

Local Happenings

Chas Bartholomew was in town Saturday morning from the ranch near Pine City, preparing to go to meet his sheep on their way from summer range in the Spokane district. He left with authorization of free transportation to Washington, D. C., in his pocket to enable him to attend a national conference on grazing as president of Morrow County Grazing district. However, he was not yet certain that he would be able to arrange his business to get away. Having helped father some of the ideas that have been incorporated into the Taylor Grazing act, he was somewhat concerned about sitting in on the national meet, and wanted to get there if possible.

L. Van Marter spent Monday with his family from Condon where he has been selling farm implements for some time. He was one of the large crowd that packed the stadium at Pullman for the recent W. S. C.-U. S. C. football game, and lended his support to opinions already printed that it was one of the wierdest games imaginable. View of the game was totally obscured by fog during the first half and a spectator had difficulty in distinguishing the face of a fellow spectator a few feet away.

O. C. Stephens was transacting business in town Monday from the farm near Hardman. Though a little late in getting his fall seeding done, he was feeling pretty good over prospects of its coming through due to the open weather. He felt that an open winter may be in the offing, believing that when rains this time of year are not followed by a freeze the indications are good.

Lawrence Redding was among farmers of the Eight Mile section trading in town Saturday, and feeling pretty good over moisture conditions. He returned home two weeks previously from a trip to his old home in Kansas. Farmers of that section had been relieved from a distressing corn price situation thru government advances, he said.

Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Rice returned home Saturday from Portland and the coast where they had been while Dr. Rice was convalescing from a recent illness. Though much improved, the doctor does not expect to be on the job again for some little time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Thomson, Jr., arrived home last Friday morning from a motor trip of several days which took them to Portland and Astoria. On the way home they spent Thursday night at Hood River with Mr. and Mrs. Crockett Sprouls.

David Hynd, in town Tuesday from Rose Lawn ranch, Sand Hollow, was smiling over prevailing weather conditions. Heavy rains had fallen there the three nights immediately previous, and the grass was coming on the hills in good shape.

Harold Cohn and son Phil arrived home last Friday night from a two weeks trip which took them to St. Paul and nearby points. Mr. Cohn drove home a new car which he picked up at the factory in Michigan.

Mack Gentry is critically ill at the home of his son, Harold. His sister, Mrs. Arlet Brock of Portland, and brother Elmer Gentry and son Vivien of Colfax, Wash., arrived the end of the week to see him.

Wid Palmateer was a visitor in the city Monday from the Morgan section. While here he transacted some business for Willows grange. His section is getting really wet and the new crop is appearing okeh.

The ladies of the Episcopal church will hold their annual bazaar and food sale at the Parish House, Saturday, Dec. 4, at 2:30 p. m. Tea from 3 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mason at the maternity home of Mrs. P. A. Mollahan in this city early Tuesday morning, Mary Catherine Frances, weighing 8 pounds.

Leonard Carlson was in the city last Friday from the Gooseberry farm. Growing conditions for the new crop appeared quite satisfactory, he believed.

Walter E. Moore, manager Pendleton Production Credit association, was a business visitor in the city for several hours Tuesday from the Pendleton office.

Don Jones came up from Portland the end of the week to spend Thanksgiving with home folks. He has been attending business college in the city.

Earl Eskelson was a business visitor in the city Saturday from the ranch at Lone Rock, looking like ranch life was agreeing with him.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Gibb at the maternity home of Mrs. P. A. Mollahan in this city Monday night, Judith Mary, weight 7 pounds.

As an emergency the men of Lexington grange will meet at 9 a. m., next Sunday, weather permitting, and erect a cover for the north basement stairway. Recent rains have flooded the kitchen. The ladies will serve dinner at noon.

League Program Lists Famous Speakers

La Grande—One of the strongest programs in the history of the Eastern Oregon Wheat league is announced for the annual convention to be held here December 3 and 4.

Officers of the league, headed by President C. A. Nish, Mikkalo, have received acceptances to appear on the program from Governor Charles H. Martin, George E. Farrell, AAA administrator for the western states; J. D. Ross, administrator of Bonneville dam; C. C. Chapman, editor of the Oregon Voter, and other civic and educational leaders. Staff members of the O. S. C. experiment station will, as usual, report on late developments of interest to the wheat growers.

The tenth annual convention will open here with the state officers' reports following the usual preliminaries, after which C. A. Howard, president of the Eastern Oregon Normal, will speak on "Education and Its Relation to Agriculture." "Development of the Columbia and Snake Rivers," is the next subject, to be discussed by W. B. D. Dodson, Portland.

Director Farrell will head the Friday afternoon program with an address on "An Agricultural Adjustment Program for the Northwest." Dr. D. D. Hill of OSC, and D. E. Stephens of the Moro experiment station, will report on trashy summerfallow and grasses for eastern Oregon. The labor situation will be Mr. Chapman's subject.

At the annual banquet Friday evening, ex-Senator Fred Kiddle will be toastmaster, and Governor Martin the principal speaker.

Saturday morning's schedule includes "The Commodity Exchange Act," by Lewis E. Wolf of Seattle; "Oregon Weed and Seed Laws," by G. R. Hyslop, OSC; "Bonneville Power," by J. D. Ross, and "Palatability of Grasses," by D. E. Richards, superintendent of the Union branch station.

Before committee reports are acted upon at the final session Saturday afternoon, A. S. Burrier, OSC, will speak on "General Land Use Problems of Eastern Oregon," and J. M. Parrish will tell of the aims and purposes of the Tri-State Rate council, of which he is secretary. Other specialists in various fields are being invited to appear before the committees, which will begin meeting the day before the general convention and will continue at various times throughout the session.
