

Cellophane Said to be Useless in Fog Driving

The current vogue for using yellow glass or cellophane covered headlights to give better fog penetration may be a courteous gesture to other drivers, but it has little if any real value to the driver using such a device, says Dr. W. Weniger, head of the physics department at Oregon State college.

When asked to comment on the scientific basis for such use, Dr. Weniger said that colored light beams offer no advantage in reducing glare or increasing vision that cannot be obtained by other means. Among "other means" he particularly recommended the direction of the light beam down nearer the road surface and fairly near the car. This can be done by use of glassware and reflectors designed to give a sharp cut to the light beam.

The theory in the use of the colored lenses is that the red or infrared rays are not scattered and diffused by the fog particles to the extent that the blue light waves are. The yellow glasses and cellophane absorb the blue and transmit mostly green, yellow and red. The catch comes from the fact that the eye is insensitive to deep red light and hence no advantage is gained by limiting the light to such waves.

New Grass Nursery Established.

Redmond—Carey Stearns of the Lapine community is cooperating with County Agent Gus Hagglund in the establishment of a new range grass forage nursery on his farm. The grasses were seeded in plots of three rows each, 24 inches apart and one rod long, all enclosed within a rodent-proof fence. Two plots 4 x 6 feet were also planted to crested wheat grass to test methods of seeding. One plot was seeded and lightly raked in, and on the other the seed was placed in shallow furrows across the slope and left uncovered.

Alabama is variously called the "cotton" state, the "Lizard" state and the "Yallerhammer" state.

Missourians.
Mr. Notson further discussed the present plan to reorganize the supreme court, declaring that party lines had been shattered in the alignment of forces for and against the proposal. He believed any attempt to amend the Constitution in any manner than that provided by the Constitution was against the interests of the people, and that the supreme court reorganization required constitutional amendment. He saw the offering of full time pay for retirement of judges over 70 as a bait to get them to resign. He believed the necessity for appointing new judges to speed work of the court was unnecessary as the high tribunal has kept up with its docket for the last eight years. He cited the legal profession as preponderantly against the proposed plan. He foresaw the judiciary being made subservient to the executive department, thereby destroying the system of checks and balances which have preserved the liberties of a free people for 150 years. The court reorganization would open the way for establishment of a dictatorship, he believed.

As a committee to cooperate in staging the B. P. W.-Lions dinner, March 22, President Ray P. Kinne appointed Joseph Belanger, John Turner and C. J. D. Bauman.

A communication was read showing the availability of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Roy for a concert in Heppner some time in the near future. Mr. Roy, former Pilot Rock resident, received widespread recognition as a tenor a few years ago when he won the Atwater Kent nation-wide radio audition while a student at O. S. C. The club decided to investigate the matter further.

Latest effort of the slot machine crowd to try to embarrass those who oppose their operations has been to introduce a bill at Salem to ban betting on horse races through so-called bookmakers. We already have a law banning such betting but the nervous slot machine manipulators seem to think another—should it be openly violated—will help them.
