVERS "SHOOT" SELVES.

A feature in the farm and home magazine section of the Sunday Oregonian two weeks ago was a picture of two beavers at work cutting down a big tree on the Frank Wilkinson place above town on Willow creek. The feature was prepared by Josephine Mahoney, local Oregonian correspondent, from a picture obtained by W. E. Francis, state policeman. Mr. Francis got the picture by setting his camera so the beavers tripped it themselves. The process was tedious and many plates were spoiled before the picture shown was obtained. Mr. Wilkinson protects the beavers on the belief that they are nature's way of assisting with the work of moisture conservation. He is even willing to let them fell the big trees in building their dams, according to the article.

NOTSON MOVES OFFICE.

S. E. Notson, retiring district attorney, yesterday completed work of moving his office from the courthouse to quarters upstairs in First National bank building. Frank Alfred, new district attorney, was prevented this week by illness from getting his office established next door to Mr. Notson, but expected to get moved from upstairs in Humphreys building within next few days. Dr. R. M. Rice and Dr. R. C. Lawrence are now established in their joint offices on the ground floor of the bank building with entrance on May street. In the moving process Mr. Notson broke down the arch in his right foot. The injury was painful and required a doctor's attention.

GRAND OFFICER TO VISIT.

Ruth chapter 32, Order of Eastern Star, is expecting a visit from a grand lodge officer tomorrow evening, reports Mrs. Virginia Turner, worthy matron. A 6:30 pot-luck dinner is planned for the occasion to which all members are invited. All lodge work will be exemplified later in the evening.

RESIGNS OFFICE.

J. G. Barratt, president Oregon Wool Growers association, received resignation from Herman Oliver of John Day who was elected vice-president of the association at the Ontario convention last week. Mr. Oliver gave the press of other work, including presidency of Oregon Cattle and Horse Raisers association, as reason for not accepting the wool-growers' post. His successor will be named shortly by the association's executive committee.
