Motorists Push Safety Pledge

Ambulances, taxis, dray trucks, soap-box racers; operators of nearly every type of conveyance currently on the streets this week hastened to sign up with safety via White Cross Safety pledge.

The Oregon motorist's pledge provides that each vehicle operator who accepts the vow must at all times accept his personal responsibility to conserve life through watchful conduct behind the wheel and careful observance of all safety provisions.

Approximately 45,000 motorists in all parts of the state already have requested the White Cross Safety pledge which, contained on a small red, white and blue windshield sticker, is available for every Oregonian who drives a car.

Civic, service and community clubs, as well as private individuals are rallying themselves with the cause to "keep them alive" through the pledge's precept to drive safely. For, accident statistics prove, it is the man behind the wheel who is accountable for three out of five traffic fatalities.

Business firms are distributing the pledge to all employees.

Get your motorist's pledge from offices of the Oregon State Motor association, the Oregon Automobile Dealers association, A. A. A. stations, chambers of commerce, or from this newspaper.

CORRECTION

In the list of former Rodeo queens in the special Rodeo section of the Gazette Times last week, the name Miss Ilene Kilkenny should have been Miss Ilene Kenny. Both Ilenes are queenly collens, but unfortunately only Miss Ilene Kenny has been queen of Rodeo. Apologies to both Ilenes for an unintentional error.

Exhibit on Wheels Will Show New Kitchen

Oregon homemakers interested in building or remodeling for greater comfort and convenience will have an opportunity the next few months to view a suggested set-up for a farm family kitchen, carefully planned as to heights of working surfaces, storage spaces and other important details.

Such a kitchen has been built on a trailer at Oregon State college, and is now touring the state, visiting fairs and other gatherings where it may be inspected by the public. Accompanying it is an exhibit of home electrical equipment and appliances, with a cost-meter which will indicate which appliance is running and exactly how much it is costing an hour.

The demonstration kitchen was planned to meet the needs of the average farm family in Oregon, keeping in mind the multiple purposes which this room is called upon to serve, points out Mrs. Azalea Sager, state leader of home economics extension at O. S. C., who planned the exhibit with the cooperation of other members of the extension and home economics research staffs. Heights of working surfaces are based on the results of a recent survey of those preferred by some 500 homemakers in Oregon and Washington.

A bulletin has been prepared for distribution of those interested in kitchen planning, covering use of color in the kitchen, standards of kitchen planning, adequate kitchen lighting, kitchen plans for Oregon farm homes, and working surface heights. Working drawings of the built-ins in the trailer kitchen may be obtained at cost from the state college extension service at Corvallis.

Everett Davis, extension specialist in agricultural engineering, is "official chauffeur" for the tour and in charge of the electrical equipment exhibit. Mrs. Dorothy Bishop and Mrs. Louise Harwood, home demonstration agents, will be present to discuss the kitchen with those interested. Present tentative schedule of the travelling exhibit follows:

Lincoln county, August 17, county-wide extension day; Tillamook, August 18-21, county fair; Multnomah, Aug. 23-25, county fair; Yamhill, Aug. 26, fall festival; Columbia, Aug. 27-28, county fair; Clackamas, Sept. 1-3, county fair; and Sept. 4 at Colton; Marion, Sept. 6-11, state fair; Douglas, Sept. 13-14; Coos, Sept. 15-18, county fair; Klamath, Sept. 27-28; Deschutes, Sept. 30 to Oct. 2, county fair; Lane county at Cottage Grove, Oct. 4 and 5; Benton, Oct. 6.

"SUFFER THEM"

National child safety education began in 1922, remarks the Oregon State Motor association, advocating required safety education in public schools. Since then, the traffic death rate for children in the 5 to 14 years of age group has dropped 6 per cent to 13.2 deaths per 100,000.

Camp Heppner Has Active Week

Donald Mace, district educational adviser, paid his first official visit to Camp Heppner August 10. Mr. Mace explained that he was well pleased with the present educational program. Morning classes, according to Mr. Mace, are an asset to the educational program, especially during the summer months.

Ping pong will soon be the main topic of conversation at the camp, inasmuch as there will be a tournament opening in the near future. The tournament will be conducted on the elimination plan and every member of the company will be invited to compete for the title and prize awards.

If you want to know your law go to Camp Heppner. This is the advice being given to all eastern enrollees desirous of knowledge concerning the fundamentals of business law. Camp Heppner has a well qualified law student who has inaugurated a class in this particular study. He is, at present, specializing on the subject of contracts.

It's "Good morning, Captain," at the camp now. The recent issue of light summer clothing looks so official that visitors are constantly mistaking the enrollees for officers, and of course to the great delight of the members.

Bert Brown, formerly employed as the auto mechanic in the Soil Conservation Service garage, has resigned.
