

Local Happenings

D. B. "Bennie" Boone was a Heppner caller last Friday, coming to the county with a party of friends from his home at Roseburg on his way into the elk hunting grounds. Bennie lived at Lexington as a boy and he enjoyed renewing many old boyhood acquaintances. He reported his father, Col. C. C. Boone, 94-year-old Civil war veteran, to be in good health at the Roseburg home, walking the mile and a half into town almost every day. Among those to whom he brought greetings from his father was Howard Lane, who is quite ill at his Lexington home.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Ford of Mussel Shell, Mont., were Heppner visitors Monday, being guests at the J. G. Barratt home. Mr. Ford, a sheep buyer, was a cross-country ace at Oregon State college back in 1921 and was later on the faculty of Washington State college for several years. He interviewed a number of local sheepraisers while in the city.

J. B. Huddleston was attending to business matters in the city Monday. He recently disposed of his Lone Rock farm to Earl Eskelson who is reported to be head over heels in sheep production and enjoying it, these days.
