Farmers Planning to Get Ahead on Debts

With farm returns up and interest down, northwest farmers are planning to make 1937 a debt-clean-up year and in many cases get ahead of schedule on their mortgage payments, according to reports received by the Federal Land bank of Spokane from the field.

Except where drought has been seriously felt east of the Rockies northwest farmers have prospects of receiving the largest returns in six years, or approximately $440,000,000 in the bank's four-state district of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana. They intend to make good use of their extra funds by reducing their mortgages substantially, it is anticipated.

Through a special provision of the newly enacted farm credit act of 1937, the Land bank offers a practical plan of encouragement for borrowers to pay extra amounts in good years in protection against poor crop conditions that may later follow. This policy not only provides a practical form of thrift and protection, the bank points out, but borrowers may also save interest thereby.

Getting their mortgage notes marked "paid in full" was the happy experience of 485 Land bank borrowers during the past fiscal year, ending July 1, the bank reports. Total obligations of $1,047,535 were thereby cleared off the books. In addition, 1124 northwest borrowers have paid off their special commissioner loans during the past three recovery years, wiping out a total indebtedness of $1,748,217 more.

"Getting out of debt is the best investment any farmer can make" is the slogan which the Land bank is recommending to its member-borrowers.

A. T. King of Kinzua spent Sunday and Monday in Heppner at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. V. Crawford.
