

Local Happenings

Mr. and Mrs. Rhea Luper and baby son, Fred, visited over Saturday at the home of Mr. Luper's sister, Mrs. Leta Babb, from their home in Portland. They came up with Mr. and Mrs. David Rutz, also of Portland, who drove on to Baker. Mrs. Rutz is prominently connected with Oregon Young Democrats in the city.

A seven-pound baby daughter arrived Friday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Buhman at the home of Mrs. Buhman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George McDuffee. The young lady is the first heiress of Heppner's popular school band leader. Mother and babe are doing nicely. The baby has been named Dolores Ann.

W. F. Palmateer, pioneer Morgan resident, was a caller at a local physician's office Monday, coming in with his son, Bert. Though considerably improved from his recent severe illness, the elder Mr. Palmateer has not entirely regained his lost strength.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Monahan of this city the first of the week in Pendleton, and mother and babe are reported doing nicely. Mr. Monahan and his sister, Mrs. Paul Hisler, went to Pendleton immediately on receiving the news.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Collins were in town Tuesday from Camas Prairie, reporting things mighty wet with lots of snow remaining. Mr. Collins believed the snow would last until the middle of May.

Albert Burkenbine, young son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Burkenbine, had a painful accident Saturday. He fell while running with a stick in his mouth, cutting the palate.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lucas returned to Heppner Tuesday after visiting for several weeks at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Robert Fortner, at Grass Valley.

Mrs. Bruce Gibb and her mother, Mrs. J. G. Thomson, returned home Sunday from Portland. They were met at Arlington by Mr. Gibb and brother Alan.

24-Hour Service For Lex Telephones

Telephone numbers of all telephone customers served by the Lexington exchange will be changed April 30, according to J. R. Farrington, manager for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company.

The change in the Lexington telephone numbers marks the first step taken by the telephone company in a program to give Lexington telephone customers improved service.

A new type of central office equipment is to be installed within the next two months and when the work is completed, Lexington will have 24-hour telephone service without restrictions.

The new Lexington telephone numbers will be in the new directory to be distributed April 30.

DR. GRAY VISITS.

Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Gray arrived Friday from their home at Dorris, Cal., for a visit of a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Burkenbine. Dr. Gray is making good improvement from his recent illness, and his many friends here wish him godspeed to full recovery.

Since going to Dorris three years ago, Dr. Gray has constructed a new hospital, and had everything well suited to take care of his large practice in the mill town when he became ill. The winter was quite severe there, the doctor saying it was the worst January he ever experienced any place. Situated on the Klamath Falls-Weed cut-off, Dorris has access to the outside world over a fine highway. Dr. and Mrs. Gray expected to leave today on their return home, taking their two babies who have been at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burkenbine for several weeks.

GUY HALL MARRIED.

Relatives here have received word of the recent marriage of Guy Hall, formerly of this city, who took as his bride Miss Mary Fay of Rawlins, Wyo., in that city. The marriage was performed in the Catholic rectory with Father William Short reading the impressive ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Serge Larsen were attendants. Mrs. Hall is the daughter of Mrs. Catherine Fay of Rawlins, having lived there all her life and being a graduate of Rawlins high school. Mr. Hall has been a resident of Rawlins for 10 or 11 years. The Rawlins paper credited Mr. and Mrs. Hall with being popular young people, Mr. Hall being engaged in railroad work. They went to Denver on a wedding trip, and on the return were expected to make their home at 804 Eleventh street, Rawlins. Mr. Hall is a brother of Mrs. Earl Gordon of Heppner and Mrs. Wm. Smethurst of Lexington. He attended grade and high school here before going to Rawlins.

Types of Kitchen Ware Discussed by Miss Case

Which of the many types of cooking utensils now on the market is the best choice for the modern homemaker?

There is no hard and fast answer to this question, according to Miss Lucy Case, extension specialist in foods and nutrition at Oregon State college. Each ware has its own advantages and the homemaker must weigh them to decide which suits her individual needs and tastes.

Contrary to a persistent but erroneous idea, cooking in aluminum is not harmful, Miss Case says, and in this opinion she has the backing of the American Medical association and the State Board of Health. The discoloration of the aluminum which commonly occurs, especially when in contact with alkaline substances, is due to aluminum oxide. It can be removed by cooking such acid foods as tomatoes or rhubarb, and these are still good food after such cooking.

It pays to buy good quality ware, but not necessarily the most expensive, Miss Case says. Cheap enamel soon chips, and cheap aluminum becomes pitted with small holes. Glass and heavy walled aluminum are usually the most expensive. The latter is not more effective for cooking vegetables than any other kind, but for the less tender cuts of meat and other foods requiring slow cooking the heavy walled utensil has advantages. For vegetables the main thing is quick cooking, and it is best to have the water boiling before putting them in to cook. Miss Case sees no necessity for cooking vegetables without water, as no food value is lost if the water is saved for gravy, soups, and other uses, she says.

Whatever the type of ware, a broad, flat-bottom saucepan, with straight sides and tightly fitting cover makes the most efficient use of heat, Miss Case points out. Seams and angles in pans are undesirable, and the angle between the side and bottom of the pan should be slightly rounded.

Oregon Backing Bridge Fiesta

San Francisco, April 21.—Three separate motor cavalcades from Oregon, one of them led by Governor Charles H. Martin, and an aerial caravan, will converge on San Francisco for the Golden Gate Bridge Fiesta May 27 to June 2.

This was the word received today by Supervisor Arthur M. Brown, Jr., general chairman of the Fiesta, from Thomas F. Gunn of Portland, former San Franciscan, who has been appointed by Governor Martin as his chief aide of the cavalcades, with C. T. Haas of Portland as grand marshal.

Information from Gunn indicated that Oregon's participation is likely to excel that of any other Western state. Gunn said that Governor Martin is determined to make his state's showing second only to that of California.

In addition to writing to nearly 200 outstanding Oregonians to comprise a Golden Gate Bridge Fiesta committee for Oregon, Governor Martin has addressed approximately 200 mayors of cities and towns of the state "enlisting their aid for the Fiesta and asking them to serve as chairmen of the cavalcades' committee in their individual communities."

The first Oregon motor cavalcade will join a contingent from the Pacific Northwest at Portland on May 24. It will leave the Pacific highway at Grants Pass and follow the Redwood highway from Crescent City south into San Francisco.

A second delegation will leave Astoria May 24 and travel down the coast highway of Oregon and down the Redwood highway to San Francisco.

The third Oregon group will merge with a caravan originating in Spokane and passing thru The Dalles May 24, and Klamath Falls May 25.

All cavalcades will be so timed as to arrive in San Francisco on May 26, the day before the Golden Gate Bridge Fiesta opens.

Eric Cullenward, general manager of the Fiesta, reported that Portland was sending its Rose Queen to San Francisco for the bridge opening celebration and arrangements were being made to obtain a hundred horses for the cowboys and cowgirls of Pendleton's famous Round-Up, who will participate in events here.

Scientists Plan Session At Oregon State

Oregon State college will be host to another large group of scientists this summer with the scheduling of the annual convention of the Northwest Association of Horticulturists, Entomologists and Plant Pathologists at Corvallis July 14 to 16. The association includes scientists in these fields from Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Nevada and British Columbia. The convention last year was held at Bozeman, Mont.

Latest developments in the various fields of research carried on by members of the association will be reported on at the convention, according to O. T. McWhorter, extension horticulturist at OSC, who is president of the association this year. Other officers are Dr. H. L. McLarty, of the Dominion Experiment station at Summerland, B. C., vice-president; and Dr. J. M. Raeder, University of Idaho, secretary-treasurer.

An additional feature of the convention will be a visit to the campus the last half day of the session by members of the American Pomological society who will at that time be on a western tour under the leadership of J. T. Bregger, secretary.
