

County 4-H Clubber High in Judging on Livestock Tour

Leading Growers' Farms, Union Experiment Station Seen

Fifty-seven 4-H club members completed a three-day livestock tour yesterday which included visits to some of the outstanding livestock ranches in eastern Oregon. This tour was the third annual event of its kind and proved so outstandingly successful that next year will undoubtedly see a still larger number of 4-H members participating.

Judging contests were conducted on each of the ranches visited and in addition to the livestock work, a crops identification contest was held at the Union experiment station. Scores of the club members in each of the classes judged were tallied and results announced at the final get-together at the city park at Baker yesterday afternoon. High point man for the contest was Johnnie Hays, Heppner, a member of the Willow Creek sheep club, whose score of 972 out of a possible 1200 was forty points over his nearest competitor. Alex Thompson, also of the Willow Creek sheep club, and Ralph Neill of the Pine City sheep club, both placed within the first fifteen. Tad Miller, the fourth Morrow county club member making the trip, made a very creditable showing in his judging.

On Monday, the full day was spent at the Union experiment station where D. E. Richards, superintendent, conducted a program which included judging, feeding and management, fitting and showing of hogs, sheep and beef. Tuesday morning was also spent at the station with E. R. Jackman, extension specialist in farm crops at O. S. C., conducting a tour of the station. Following this tour, a contest calling for identification of 25 different plants was conducted. In the afternoon, the group visited the ranch of W. O. Christenson of North Powder, judging two classes of Jerseys and hearing a discussion by Mr. Christenson on the breeding and feeding and management of his outstanding Jersey herd. Wednesday morning, the 4-H members visited Herb Chandler's Hereford ranch at Baker and were fortunate in finding the cattle which Mr. Chandler will have on the show circuit within a week still in the barns, being fitted for the fall shows. Later in the morning, the clubbers went to Fred Entermile's ranch at Baker. Mr. Entermile has made an outstanding success in raising swine. The trip broke up at Baker.

The club members camped out, cooking their own meals while on the tour, each county being responsible for its own group. For the Morrow county group, Joe Belanger, county agent, donned the apron as cook while keen rivalry existed between the two dish polishing teams of Johnnie Hays and Alex Thompson on the one side, and Ralph Neill and Tad Miller for the alternate meals. The well-laid plans to bring the dishes back washed and ironed were foiled when part of an unused jar of honey spilled over the dishes on the way home. The dust and the honey combined will undoubtedly prevent the fame of two excellent crews of dish washers from going down in history.

BACK ALL-STAR TRIO

Oregon and Washington contestants for representation on the all-star football team to appear next month in Chicago were given a local boost this week through a petition passed around by Paul McCarty to be sent in to the Oregonian for voting. The contestants are Tommy Swanson, O. S. C.; Ed Goddard, W. S. C., and Del Bjork, U. of O.

CARD OF THANKS

For all the kindness and sympathy shown us in our recent bereavement, and for the many floral offerings, we wish to express our sincere gratitude.

Claud White,
Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Henderson.

DOCTOR ENJOYS MEDICS MEETING

Visit to Great Falls, Montana, Found Interesting; World's Second Largest Smokestack Seen

Dr. A. D. McMurdo arrived home Monday morning from Great Falls, Mont., where on last Thursday, Friday and Saturday he attended sessions of the Northwest Medical association convention and enjoyed the hospitality of Montana's famed mining city of 30,000 population. He reported some highlights of his trip to the Monday Lions luncheon.

Leaving Heppner the Tuesday night before, he took the Great Northern train from Spokane, across the continental divide past Glacier National park to Shelby, famed for its Dempsey-Gibbons fight several years ago, where trains were changed for the convention city.

The trip along the Kootenai and Pend Orielle rivers was especially beautiful, and the country in the vicinity of Glacier park was a paradise with its covering of deep green grass, the doctor said.

Great Falls, neatly kept modern city, stretches out along the Missouri river. Just above the city are three large dams, Rainbow, Black Eagle and Volta by name, used to generate power for Montana Power company. Black Eagle received its name from the falls of same name, originally named by Lewis and Clark. As the story has it, a black eagle had its nest in the top of a large tree growing on an island in the river below the falls, serving as incentive for the name.

Entertainment features for the visiting doctors included a picnic atop Volta dam and visiting the large Anaconda copper wire factory and another large zinc reducing plant. Until a few years ago when a larger one was built in Japan, a smelting stack from one of these smelters was the largest in the world, measuring 75 feet in diameter at the bottom. Dr. McMurdo described some of the manufacturing processes which he enjoyed particularly as a follow up to a visit a few years previous into a shaft of one of the mines at Butte, from which the copper manufactured at Great Falls comes, some three thousand feet deep.

The convention program itself brought several speakers of outstanding ability, and late developments in the profession, some of which had not yet appeared in the medical journals.

State Mining Office Now Open in Portland

All communications concerning grubstake loans or free assays under the new state department of geology and mineral industries, should be sent to Earl K. Nixon, director, 704 Lewis building, Portland, announces J. H. Batcheller, formerly secretary of the state mining board, Oregon State college. A considerable number are still sending their inquiries to Professor Batcheller, he says, which results in delay and confusion, as he has to forward them on to the new state office.

Professor Batcheller is still in charge of the mining instruction in the school of engineering at the college and will be glad to confer with anybody interested in educational phases of the mining industry, but he has no further official connection with the new state department.

Under the new law qualified prospectors may apply for a grubstake loan of $50 by obtaining blanks from and the approval of his county judge, Director Nixon has announced. The contract runs for five years and provides that if the prospecting results in a producing mine the state is to be paid the $50 loan and 10 per cent of the net proceeds of the mining operation during the five-year period.

Two state assay laboratories are being established, one at Baker and one at Grants Pass. Not to exceed two samples in any 30-day period will be assayed free for any citizens of the state. Complete information must accompany the samples, which will be open for public inspection.
