Events of the Past

One Year Ago—The varsity team of Heppner high school basketball squad defeated the town team 45-38 in the main game of last Friday night's sports performance; while the H. H. S. seconds lost to the Camp Heppner team to the tune of 35-14. . . . The Heppner school band selected the musical numbers which it is going to play in the state contest to be held at Corvallis some time in April. . . . The H. H. S. Mustangs overcame another obstacle in their march for basketball honors by defeating the supposedly unstoppable Boardman quintet by a score of 30-23.

Five Years Ago—Mr. Robert Turner, who has just recently returned to this country from Japan, spoke to the student body about his travels in the Orient. . . . Local basket tossers lost to the flashy Lexington Hi hoopsters 32-28 last Saturday night. The following Tuesday the squad motored to Umatilla and returned with a well-earned 20-13 victory over the Vikings.

Ten Years Ago—The Arlington Honkers snatched the fruits of victory from the Fighting Irish of Heppner in the last period of a thrilling battle. The final count was 15-13. . . . During the Christmas holidays, the high school library was moved from the main building to its new room in the recently-completed gymnasium. . . . The girls' basketball team of H. H. S. defeated the women's town team by a 14-8 score. The town team women were decidedly handicapped by lack of practice; however, the score does not indicate the true form of the older fems, as all of their tallies were gathered the hard way. —H.H.S.—

Yum! Yum!

A week ago Tuesday the basketball boys journeyed to the Barratt ranch to take part in a well managed turkey dinner, which was given to the local players because they had beaten the Grant Union team and provided many thrills for the crowd. Van Marter and Aiken were victims of practical jokes launched by Mrs. Barratt and Mr. Knox.

After the dinner, the boys who could walk with such a full stomach were rushed to town and treated to a show by Dave Wilson. All of the players wish to thank Mrs. Barratt and Mr. Wilson for their fine entertainment. —H.H.S.—

Support the Annual

It was decided by the student council to have a school annual this year. In previous years we have had just a memory book, which has taken the place of the school annual. The staff is composed of members of the different classes, mostly juniors and seniors. These students have a large responsibility, but with the support of every member of the student body, we can make this annual a success. —H.H.S.—

Here and There

Paul McCarty journeyed to Portland over the week end.

Harriet Hager and Jack Morton are still confined to their homes due to illness.

A. H. Blankenship, N. E. Peavy and Mrs. Knox accompanied the basketball team to Arlington Saturday night.

Due to a collision with the referee at the Arlington game, Douglas Drake suffered a temporary loss of memory.

Jackson Gilliam has been spending the past few days visiting in Pendleton. —H.H.S.—

PINTO-POINTS

Basketball does have its rewards, in more ways than one. . . . Heppner's victory over Grant Union in a nerve-wracking over-time period called for a celebration, a double one. . . . Mrs. Garnet Borratt, whose eldest offspring is a member of the basketball team, entertained the boys with a turkey feed, and Dave Wilson, local merchant and owner of a men's clothing store at John Day, home town of the Grant Union hoopsters, and the sports-minded citizen who so graciously sponsored the advertisement in connection with that game, topped the bird feast by purchasing for each squad member a ticket of admission to last Tuesday night's theater attraction. Anyone who wants to take in a rough-house basketball game may do so by wandering over to the gymnasium around 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Tuesday and Thursday, the days singled out as the ones on which the boys shall take physical education. . . . tripping, rushing, hacking, and blocking, not to mention an occasional on-the-sly tackle, are mere trifles in these drag-outs. The boys of the school down Lexington way, according to a bona fide member of that institution, would relish a crack at the boxing team of the local FFA chapter. . . . in Ellwyne Peck and Clayton they have a couple of heavy hitting mitmen as well as several other capable boxing aspirants. . . . should the Jackrabbit squared-circle enthusiasts take on the FFA same, competition will not be so keen, as some of this school's best boxers, not being members of that organization, cannot and do not box under the colors of the future farmers' club; however, if our neighbors took on the "H" club fist-slinging artists, the best of opposition would be offered. Speaking of boxers, this writer, soon after arriving in Portland last Saturday morning, saw one in the Union depot whose size would seem to be against him. . . . he happened to be Pablo Dano, classy Filipino featherweight. . . . the brown doll, despite his weight of 122 and height of 4 feet 10 inches, consistently wins over men larger than he. The basketball games this week end are the last in that sport, or any other high school sport for that matter, for La Verne Van Marter. . . . his ineligibility has been declared by the powers-that-be of the Oregon High School Athletic association. . . . watch the scoring ability of the red-headed center go into action tomorrow night. The high tension of competition between Heppner and Arlington was brought out in the Mustang's last game with them. . . . a slight cuff on the cheek roused the ire of another. . . . suddenly, another retaliated. . . . both were removed from the game temporarily. Basketball may now be played in houses of business as well as on the standard court, but the former scene of play is one marked by a floor of much smaller scale. . . . the first to bring such a machine to this area, one of the leading restaurants of Arlington has placed within its doors a game, which upon the insertion of a coin of proper size, weight, and value, is manipulated by levers that enable the indulger to shoot from practically any spot on the floor. . . . it evidently is quite popular, as on the evening of installation in the eating establishment, an "out of order" sign had to be placed on the device, probably the result of unfair play on the part of an over-anxious hoopman. —H.H.S.—

Seniors Win

In the second of a series of casaba

contests, the senior class five eked out a 23-21 victory over the junior class quintet on the high school maple court last Thursday afternoon.

The senior hoopmen got off to a fast start and held a 10-0 advantage at the end of the first period. The score at haltime stood 14-7. The second half was decidedly rougher. Players on both sides committed fouls right and left, intentional and unintentional, which resulted in the discharging of two men. With one minute to go, the score was knotted at nineteen all. The senior hoopsters sank two field goals in quick succession to put the game on ice while holding their opponents to one basket. —H.H.S.—

Humor

Lloyd B.—"I'm trying to break myself of talking to myself."

Juanita P.—"How do you do that?"

Lloyd—"I ask myself fool questions and then tell myself to shut up."

The strikes have brought labor and capital much closer together the last year. They now live within a stone's throw of each other.

"Hi, there, you; didn't you tell me you never got tired?"

"Dat's right, boss. Ah allus stops an' rests befo' Ah get tiahed."

Sailor—"Honey, I've brought something for the one I love best. Guess what?"

Honey—"A box of cigars."

Bill Browning—"You mean to say there is a way to keep from hitting your thumb with a hammer? What is it?"

Arthur Mc—"Hold the hammer in both hands."

Omer McCaleb (talking to druggist)—"A dollar and a half for this prescription? That's a very high price."

Druggist—"No, sir; the drugs in it are very costly."

Omer—"Since when? I used to be a druggist myself."

Druggist—"Why didn't you say so? It'll be fifteen cents."

Guess What—

What is it that seems the craze, That sets every student's heart a-blaze?

It has something to do with a horse laugh, And the bellowing of a love-lorn calf.

It is something that is different and new; It is just dripping with something to do.

When you hear that hog call, Don't ask questions, just go to the BARNYARD BRAWL.

CAMP HEPPNER NEWS

A group of about 25 enrollees of Camp Heppner are now under the supervision of Morrow county's sheriff, Clarence Bauman. This supervision, however, is not from the strong arm of the law, but that of the educated brawn of boxer and wrestler Bauman who, with Ranganman Woodrow Morris, camp recreational director, is conducting classes in boxing and wrestling. With two classes a week in a regulation ring in the county pavilion, Sheriff Bauman and Mr. Morris believe some of the boys will be in shape soon to participate in regular smokers. In the meantime, plans call for a tournament to select a champion from each of the two classes in which enrollees are now learning the law of besting fellow opponents in boxing and wrestling.

The writing on the hill spells "Camp Heppner, Co. 297, C. C. C.," and it is readily visible for miles around. It is not a neon or an electrical sign, but it is plain lettering, arranged of rocks painted a cream color, pointing out for persons interested the exact location of Camp Heppner among the vast area of rolling hills. Enrollees Peter Ratolo and Joseph Accurio were the letterers and Robert Strausbough and Sam Leone the painters of this sign on the hill.

Four tickets of admission to the Star theater in Heppner and a one dollar canteen book are the awards sought in a pool tournament in which all of the enrollees of Camp Heppner are now competing. The tournament as scheduled gives each man a chance to show his skill among the fellow men of his barracks, the winner of each barracks receiving a ticket of admission to the local theater. These ticket winners will then play the finale, and the grand champion of Co. 297 will be the winner of the canteen book.

Harold Anderson was in the city yesterday from the farm in Gooseberry. He reported snow there yesterday morning, falling much as it did at Heppner.
