Up With the Tide

HEPPNER is rapidly emerging from the throes of depression, a better town than ever before. We say better advisedly, meaning from a material viewpoint. Probably our people are no better, no worse.

Improvement number one, materially speaking, will soon appear in the form of hard surfacing on all the city's principal thoroughfares. This will be afforded much relief from dust, much enjoyability to travel in all parts of town. Many of winter's slush holes will disappear, and there will be incentive for beautification of curbs and yards.

Improvement number two is being brought about through civic-minded councilmen and mayor who are effecting the removal of fire and health hazards. Some compliance with their wishes has already resulted in commendable improvement. It may seem a little drastic to ask for removal of buildings on Main street, but when such buildings jeopardize public peace, health and safety, the asking is quite within reason. The council is entitled to wholehearted cooperation from everyone.

The improvements being brought about in the city generally, reflected as well by much renovating and new construction—including the new garage building now nearing completion on the old Palace hotel corner—are the result of better times.

Not alone in Heppner but in the county generally, there is fixing up that has needed to be done for several years, but which could not be done so long as the county's basic industries were in the doldrums. These industries, through increased production and prices which are returning some profit for the producer, are again making improvement possible, attracting outside as well as local capital to build for the future.

In times of depression all hope of improvement wanes, but when springs of fulsome business gush forth, improvement comes easily, naturally. Much brighter days are here now than seemed possible a year or two ago, and visions of the future may now be seen such as were then beyond the scope of the most vivid imagination.

China's U. S. ambassador says China is not only going to whip Japan in the new campaign, but will take Manchuria and outer Mongolia away from the Japs before hostilities cease. That sounds like John Chinaman, the peace-lover, is getting his back up.

Hostilities have been renewed in the United States. No casualties will have resulted when count is taken at the end of the campaign next spring, but little Johnnie's bright new primer will emerge dog-eared and thumb-marked.

Rumors of war in Europe caused a big slump in stocks and bonds this week. Just a little dust kicking in the perpetual battle between the bulls and bears.

On the labor front, Portland again comes into its own as one of the hot spots, with news of cracked craniums along the picket lines.

Life's battles progress. One showing signs of victory is the waylaying of dust on Heppner streets.

Other conflicts of interest: Harvesters attempting to beat the fall rains. Householders laying in supplies and fortifying the domicile against winter's onslaught. Shoppers reconnoitering to determine advances made by H. C. L. The masculine population shining up the arsenal and sniffing the atmosphere preliminary to invasion of deer haunts, now 11 days away. The femmes vying with each other in new fall duds. Bridge. Chess. The fall of summer.

E. P. JARMON

E. P. Jarmon, 67, died at his home, 543 Cowper St., Palo Alto, Calif., at 5:15 p. m., Saturday, Sept. 4. Mr. Jarmon was born in Fayette county, Texas, Nov. 20, 1869, and had spent his life in his native state and in Oregon at Echo, and for the past eleven months at Palo Alto.

He was married to Lucy M. Thomson, June 25, 1900, at Echo. Besides his widow he is survived by the following children: Mrs. Beryl J. Strong of Bakersfield, Calif.; Lida Jarmon of Redding, Calif.; Lura Jarmon of Newman, Calif.; Opal Jarmon of Albany, Ore.; W. R. Jarmon of Palo Alto, Calif.; Shirley Jarmon of Corbett, Ore.; Lt. R. E. Jarmon of Hamilton Field, Calif.; Mrs. Helen Hood of Bakersfield, Calif., and Oscar Jarmon of Boston, Mass.; also three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Monday, Sept. 6, at the Tinney Funeral home by the Rev. Oscar F. Green, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church.

LEAVES FOR PACIFIC U

Len Gilman, whose pitching carried the town baseball club to many victories this season, left yesterday for Pacific university, Forest Grove, where he will attend school as a freshman with the opening of the fall term. Len graduated from high school this spring and was outstanding in football, basketball and track as well as baseball. He accompanied Elwayne Lieuellen, who is continuing his higher educational work at the same institution.

LEAVES FOR EAST

Charles "Ted" McMurdo left Friday evening for Virginia, where he goes to accept a fellowship in chemistry at University of Virginia. He expected to be joined at Pocatello, Idaho, by a cousin, Mrs. Ralph Johnson, to accompany him on to his destination. Ted won the fellowship at his father's alma mater in recognition of his high scholastic standing at Oregon State college, where he graduated in the spring.
