The Pendulum Swings Upward.

CERTAIN signs of progress are on the horizon for Morrow county. They became more distinguishable this week as the county started emerging from the throes of one of the hardest winters in history.

Foremost looms the favorable prospect of a good market for products of farm and herd. Then comes the probability of a good production year. True, sheepmen have undergone an expensive feeding season, and such signs of spring as are being shown may be of short duration. There is yet time for more winter. However, lambing operations which are getting underway bring reports of good results to date. It is yet early, too, to predict the condition of fall sown wheat, which generally has not emerged from its winter coat. A fair amount of moisture, much of which has made its way into the ground, does augur well for spring seeding, soon to be underway on a large scale should the real break in winter be truly at hand.

These signs of better times in the county's basic industries are reflected in the aura that contributes further to the picture of progress. In this aura are seen the street surfacing project planned to get underway in the spring, and the new garage and service station to occupy the vacant corner on Main street where once stood the old Palace hotel, a vacancy that has been an eyesore since the hotel was razed by fire in 1918.

A general undertone of planned improvements, and added outlay of capital investment is an encouraging note in the signs of economic improvement.

As spring nears, the buzz of activity increases. There is much to be done and a general humor to be a-doing. Morrow county truly appears to be emerging from the shackles of fear and lethargy that prevailed in times of recent economic stress. Mayhap, the long-hoped-for era of better times is at hand.

The Helping Hand.

A FINE spirit of cooperation was twice evidenced this week by business houses in backing school activities. When an appeal was made for funds to help the band, the response was ready and generous. Again, business houses readily boosted the basketball tournament being played tomorrow and Saturday.

That is a healthful sign. It indicates that those in charge of Heppner's purse strings realize a pride in and responsibility toward the business leaders of tomorrow. The students in turn are doing their part. They are making a band that is a real pride of the whole community. They have produced a basketball team whose showing is commendable.

The financial burden which makes these things possible is not always easy, especially for the parents of those who must buy musical instruments and provide athletic equipment. But there is no denying the satisfaction realized from the dividends.

Splash! Splash!

"BY GOLLY, it's a problem what to do with a youngster. Now, you take it with my boy. If he wasn't content just to ride his wagon up and down the street, I don't know what I would do. I can't just let him run wild to bother everybody. I can't always be correcting him for things that aren't his fault. It surely would be swell if we had a swimming pool. Anyway, I hate to see him grow up without having a chance to learn to swim."

That's the story of one parent of a pre-school child heard this week. Not the whole story, but part of it. It is a typical expression of a situation confronting many parents, and will confront still others during the summer season when those children now in school have more leisure time on their hands.

There is no denying the need for a swimming pool, and little opposition is apparent to its being obtained if a way can be found for financing it. Levying a tax for the purpose this year is out of the question as the tax roll is already made up. Bonds might be voted at a special election, but construction by this method means too greatly increased cost.

The possibility of raising sufficient funds through donations and benefit entertainments has been suggested, but it is unlikely that a swimming pool could be had in time for use this summer by this means. Formation of a stock company has also been suggested, but so far no plans have been found of a workable nature.

Lions, B. P. W. and other organizations have signified willingness to do all possible to bring a swimming pool. Plans and specifications of possible pool projects have been studied, with estimated costs of each. A site has been provided by city and county.

There need only be shown a way to finance the venture, determine upon the project desired—then the splash, splash of youngsters diving into the pool may be realized.

A FRIEND TO MAN.

Mr. Editor:

Did you ever live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to man? I think not!

Since the beginning of the recent cold snap I've pulled, pried or towed 14 cars and trucks out of the snow, or mud. Have gotten out of bed at midnight, built a fire under my tractor to get it started, when the temperature was 18 degrees below zero, drove it over a mile to pull a car out of the snow only to see its tail lights go out of sight for thanks. I have loaned tire chains to the Social Ridge school bus on the worst night of this winter and driven to Arlington to meet my wife, without them. I had five scoop shovels last fall, now there is one—over a dozen log chains and had to borrow one of Arnold Pieper to let the CCC boys use to pull their tractor out. Log chains cost five dollars apiece at the Sears Roebuck stores. I don't know what they would cost at Heppner.

I've been glad to be able to help any person who was in trouble, the county outfits—the county bulldozer ran by using the mag off one of my tractors almost all winter—and even have assisted the state trucks, but I drew the line at playing Santa Claus to the Federal government. Using the well known sarcasm of our County Judge I'd say, "I just wasn't big enough."

If any county official or anyone connected with the Gazette had ever been unfortunate enough to own a new $4000 piece of equipment would they have hired it unattended to a group of perfect strangers to take several miles across country, to pull thirty thousand pounds of pig iron out of the mud, for five dollars? Again, I think not!

While sitting in the house reading your flattering article, Lawrence Slocum, our local school bus driver, was using my car to take his children to school and when he returned he used the same tractor that the CCC boys used, to pull his bus out of the mud.

I have asked nothing and received nothing for any services that I have been able to give except that five dollars which you criticize me for asking, for a fifteen dollar job.

The bulldozer was stuck on a road several miles from here that I haven't used since last September and won't use until next harvest (God grant us rain) and there are others who have a tractor and live nearer this stalled rig than I do.

Well, anyway I still live here and the highway still goes by and wouldn't it be a coincidence if, in some future winter the editor of the Gazette or some county official should get snowbound out front and have to ask for help?

One who lives in a house by the side of the road and resents being publicly spanked for helping.
