

THE HEHISCH

PINTO POINTS

This Saturday, Heppner meets Condon, the team with the ardent backers; that is, ardent if they bear any resemblance to the rooters representing their school for the last three years. Three years ago the Mustangs had a home and home football series with Condon, taking the first game on the latter's field by a 12-0 margin—the return tilt ended in a 0-0 tie, a supposedly moral victory for the Gilliam county team. In 1935 the teams met only once with Heppner winning 13-0 on the home field. In 1936 the Mustangs emerged victorious in both games. This year, according to reports, Condon hopes to turn the tide in their favor.

The managership of this year's athletic teams has a set-up different from that of previous years. In the past, there has always been an upper classman at the helm, but this year two representatives from each of the lower classes, Bud Blakely and Harry Tamblin, freshman and sophomore respectively, have a partnership on the job.

Dave Wilson, local clothier, should be commended for the handy, small size copy of the Pacific Coast conference football schedule, which he had on hand for distribution around Rodeo time.

Highlights of the high school-alumni game: Vernon Knowles putting his helmet on backwards—Francis Nickerson making the first touchdown of his career—the alumni waterboy, Paul Phelan—two freshmen and the manager lining the field—the two practice plays of the pick-up team—both sides off-side—the twelve-man high school eleven—six feminine rooters—one touchdown of which the alumni were the sole owners.

On the date of this publication Len Gilman, ex-Heppner grid star, will have been a two-day resident of Eugene. As he was interested in three different colleges, he was hesitant as to which one to attend; however, several occurrences of last week changed the situation. John Warren, freshman coach, urged him to sign up at the Webfoot institution, so after a nine-day period at the Standard Oil training school at Portland, he decided to register for freshman football at the University of Oregon. Riley Munkers, who played with his cousin, Len Gilman, in the Mustang backfield for three years, is a football turn-out at the Oregon Institute of Technology—chances of his making the team seem bright as he has been drilling daily with the varsity.

HUMOR

Alvina (going into Humphrey's store): "Do you sell kisses?"
Omer: "Yes; shall I send them up, or do you want them now?"

Donny Bennett: "How long can a person live without brains?"
Hugh Crawford: "I don't know. How old are you?"

Norval: "I have somethin' trembling upon my lips that has been there for months."
Jeanette: "Why don't you shave it off?"

Mr. Peacy: "Harold, will you give me the definition of the equator?"
Harold Armstrong: "It's a menagerie lion running around the earth."

Andy Davidson: "I am seeing crooked this morning."
Lloyd Burkenbine: "I have been that way several times myself."

Lawrence Wehmeyer: "Mr. Bennett, were my grandparents apes?"
Mr. Bennett: "Lawrence, I never knew your grandparents."

A woodpecker pecked on a sophomore's head
And quietly began to drill.
He drilled away for several days,
And eventually broke his bill.

Mr. Knox: "What do we owe to chemistry, Arlene?"
Arlene: "Most of our blondes."

Bill Browning: (In Chem.) "Would this do me any particular harm if I drank it?"
Mr. Knox: "No; and no particular good, except to kill you."

Shirley: "I don't like my name."
Bill: "Say the word and I'll change it for you."

He started his junior year off with a bang by being elected on the Hehisch committee and taking the lead in the junior play. He was forced to leave school due to spinal meningitis following the football season.

Starting again the following year as a junior, he stepped into the office of treasurer of the student body. During this year he was chosen president of the Benzine Ring and was a member of the Pep club and the H club. Canned Foods are Nature-fresh...

America's contribution to fine living...

Today's housewives appreciate the amazing short-cuts that canned foods bring to the kitchen—thanks to modern canning methods and the fertile lands of the Golden West. Delicious fruits and vegetables, picked at the peak of their natural goodness, packed in containers by methods which retain their flavor and freshness—tasty tuna and salmon straight from the ocean or rivers—flavorful preserved meats prepared under government supervision—rich condensed or evaporated milk from cows pastured on the west's abundant fields!

All these splendid foods—and many more—are available the year round at your neighborhood store as nature-fresh as the day they were sealed, in tin or glass, because modern methods of preservation keep them so!

The progressive Union Pacific Railroad plays an important part in serving western canners and eastern consumers. Cans and jars are sturdy containers, but Union Pacific treats them with the same care it gives to fragile commodities. In winter months, shipments are protected by heater service, and by refrigeration in hot summer weather. Prompt, safe, dependable transportation every day, every year. Last year Union Pacific moved nearly a half million tons of canned food products to America's markets.

Ask your neighborhood grocer for nature-fresh canned foods!
