Arthur Smith Was Long-Time Jeweler

Arthur Smith, 84, long-time Heppner resident and former jeweler here, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Annie Webster, in Portland last Friday. Funeral services were held from All Saints' Episcopal church here Sunday afternoon, with Rev. Ralph V. Hinkle officiating, and interment was in Masonic cemetery. Pallbearers were Hanson Hughes, John Kenny, W. Y. Ball, David Hynd, Ed Breslin and L. E. Bisbee.

Mr. Smith was a native of Waterford, Ireland, being born January 25, 1853. He learned the trade of watchmaker at 14 years of age and followed it throughout his active life. He married Elizabeth Hughes in Ireland in 1877, and they came to America in 1882, locating first at Chicago where they lived for three years and Mr. Smith was employed with Young brothers. Coming west in 1885 they first went to the ranch of Bill Hughes, later moving to town when Mr. Smith first opened his jewelry shop here. The family home was shortly made in the residence on South Court street, distinguished for many years by the well kept hedge which surrounded it.

Mrs. Smith passed away in 1927 and shortly thereafter Mr. Smith went to Portland to make his home with his daughter, Mrs. Webster. He was preceded in death also by two sons, one buried in Chicago, and Will Smith, deputy clerk and assessor in this county for many years, who is buried here.

Surviving are the daughter, Mrs. Annie Webster of Portland, grandson Paul Webster, with the marines

Mrs. Pauline Quaid Is Fifty-Year Reader

The third Heppner Gazette Times 50-year continuous subscriber appeared this week, adding to the names of L. A. Florence and Mrs. Anna Natter that of Mrs. Pauline Quaid of Portland. Mrs. Quaid informs this paper that the paper had come continuously to her late husband, Thomas Quaid, or herself ever since first establishment of the Gazette on March 30, 1883. Mrs. Quaid is being offered a life subscription which this paper will give any subscriber of like continuous 50-year subscription record.

Mrs. Quaid has known personally all editors connected with the Gazette, Times or Gazette Times. She complimented the present management by saying that the paper had steadily improved in the time she has been receiving it. She said her husband loaned E. M. Shutt the money to buy his newspaper press when he started the Times, an amount which seemed to her quite large but it was repaid as agreed. Though past 80 years of age, Mrs. Quaid attends personally to business affairs and takes pride in the fact that since retirement to Portland from this county she has made a beauty spot of the place taken for their home, which was in fairly dilapidated condition when acquired. She still counts many old-timers here among her friends, has a keen interest in Morrow county at all times and has expressed confidence in its future through recent purchases of this county's real estate.

and she commended the entire report for study by everyone. Inequalities exist in financing of schools generally, erasure of which would do much to lower the total cost while fostering the principle of equal educational opportunity for all. In this field the O. S. T. A. has contacted granges and other organizations who have lended a sympathetic ear, and it is the hope to eventually have a central organization set-up representing all divisions of society whose work will be to map out the future course in school financing.

Mrs. Rodgers' message was warmly received by the service club, and expressions from members evidenced the belief that too much stress cannot be placed upon education as the main vehicle for preserving democracy.

Possibility of organization of a hydro-electric power district in the county was introduced for discussion, without recommendation, but club members believed a thorough study should be made to ascertain how the county might secure benefits from Bonneville power.

Elmer Griffith of Morgan was introduced as a club guest and took part in the discussions.

Edward Burchell Listed in 'Who's Who'

Edward Burchell of Lexington is one of the 19 Oregon State college students who will be listed in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" when the fourth edition of that book comes off the press in February, according to a news item in a recent issue of the Barometer, student daily at Oregon State.

To be included in "Who's Who" a student must have a combination of character, scholarship, leadership in extra curricular activities including athletics, society, religion and politics, and have a great possibility of future usefulness to busness and society.

Besides the biographies of the outstanding students in America, the 1937-38 edition will include many features said to be invaluable to schools and students throughout America. A synopsis of each university and college will include the year founded, its president, whether it is co-educational, amount of extension work, number of students, catalog of prices of year's expenses, and scholarships available. Many other statistics and information which no other publication carries and which will be both interesting and beneficial will be in this year's edition.

MR. LUPER HOME

James N. Luper, hale and hearty at 86 though still bedfast since breaking his hip in a fall three years ago, returned to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Leta Babb, this week after several months confinement at Morrow General hospital. Mr. Luper reminded New Years day callers that he once weighed 230 pounds, his usual weight being 210, though his long confinement has caused him to drop considerably below that. Aside from a cold at intervals his health has been good for some time. He enjoys eating and does much reading without the aid of glasses, thus keeping up on affairs of the day in which he retains a keen interest. Philosophical as to his lot, he said, "Yes, I'm going to be out on the farm again before long."
