Warren Stender came up from the Krebs Bros. ranch at Cecil Monday evening to receive treatment at a doctor's office for a broken right foot. The injury was sustained when he was working with heavy bridge timbers that afternoon. The timbers were being removed from an old flume, and the spikes had not been removed. The spikes in the end he was carrying caught in his coat as he and the man helping him started to throw the timber and it fell on his foot. He expected it would keep him from work for six weeks to two months.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shipley took in the Rodeo from their home at Underwood, Wash., it being the first visit of Mr. Shipley here in many years. He was an early resident of Heppner and one of the county's early school superintendents. They were guests at the home of Mr. Shipley's niece, Mrs. Richard Wells.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knox arrived in Heppner the end of the week seeking living accommodations. They went on to Idaho for a visit of several days at the parental home of Mr. Knox, before returning in time for the opening of school. Mr. Knox will be in charge of physical education in the school this year.

Charley Trowbridge, long-time breeder of good race horses at John Day and secretary of the Grant County fair, was among interested spectators at the Rodeo Saturday. He extended an invitation via the "mike" for Morrow county people to attend the Grant county celebration, Sept. 23-24-25.

William S. Bennett, Smith-Hughes instructor, went to Arlington Tuesday afternoon to meet Mrs. Bennett and son, who are joining him here to make their home. They have been residing in Seattle. Mr. Bennett was confined to the hospital last week with an attack of flu.

Mrs. Lillie A. Sanderson, formerly Miss Lillie Allinger, who was cashier of the former Farmers & Stockgrowers National bank here, was calling in the city yesterday, coming up from Ione where she is visiting friends from her home at Milwaukie.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Wightman and two children came up from their home at Arlington Friday, and on Saturday Mrs. Wightman judged the girls' exhibits at the 4-H club fair. She complimented the work of the local clubbers highly.

Walter Blackburn has been hobbling about on crutches for the last week as the result of breaking his foot in a fall from scaffolding at the mill on Rhea creek. He went to Walla Walla the end of the week for medical attention.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Saling of Prairie City made their annual pilgrimage to the Rodeo on Friday, being unable to stay over for the Saturday performance. Mr. Saling has been employed with the dredging outfit at Prairie for several years.

J. G. Barratt, R. B. Ferguson and Millard Rodman left in the Ferguson car Sunday for Mr. Barratt's sheep range near Browning, Mont. They expected to go on from there to St. Paul with the last shipment of Mr. Barratt's lambs to market.

Charles McElligott was transacting business in the city yesterday. He has completed his harvest on the farm in the Ione section, and now has his outfit busy on the Ferguson farm in Sand Hollow.

Ralph Jackson, manager of Jackson Implement company of Lexington, was a business visitor in the city Monday. "Jack" showed off a saddle pony in the judging contest at Saturday's Rodeo.

Mr. and Mrs. Crockett Sprouls and Janet enjoyed greeting friends here while attending the Rodeo Saturday, coming up from their home at Hood River.

Mr. and Mrs. John Turner from Pendleton enjoyed greeting friends while attending the Rodeo.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pevey and baby son were visiting friends in the city yesterday, driving over from Pendleton. Mr. Pevey, former instructor in the local high school, will teach chemistry and physics again this year in Hoquiam high school. He attended summer school at University of Washington.

Elmer Peterson was in the city Tuesday afternoon from the Ione section, transacting business while being laid off from harvesting operations by the rain. He said he had 180 acres yet to go.

Guy Boyer and daughter Jane of John Day took in the Rodeo, Miss Jane being a house guest of Miss Shirley Wilson. Mr. Boyer now runs a furniture store in the Grant county town.

Mrs. Anna Webster arrived the end of the week, spending several days looking after property interests here, and returned to her home in Portland yesterday.

Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Farrior and son Freddie and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Stone were among former Heppnerites swelling the list of Rodeo attendants from Pendleton.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Belanger will leave Saturday evening for Salem to remain next week while the state fair is in progress assisting with local exhibits.

Roy Feeley was in the city last week end, taking in the Rodeo, and remained over the first of the week in line with his work as insurance salesman.

Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Young returned home last week from a vacation at Portland, and Mr. Young is again in his pulpit at the Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thompson and daughters were among Pendletonians attending the Rodeo. Mr. Thompson acting as one of the arena judges.

Mrs. Ward Graves was in Heppner yesterday while visiting in the county with her sons here and at Boardman from her home at Sherwood.

Dr. J. P. Stewart, Eye-Sight Specialist of Pendleton, will be at the HEPPNER HOTEL on WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 8th.

Mrs. Myrtle Ely was a business caller in the city for a short time yesterday from the farm home near Morgan.

Better Breeding Said Turkey Industry Need

Better breeding is the next big step in establishing Oregon's turkey industry on a firm and profitable basis, is the belief of a number of speakers at the second annual turkey day, which drew some 200 growers to the campus of Oregon State college recently.

This subject was introduced by H. E. Cosby, head of the poultry department, and elaborated on by Noel Bennion, new extension specialist. Bennion pointed out that systematic breeding in turkeys is comparatively new, even though it has been highly developed with chickens for many decades. Four factors he suggested in the selection of turkey breeding stock, as well as with other animals, are the individual characteristics, the ancestry, the type or family, including brothers and sisters, and the progeny test, which means the actual performance of the animal as shown in the offspring.

Bennion said that the development of good breeding of foundation stock will make it possible for commercial growers to buy stock from these foundation breeders. It may be possible, he said, to breed out such things as pendulous crop, crooked breast and other undesirable qualities.

The problem of providing consumers with turkey meat in smaller quantities between holiday seasons was discussed from a number of angles. Herbert Beyers, manager of the Northwest Turkey Growers association, is convinced that the plea for "six pound turkeys" is impossible to meet, at least under present circumstances of breeding and feeding, because such a turkey would be far too expensive.

An advertising man, on the other hand, suggested the possibility of putting up turkey meat in small packages of five pounds or less for the retail market. A national advertising campaign, he said, would be too expensive for any one group, but it might be possible to try out a new marketing plan by concentrating in some one western city to start with.

TUBBS' MASTERY OF DILLINGER LEADS TO TOP PLACE

Queen Betty, who sat with Princesses Peggy Kilkenny, Marjorie Parker and Bernice Martin, and honorary attendant Jane Boyer of John Day, in honored position in the stands, could be proud of such a realm. Then with Queen Cathryn of Round-Up and her princesses in the overflow crowd of Saturday to bring recognition and token of good fellowship from the world's greatest western show, her satisfaction could not help but be complete.

Walter Moore and son Larry were among former Heppnerites attending the Rodeo from Pendleton.
