Long Waited For Improvements

In every house-wife's dream of heaven, there were paved streets. The fact that they were paved with gold or asphalt didn't make any difference as long as the dust was kept down. It looks as though this dream is about to come true.

Along with paved streets come two new tennis courts up by the gymnasium. The previously used tennis courts were virtually dust holes, with tufts of grass in spots.

Let's hope that the new streets don't tempt the local speedsters to try to find out how fast they can take certain curves or straight-aways. Let's not change an improvement into some one's grave.

Now we have streets and tennis courts. Let's hope that next summer will bring us a swimming pool and a plentiful water supply.

Events of the Week

The social activities of Heppner High were launched successfully last Wednesday evening with the opening social hour of the season. Due to the new sound system, the best of music was available, which accounted for the good time had by all.

The Pep club held a special meeting Wednesday to select new members. Those selected were Bud Blakely, Carolyn Vaughn, Paul Doolittle, Bethal Blake and Scott McMurdo. The new officers for the year are Arlene Morton, president; Bob Scrivner, vice president; Joe Aiken, secretary-treasurer; Ruth Green, publicity manager.

A meeting was called by the "H" club for the purpose of electing new officers. Johnny Hays was elected president; Clayton Wright, vice-president; Evelyn Kirk, secretary-treasurer.

The week was topped off with the long looked for class rush. The freshmen proved themselves worthy of all honors by defeating the Sophomores by the margin of 76 to 97. The freshmen took both major events, the parade and the skit. The rest of the program proved both teams equal in athletic ability.

Events of the Past

One year ago this week: A rousing rally was held on Main street prior to the Fossil game. Nearly every member of the student body was present. . . . The Heppner High grid machine rolls over Fossil 40-0.

Five years ago this week: Sophomores win class rush by a landslide of 100 points. . . . Mr. Bloom, local superintendent, was chosen on the committee to work on a survey of physical education being carried on in the state of Oregon. . . . High school team loses practice game with alumni 6-0. . . . School band elects officers as follows: student leader, Bill Schwarz; secretary, James Driscoll; treasurer, Juanita Morgan; sergeant-at-arms, Billy Cochell; assistant sergeant-at-arms, Larry Moore. . . . Fighting Irish rally to beat Condon 13-6.

Ten years ago this week: Miss Beth Bleakman, local high school graduate, departed this week for Monmouth, where she will attend Oregon Normal school. . . . The high school gym is now nearing completion. The carpenters are working on the floors and roof. . . . Dempsey and Tunney complete training for their bout to be held in Chicago this week.

HUMOR

Miss Smith: "I heard you singing in your room this afternoon."

Miss Nordstrom: "Oh, yes, I sing a little to kill time."

Miss Smith: "You have a very good weapon."

Mr. Knox: "Kemp, what are you doing?"

Kemp (studying the digestive organs of a mammal): "Getting some inside information."

Margaret B.: "Have you heard of the trained fleas? Aren't they wonderful?"

Harry O'Donnell: "Oh, I don't know. Down at Portland last summer we had mosquitos that would eat out of our hands."

Mr. Peavy: "When I was your age, I knew twice as much about this subject as you do."

Joe: "Yes, but you had a different English teacher."

Richard H.: "Why is Art a great electrician?"

Cliff F.: "Because all his clothes are charged."

PINTO POINTS

During the summer, a few of the recent alumni of Heppner High, now attending college, asked the question as to why the student body of last year changed the monicker of all local athletic teams from the "Fighting Irish" to the "Mustangs." To clear up all controversy concerning this alteration, at the time this decision was made there were in this school which has a total enrollment of 123, exactly nine Irish students . . . and of this number, the whole sum of two reported for athletics, that being football . . . with one making the varsity. Need more be said?

Last week's football episode proved that having high school games on Saturday is not exactly a profitable proposition . . . the attendance at the season's opener indicated this through the number of students present. In the Heppner school, there are several bus students . . . add to this number the ones who have other vocations to occupy their time, and the result is a very small yelling section.

This Friday, gridiron enthusiasts will have an opportunity to witness the first demonstration of six-man football in Morrow county . . . the scene of battle is Lexington, with the Jackrabbits meeting their neighboring rival, Ione. Thus far, Lexington has only four games scheduled, two with Ione and the same number to be played against Boardman.

Last week's column carried a statement to the effect that the intentions of Len Gilman, former gridiron great, were to attend the University of Oregon. So they were, but on arriving at Eugene, a situation arose which made it impractical for him to enroll there. He has now returned to Forest Grove and filed his registration card with Pacific university.

Curfew chatter . . . Dr. McMurdo has employed the company paving the streets to construct for him a tennis court on the lot adjoining his home . . . it's completion will give him the finest privately owned court in Heppner . . . work has also been started by the same company on the long-awaited tennis courts at the high school. Bill Nelson, a former grade school students here, is center on The Dalles football team . . . his weight, 170. Scouting Heppner in their game with Condon, Vince Barratt, Arlington mentor, says his team is far below the standard of last year ? ? . . . Arlington has joined the Interstate League composed of several Oregon and Washington teams; their first league game to be played tomorrow against White Salmon . . . after watching him perform in the Condon game, and also remembering the destruction he brought to would-be yardage plays in last year's second Arlington tilt, the Honker coach concluded that Harold Armstrong, Mustang guard, is the outstanding lineman of the local team. Dan Dinges, having dropped his managerial activities at Lexington, has taken over the center position on their six-man football team. Anyone wishing a large size copy of the coast conference football schedule, see this writer . . . first come, first served, as the supply is limited. With both teams sporting new jerseys, Heppner and Condon made their game a flashy one. Riley Munkers, ex-Heppner grid star, passed through Arlington last Thursday as a member of the travelling squad of the Oregon Institute of Technology football team, enroute to play Eastern Oregon Normal at La Grande. This writer's mania for traveling again overtook him, and as a result, this column seems to be lacking in first hand information on last Saturday's game.

How to Lose Friends

It is very easy to lose friends if you know the right procedure.

First, dig up all the dirt about people you can, then tell it to everybody you know, and of course, add a little bit now and then.

When conversing with anyone, be sure to talk about yourself all the time and give the other fellow no chance whatsoever to talk. Grab hold of his coat or arm, and be sure he doesn't get away.

Oh, yes, you must not forget to play all the practical jokes you can upon him; he will like it. When some one is talking to some one else, butt in and join them.

If you go to a party, don't knock; just walk in, but don't take off your hat; just leave it on. Hunt up the refreshments and help yourself.

Do you ride in other people's cars? Well, if you do, be sure to say you don't like that particular model. Look into everything; they won't mind.

Be sure to wear your hat in the theater, because some one else might want to see. Pin a conspicuous name upon everyone, just for fun, you know.

Don't forget to be the main attraction at all social gatherings; sing, dance, anything you can do.

When dancing, dance upon your partner's feet; they probably need a massage anyway.

Now, the motto for this lesson is: Do unto others as you wouldn't have them do unto you.

Cranium Breaker

Answer to last week's problem: The boy's swimming time exceeds the two-hour limit set by his mother by 46 2-3 minutes.

This week's problem: Mr. Jones earns $50 a month and gets paid once a month. Each month he gets a raise of ten dollars. This continues for five months. Mr. Brown also earns $5 per month, but he gets his salary twice a month. Each pay day he gets a raise of $2.50. This continues for five months. Which of the two men had earned more at the end of the five months?

2. There is no part of the universe that is not occupied either by matter or by a vacuum?

3. Under a succession of hammer blows a piece of lead may be forced to flow?

Students Schedule Winter Concert Series

Corvallis—Students at Oregon State college will have opportunity to hear an unusually comprehensive concert lyceum series as part of their privileges under Associated Student membership this year, it is announced by the educational activities board.

The series will begin November 1 with a concert by Richard Bonelli, famed baritone of the opera and radio. On November 23, the English Singers, a group providing an evening's entertainment of part-songs, is scheduled. The Portland Symphony orchestra is scheduled February 9, followed by Trudi Schoop and her comic ballet troupe, February 25, Marian Anderson, noted American negro contralto, March 4, and Albert Spaulding, violinist, April 6.

This series of attractions, which the students get as part of their activities fee payment, costs faculty and outsiders $5 for season tickets. An additional number has been scheduled this year, but not as part of the season's series. It is Lanny Ross, American lyric tenor, who will be heard in a concert March 29.

CAMP SITE AND DELEGATE TALKED

F. F. A. Chapter Plans Recreation Spot, Representation at National Conclave

Construction of a summer camp in the forest and sending a delegate to national conclave at Kansas City are two highlights in the year's activities of the local chapter, Future Farmers of America, planned at a meeting Monday.

A committee of three boys was named to investigate possible sites on upper Willow creek, not too far from town, where the summer camp development may be made. Damming and widening of creek at the site picked is expected to provide a swimming pool. Help will be asked in various ways from the community and the camp facilities made available to the public if the project is completed.

A series of entertainments is expected to provide funds for sending the local delegate to Kansas City, the first of which will be a pie social in the near future.
