- Gosslin in Control

Salem.—If any doubt existed in the minds of the public as to the hold of W. L. Gosslin upon the young Democratic clubs of Oregon it must have been dissipated by the developments of the past week. At the annual convention of this state-wide organization at North Bend, Saturday, Allan Greenwood, Gosslin's candidate, was elected president by a vote of 31 to 19, over A. Ray Martin of Eugene. Martin was actively supported by an out-and-out anti-Gosslin group headed by Ellis W. Barnes of Portland, Vernon Bull of La Grande and U. S. Burt of Corvallis. Reports that Howard Latourette, democratic national committeeman and prospective gubernatorial candidate, was also lending moral support to the anti-Gosslin group were denied by Latourette who insisted that he was maintaining a hands-off policy in the contest that for a time seriously threatened the harmony of the young democratic organization.

Another major political development of the week also came out of the North Bend convention in the statement by Willis Mahoney of Klamath Falls that he would positively be a candidate for some public office at the next election. The only point on which Mahoney refused to enlighten the public was that as to which office he will seek. Speculation on this point, however, can pretty safely be confined to two posts, the governorship or the United States senatorship with emphasis on the latter.

The only other political activity of the past week was the annual Jefferson Day banquet at Salem which attracted prominent Democrats from all sections of western Oregon, as moths are attracted by a flame. Among those noted as fluttering about the political spotlight were O. Henry Oleen of St. Helens, said to be sounding out sentiment with a prospect of becoming a candidate for governor on his own account; Senator Byron G. Carney of Clackamas county who, friends admit, might be persuaded to become a candidate for congress in the first district, and Representative C. F. Hyde of Eugene, who is understood to have ambitions in the same direction.

Governor Martin's only contribution to the political gossip of the week was his statement at the Jefferson Day banquet that he was going to wait to see whether or not the crowd was following him before deciding what he would do after his present term expires.

Patrons of the West Coast Power company were presented with a 14 percent rate reduction this week in a new tariff filed with the public utilities commission. The reduction, which is said to mean an annual saving of some $20,000 affects the coast sections of Lincoln, Lane, Douglas and Coos counties from Toledo to Reedsport.

Two legislators drew places on the newly created state commission which will have charge of the Oregon exhibit at the San Francisco and New York fairs. They are Senator J. A. Best of Umatilla county and Representative T. A. Livesley of Marion county. Other members of this commission just named by Governor Martin include Claude McCulloch of Klamath Falls, state chairman of the Democratic central committee, and Thomas F. Gunn and Charles T. Haas, both of Portland.

Governor Martin is in Washington, D. C., doing a little lobbying in behalf of Oregon's claim to Bonneville dam, the benefits from which Los Angeles is trying to nullify thru having it tied in with Boulder dam for rate making purposes. The governor is appearing before the rivers and harbors committee of the House which is conducting hearings on several measures dealing with the administration of Bonneville. This is the committee on which he served

Theodore Roosevelt is author of the following: "If we read the Bible aright, we read a book which teaches us to go forth and do the work of the Lord; to do the work of the Lord in the world as we find it; to try to make things better in this world, even if only a little better, because we have lived in it. I enter a most earnest plea that in our hurried and rather bustling life of today we do not lose the hold our forefathers had on the Bible. I wish to see Bible study as much a matter of course in the secular college as in the seminary. No educated man can afford to be ignorant of the Bible, and no uneducated man can afford to be ignorant of the Bible."

There will be Holy Communion and sermon by Archdeacon Hinkle at 11 o'clock, Sunday. All who were recently confirmed are especially urged to be present.

while a member of congress prior to becoming governor. It is the governor's longest absence from the state since he assumed the office more than two years ago.

Approximately $1,500,000 worth of property now owned by the World War Veterans State Aid commission will be restored to the tax rolls this year through sale to private owners according to Jerrold Owen, secretary to the commission. Owen reports a big demand for both farm and city properties with the commission realizing a profit on much of the property which it was compelled to take over to protect its loan during the depression period.

The statue atop the new capitol building, about which much curiosity has been exhibited ever since the building was designed, will typify the spirit of the Oregon pioneer, it was revealed this week. The statue of bronze will tower 40 feet above the circular dome of the new state house.

More than 2,000,000 adults are enrolled in educational classes being conducted by the Works Progress administration throughout the nation, according to L. R. Alderman, national director of the adult education program who was in Oregon this week checking up on the work in this state. The program is giving part time employment to more than 40,000 teachers who would otherwise be jobless, Alderman said. Alderman served as state superintendent of public instruction in Oregon from 1911 to 1913 and later served as county superintendent of schools for Multnomah county.

The practice of paroling inmates of the state prison or the state training school for boys on condition that they leave the state is opposed by State Treasurer Holman, who voiced criticism of the practice at a board of control meeting this week when Superintendent Laughlin of the boys' school reported that two boys had been released to go to other states. Warden J. W. Lewis of the state prison declared that the practice was universal—that prisoners from other states were being released constantly to come to Oregon on the plea that a job awaits them or some relative or friend has offered to provide a home.

Lotus Langley of Portland, former district attorney for Multnomah county, has been appointed by Governor Martin as a member of the state parole board to succeed W. H. Treece of Portland who resigned. Langley was formerly state chairman of the Democratic central committee.

 were called to decide the street paving matter.

Public health came in for its share of attention when the matter of keeping livestock and disposing of manure in town was discussed. The marshal was instructed to investigate any conditions which might be in violation of ordinance and give offenders proper notice.

HARDMAN MAN ENLISTS.

Major H. D. Bagnall, the army recruiting officer, 323 New Post Office Building, Portland, announced today the enlistment in the United States army of Allan Benjamin Phares, Hardman, Oregon. Phares applied for enlistment at the Pendleton recruiting office on April 14 and was tentatively accepted on that date and sent to Vancouver Barracks, Wash. After passing the army examinations at Vancouver Barracks, he was enlisted on April 20 for service with the 6th Coast Artillery with station at Fort Winfield Scott, San Francisco, Calif., Major Bagnall said. The recruiting officer's report also indicates that the new soldier will be sent to his station at San Francisco without delay.

EDUCATION BOARD TO MEET.

The Oregon State Board of Higher Education will meet on the campus of Oregon State college April 26 and 27 for its next regular session. The main meeting of the board will be held on the second day.

Monday evening members of the Board will be guests of the Faculty Men's club at a banquet arranged for the double purpose of honoring B. F. Irvine, who will be retiring from the board after 39 years of service, and in recognition of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Oregon Agricultural Experiment stations.

While at Corvallis the members will participate in an all-college convocation, and will have opportunity to review the ROTC unit which will be undergoing inspection at that time by army officials of this area.
